Fifty Dollars Reward.
RAN away from the subscriber, living in the city of Baltimore, yesterday evening the 5th instant, a negro man named POLYDORE; he is about 28 years of age, about 5 feet 6 inches high, slender made, sharp faced, and very polite when spoken to. He is an excellent house servant, and can take care of horses or drive a carriage very well. He had on when he went away a blue sailors jacket, Russia sheeting shirt and trousers; he has a variety of clothes, and amongst others a deep blue broad cloth coat with the pockets inside, buckskin breeches, and generally wears half boots on Sundays; he has also a drab colored coating surtout coat, which he occasionally wears. As he has been accustomed to the above employments, he may probably offer himself to inn-keepers in the neighboring cities. I will pay 10 dollars if taken in the city; if out of the city and in the county 20 dollars; if out of the state, and secured in any jail, 30 dollars; and if out of the state, and brought home to the subscriber, the above reward.
JACOB SMALL.
N.B. Masters of vessels and others are warned against harboring or carrying off said negro, as they will be dealt with according to law.

A CARD.
IMPRESSED with the most lively feelings of gratitude towards my friends, who supported my interest at the election just terminated—I am thereby induced to tender them a sincere acknowledgment of thanks; and with diffidence I take the liberty of informing both them and my fellow-citizens generally, that having been placed on the return by a respectable poll, and being influenced by a flattering reliance on the stedfast and continued support of my present well-wishers, together with a hope, that an increase of countenance will be extended towards me, urge me again to hold myself in nomination as a candidate for the office of sheriff for the next term.
Though I have been unfortunate in a first attempt, still I cheerfully submit to that splendid majority which elected Mr Bailey, viewing him as a gentleman worthy of the office conferred on him. And I indulge the expectation, that at the next campaign, I shall be honored with the suffrage of many of his friends, at least, such favor is respectfully solicited.
I am sorry to find it necessary to notice one insinuation which was set afloat during the late contest, to injure my election. The character of a near relative was brought forward, and certain traits, such as imperious and overbearing, were ascribed to him, and by some were deemed a sufficient cause for withholding from me their support. If any individual among my relatives has rendered himself obnoxious, it seems afflicting, that the burthen of odium which his improprieties may excite, should rest on me. I have ever endeavored to "do unto all men as I would they should do unto me," and it is certainly somewhat cruel to charge me with the faults of others, over whom I have no control.
Gentlemen, my character and situation in life is known to many of you, and I trust that three succeeding years will render us better acquainted: and if at the end of that period I should be the people's choice, I will endeavor to furnish proof of gratitude, by manifesting a proper degree of solicitude to please.
HENRY TRAPNALL.

LONDON, August 24.
It is quite pleasant to hear the French gasconade of invasion, when the principal part of their coast is so closely blockaded that they cannot send even a fishing boat out to procure a dish of fish. Our bomb vessels have sported a few shells into Boulogne, and beat down a couple of houses; and to keep the seamen from being idle, a party of them landed a few days since, and diverted themselves in overthrowing the French engines for driving piles for their fortifications; and throwing their intrenching tools, mattocks, baskets, &c. into the sea.
While the chief consul may be meditating the overthrow of British sway in Ireland, a very serious plan is on foot here to destroy consular tyranny in France.—A few days ago a council of seven of the French princes was held, at which Pichegrue was present, together with Dumourier, who some time ago reconciled himself to the king of France, and took the oath of allegiance to him. With a view to an expedition, Dummourier is certainly come to this country. The royal standard is to be erected in France, under those generals, who will be accompanied by some of the French princes. All the emigrants who have, within these few years, returned to France, hate the consul, and his upstart pillarging profligates. It is well known that these emigrants possess a great influence over the minds of the people, all of whom affect to be sufferers by the revolution, fallen noblesse, ruined royalists, &c.
There is undoubtedly a strong royalist party in France, which has lately manifested its disposition by acts that have alarmed the chief consul, and brought him back to Paris. General Donadieu was arrested in Holland as a partisan in this enterprize, to which we wish the fullest success. Moreau too, it will be recollected, was some years ago accused of being engaged in a project to restore royalty, with general Pichegru.

BOSTON, September 30.
This day arrived, the ship Eagle, capt. Johnson, 66 days from Hamburg, via Bristol, (Maine). August 28, lat. 49, 47, long. 32, fell in with the wreck of the brig Sarah, of Philadelphia, no mast standing, deck blown up, appeared to have been some time in that situation.
Same day, brig Orion, Prior, Liverpool, 52 days.
Same day, ship Diana, captain Burril, Liverpool, 68 days. Spoke, August 1, brig Lion, 25 days from New-York, bound to Cork. August 4, brig William, from Portland, bound to Liverpool. August 12, ship Nancy, captain Howland, 25 days from Boston, for Liverpool.

Isabella, Greene, for do. August 28; Washington, Scott, for do. September 1; Polly, Hancock, expected to put up for Boston; Hazard, Talbot, of Wilmington, waiting orders; Fame, of Charleston, uncertain; Vengeance, of Salem, ditto; William and John, Woodhouse, had sailed for Barcelona; the barque Lydia, Barnard, in the Downs from Boston. Spoke, September 3, lat. 48, 23, long. 16, ship Franklin, Conklin, of Philadelphia, from Salou, for Plymouth, 56 days out, supplied him with beef. September 16, lat. 44, long. 47, 30, ship Commerce, 16 days from New-York, for Amsterdam. September 18, lat. 44, 4, long. 49, ship Hibernia, Leach, 13 days from Boston, for Leghorn. September 25, lat. 41, 47, long. 62, ship Vigilant, 6 days from Portland, for Liverpool. Captain H. was boarded by several privateers---treated in general, politely.

October 3.
FURTHER FROM EUROPE.
Yesterday arrived at this port, the regular trading ship Galen, captain Robert Hinckley. She left London the 25th August, and the Lands End 2d September. The papers received by this arrival are to the 25th August, one day later than those received by the Calisto; but they contain no additional intelligence of any moment.
London prices current to the 23d, and Lloyd's list to the 25th August, are also received by this arrival.
Passengers in the Galen—Samuel Cabot, esq. Richard Peters, esq. of Philadelphia, Dr. Nathaniel Chapman, of Virginia, Thomas Elwyn, esq. of Portsmouth, N. H. Mr. William Elwyn, of London, lieut. Edward Wyer, and Mr. John P. Parker, of this place.

LONDON, August 25.
A Dutch and Hamburg mail arrived yesterday, without bringing any very important intelligence. Indeed the German papers are more than usually deficient in the reports of negociations in the cabinet, or movements among the forces of any of the northern powers. Nothing at all is said of the Russian fleet, or of any intention of its leaving the Baltic. Indeed we have uniformly thought that the speculations in this country respecting the aid of Russia against France, was over sanguine.
The report of the royal standard being about to be raised in the western departments of France, under the French princes, or their officers, gains ground. It is said that Pichegru, as well as Dumourier, has been consulted by the princes of France.
It was mentioned yesterday, that the French troops in garrison at Dunkirk and Boulogne, and other parts in the north, have shown symptoms of aversion to Bonaparte's government.

October 5.

The British frigate Cambrian has been for some time cruising off this harbor, and it seems principally with a view of impressing seamen. Our marine list has been for several days filled with accounts of her boarding our vessels, and impressing their hands. It is said, that she left port one third short of her complement, and had come here to complete her crew.
We shall be happy to see a check put to those proceedings: it could never have been contemplated in the arrangement between the nations, that vessels of war should have the privilege of cruising at the mouths of our own harbors, annoying our merchantmen, and entrapping such of our seamen as may chance to be without protections.
