FEDERAL GAZETTE.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 30.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in Annapolis, dated November 27, 1805.

"Leave has been given in the senate to bring in a bill to establish an Inspection of Fish at Havre-de-Grace, and to make it lawful to export them from Baltimore without further inspection. Will not this materially affect the reputation of the Baltimore inspection of salted provisions? The evil, perhaps, will produce its own remedy, for it may be reasonably doubted whether the Baltimore merchants will purchase fish from the Susquehannah without a reinspection in Baltimore.

We were informed by the captain of the Annapolis packet, arrived last evening, that on Thursday last the bill for the abolition of the general court was brought before the house of delegates. It produced an animated debate till the house adjoined, which re-commenced yesterday morning—and it remained uncertain when he sailed, when the yeas and nays would be called on the question. [American.]

We observe an article in the Charleston papers, which more than any thing which we have seen, shews the deplorable condition of our commerce. A meeting of the stockholders of the insurance company of that city is called, to consider the expediency of discontinuing insurances at present. We are not much surprised at such a notice, because, at present, it seems almost impossible to calculate the risk. The belligerent powers appear to persecute us without proceeding upon any regular principles, but that of rapacity. [Norfolk Ledger.]

[The above article was published in yesterday's Gazette. Since its appearance, we have been requested by a gentleman from Charleston now here, to state that the paragraph is not true as relates to the marine insurance company of that city, it being the fire insurance company which contemplates the discontinuance of business, as may be seen by their advertisement in the Charleston papers. As the erroneous impression conveyed in the Norfolk article may injure the marine company if uncontradicted, this refutation, it is hoped, will accompany it, wherever it has or may appear.]

Extract of a letter from Honduras, dated September 10th, 1805.

"Abount three months, ago, severe gales of wind materially injured most of the provision grounds, and induced the magistrates and people at a public meeting to address H. M. superintendant for the opening of the port to the American vessels. They were answered that their application should be directly forwarded) by the man of war then sailing) to the governour of Jamaica, with colonel Gordon's concurring opinion of the propriety of the measure; but as the ship was to cruise some time, no answer has arrived. On the 28th of last month, a hurricane effectually compleated an almost total loss of all and every species of bread kind; the magistrates, in a warm and spirited address, again solicited an immediate intercourse with America; pointed out the real distress, of the settlement and such an exhausted state of the stores, that not one barrel of flour was to be purchased at Belize. The colonel in return acknowledged and lamented the state of the settlement, promised every alleviation in his power, and assured the magistrates of his not entertaining the least doubt of a full and speedy compliance with their requisitions, not only from the urgency of the case, but also from his representations and zealous recommendations; but though a refusal is not in the least apprehended, yet the delay may most seriously affect the settlement; at any rate we look for speculations, as the neutral vessels may now take off what quantity of logwood they please, and there is every reason to believe that the restrictions hitherto prevailing with respect to the size of mahogany will be removed."

CONTINUATION OF TRANSLATIONS,

From French papers received by the ship Eliza, captain Smith, at the office of the Public Ledger.

PARIS, September 25.

DOCUMENTS

Referred to in an exposition of the reciprocal conduct of France and Austria since the peace of Luneville, read by the minister of foreign affairs.

A correct statement of the seizures made by Austria on Bavaria by virtue of the right of escheat.

Sketch of the value of the estates and chattels which the court of Vienna has caused to be seized by virtue of the right of escheat.

When, in execution of the plan of indemnities, the German princes had taken possession of the ecclesiastical states and dominions, which had been secularized in their behalf, the emperor of Germany caused all the dependencies of the bishoprics, chapters, and mediate or immediate abbies, which lay within the Austrian states to be sequestred.

The disposition totally contrary to the intention of the plan was at first represented by the court of Vienna as a provisory measure, having for its object to indemnify his royal H. the grand Duke of Tuscany, in case the possessions of the elector of Bavaria, in Bohemia, and the lands of Freysing in Austria should not prove sufficient for the equivalent due to that prince, for the portion of Aichstier and Salzburg, which he had ceded. It was but of late that the imperial court held forth the pretended right of escheat: a right so utterly unknown in Germany that to express the meaning thereof, they have been obliged to make use of an old term of the French jurisprudence. The highest courts of the Empire, and particularly the Aulic council have heretofore, at the time of the suppression of the Jesuits in Germany, rejected pretentions founded on a similar right.

The application of that pretended right of escheat would produce to Bavaria losses which may be estimated at 8,860,000 florins of Vienna, viz.

| | |
|---|---|
| For, the bishopric of Wurtzburg owns in the bank of Vienna more than | 4,000,000 |
| The bishopric of Baurberg and the other corporations of that country, | 2,200,000 |
| The feodal court of the bishopric of Baurberg at Vienna, comprehends the lordship of feodal tenures, which are of a landed value of | 1,000,000 |
| The bishopric of Augsburg owns in Tyrol the custom-house at Leux, and several other rights at Balzan, valued in capital, | 160,000 |
| The abbey of Waldassen, those of Vahrnach, Tegernsee, Hailenbeuern, Beuernbourg, Beuedeilbeuern, Ettat, Furstenzell, &c. and almost all those abbies, as well mediate as immediate, of the electoral provinces of Suabia, have very important properties in Austria, which are valued at more than | 1,500,000 |
| Florins, total, | 8,860,000 |

The court of Vienna has made use of the same right of escheat to compel the elector of Wurteinburg, the prince of Nassau Fulde, the Teutonic order, the counts of Sternberg and Aspremont, to enter into agreements with her, by which the revenue of the sequestrated domains were returned to them, on the condition that they should abandon to Austria all the rights of sovereignty, by which means she has extended her territory into Upper Suabia.

Mr. Gillespie has invented a mode for a covered battery which is intended for guarding the coasts of the United kingdom. It is upon a moveable principle and carries only one gun (a 48 pounder) which can be directed in a moment to any one given point. This gun may be elevated or lowered by the the most simple machinery, and having a tube at the top, parallel to its axis, it may be brought to take surer aim than by the mode now in use. The machanism is so wonderfully ingenious that it is calculated to turn the most ponderous mortars or guns of any calibre, with the greatest ease, and the whole can be worked by 5 men, who remain inside the battery in perfect safety. It is so constructed, that it resists the most powerful engines used in the besieging of towns, &c. This wonderful invention has excited the admiration of all who have seen it. The board of ordnance have borne testimony of its merits. Mr. Pitt, sir Sidney Smith, sir Thomas Trollope, and general Debbeig, are among its admirers.

This impregnable castle resembles in shape a polygon moving around an inclined plane, so as always to present an acute angle to the point of attack. It is intended to be completely bomb-proof, by being lined on the outside with iron, from two to four inches in thickness, which would render it impregnable to any shot, if even taken in a flank direction, which never presents itself, the sides of the battery being an inclined plane. The door or entrance, consequently is in the back part of it. The inventor, we hear, has been for some time in treaty with government. He has had the warmest support from col. Crawford and Sydney Smith. The idea of the late experiment was taken from Mr. Gillespie's floating battery. [London paper.]
