NEW-YORK, April 28.

By the brig Hope, capt. Andrews, arrived on Monday 18th inst. at Marblehead, from Gijon, in Spain, in the Bay of Biscay, we have news from that country, to the 10th of last month. It appears that the citadel of Pampleuse, in the kingdom of Navarre and that of Figueyras in the principality of Catalonia, had been garrisoned with French troops, with the consent and by order of the king of Spain, and therefore without any opposition from the commandant of the same.—that the Rochefort fleet had joined that of Carthagena, consisting of 19 ships of the line, &c. and have proceeded thence jointly, to Toulon; that the general opinion of the best informed class in Spain was, that the prince of Asturias, the heir apparent of the throne, would be married to Miss Beauharnois. daughter of the ambassador, a nience of the empress of France; and that Murat had already arrived in Madrid no doubt preparatory to the coming of the emperor and the consummation of the said event, together with other arrangements such as allotting Portugal as a dowery to his said niece. There were in Ferrol 5 ships of the line, one new, of 120 guns, and 3 frigates, ready for sea.

Capt. Hilliard, who arrived at Boston on Sunday from Alicant, informs, that three days previous to his sailing, accounts were received there that 8000 French troops had arrived at Barcelona, on their way to Alicant, to take possession of that place; and it was understood that the French were to occupy all the Spanish sea-ports.

PHILADELPHIA, April 29.

Died, at Dover, state of Deleware, on the 21st inst. WILLIAMINA RIDGELY, eldest daughter of Dr. Charles G. Ridgely, formerly of that place, deceased, aged 32 years.

In her were united a mind of real cultivation, displaying at all times and in all situations, masculine fortitude and energy, combined with every softer virtue of her sex; a heart ever ready to sooth and sympathise with the afflicted, a hand ever ready to relieve, sincerity that knew no guile, and active goodness that heeded no difficulties, where duty pointed ever ready, where affection prompted ever zealous. To know her was to admire and love goodness, benevolence and charity under their brightest form. It may be truly said, that her every enjoyment was derived from the discharge of those duties, that add the brightest lustre to the christian character here, and ensure it an endless reward in a better world.

UTRECHT, February 24.

His majesty, in execution of the treaty of the 11th November last, by virtue of which the countries of Kniphausen and Varel are united to Holland, on the 28th Jan. last issued the following decree:

"The Kniphausen flag, in consequence of the union of that country with Holland, shall no longer be acknowledged. The consuls and agents of count Bentic, in his quality of sovereign of Varel and Kniphausen, shall be no longer acknowledged in the said quality.

"The inhabitants of the counties of Kniphausen and Varel must hoist the Dutch flag, they are enjoined to change, as being, the former flags which may yet remain on board their vessels.

"All demands which have been addressed to count Bentick, soliciting permission to sail under the former flag must be immediately forwarded to our minister of finances."

NON-EXPATRIATION.

COPENHAGEN, February 12.

An article has been published here in addition to the ordinance of the 9th September, which enacts that any individual born in England, and arrested by virtue of the said order, shall be considered during the whole course of his detention as a subject of Great Britain, and treated as such, altho' he should be able to prove his having the right of citizen in the state of a friendly or neutral power.

A German newspaper contains some fresh details of the FAMOUS DUEL which took place between baron Wrede & count Duben, in the village of Simpach, upon the left bank of the Inn. All the inhabitants of Branau were witnesses of it. The Bavarian soldiers formed a circle round the combatants, who were only fifteen paces from each other. Count Duben fired the first shot; his ball passed close by general Wrede's right ear. The latter attempted to fire in his turn, but his pistol hung fire. The second shot that count Duben fired, grazed gen. Wrede's breast. The second time that the general endeavored to fire, his pistol did not go off; upon which he drew his sword; but the seconds declared they would not allow the fight to continue. The public are the more satisfied with this issue, as the two adversaries are fathers of families. Gen. Wrede has six children, and count Duben four.

CASSEL, February 24.

The ceremony of taking the oath of obedience to the king and fidelity to the constitution by the inhabitants of Cassel, took place on the 21st February, her majesty's birthday.

At eleven o'clock in the morning, the prefect, accompanied by the principal authorities of the department and the municipal bodies, left the hotel of the prefecture with a military escort, and repaired to the royal square, where a battalion of archers, the different corporations, the citizens professing the law of Moses, and a great crowd of inhabitants were waiting ther arrival around an estrade which was prepared for the occasion.

The prefect, after having made an analogous speech, caused the article of the constitution which fixes the order of the succession to the crown to be read. The battalion of archers took the oath first, and by a spontaneous movement, the good citizens of whom this corps is composed cried out: Long live Jerome Napoleon! long live Catherine, our dearly beloved Queen! Distinguished by their attachment to their sovereign & by the patriotism, they have given a new proof of their zeal upon this occasion, the whole complement of near four hundred men being present. The elders of the different corporations took the oath, and all present answered with the loudest acclamations and cries of Long live the King! long live the Queen!

The citizens professing the law of Moses followed after; the testimonies of their joy were those of the gratitude of a class of people who have at length been delivered from oppression by a wise and beneficient king. The crowd of other citizens repeated the words: We swear! and the ceremony, ended with acclamations and cries of, Long live the King! long live the Queen! The prefect having returned with the same ceremony as upon his arrival, gave a dinner to the public officers who had accompanied him and to many others who had been invited. His own toasts were; "to the prolongation of the days of our king Jerome; to her majesty our beloved Queen; to the prosperity of the kingdom of Westphalia."

In the evening, there was a general illumination throughout the whole town.

PARIS, March 3.

Since the Russian government has introduced the vaccine into their empire, 281,753 children have been vaccinated (from 1804 to 1807.) The vaccine innoculation is now established, not only in the most remote Russian provinces; but it has even been propagated in other populations of a different religion, and among the Nomadian nations, such as the Sumajedes, the Tartars, the Calmucks, and the Kirgis. It is worthy of remark, that none of the children who have been vaccinated in Russia have died in consequence of it.

We invite our commercial readers to the prize cause copied from our Bombay papers, received by the Gleaner.—Quere, is this sir James Mackintosh the author of a vindication of France, in reply to Burk's celebrated pamphlet on the French revolution.

[Relf.]

From the Bombay Courier, Sept. 19.

PRIZE COURT.

MINERVA, FREDERIC HUSSEY, MASTER.

On Friday the 11 instant Sir James Mackintosh gave judgment in this cause.

This was a case of an American ship taken on the 3d of December 1806, going from Manilla to Batavia.

The ship had left Providence in August 1805, had touched at the Isle of France, from which place she sailed to Batavia, thence she went to Tegall and Manilla, and on her voyage from this last place back again to Batavia she was detained. Her cargo consisted chiefly of indigo and dollars.

It appeared that she was under the direction of a supercargo on board, as to her employment in trade both in respect of the cargoes and intermediate ports to which she was to trade, previously to her return to Providence or some other port in America where her voyage was to end.

For the captors, it was contended that she was trading between enemies colonies, and therefore acting in direct violation of the letter and spirit of his majesty's instructions of June 1803, which command the commanders of ships of war and privateers not to seize any neutral vessel which should be carrying on trade directly between the colonies of the enemy and the neutral country to which the vessel belonged.

For the claimants it was insisted that neither Manilla nor Batavia n r the Isle of France were enemies colonies of such a nature as to render the trading thereto by a neutral in time of war illegal; inasmuch as the trade to those places was open to foreigners in time of peace.

The court on a former day had directed commissioners to be sent to Bengal and Madrass to ascertain whether the ports of Batavia and Manilla were during the last peace open to any foreigners from ports of India, Europe or America; and if open whether any and what restrictions;—and also to inquire into the state of those ports in these respects before the war which broke out between Great-Britain and Spain in 1796.

These commissioners being in part returned and it appearing that ports were open to all foreigners during the last peace, without any restrictions except as to opium and specie at the port of Batavia, Sir James Mackintosh pronounced judgment of restitution.

The captors he said were fully justified in detaining this vessel, because in so doing they were acting in obedience to the letter of the instructions of June 1803.—Batavia and Manilla were certainly colonies of the enemy, and this vessel was certainly not trading directly between America and such colonies. But though the officers in his majest'ys service were bound to obey these instructions, he did not conceive himself sitting as a judge of prize, in a court whose decisions were to
