of such being able to see well out of his eyes. When we were down in Texas I heard him speak of having been sunstruck. I did not know anything personally about that but heard him speak of it but I did not hear him say where but I think it was on the march from Johns Island, Va. because that was about the longest march we had and it was very hot then. These are the only disabilities that I know of him having in service and I only know of them by hearing him speak of them. It was not like he had been in my own regiment. I have ~~frequently~~ seen him very often ever since the war every few days. We have been very intimate friends. I have very frequently heard him complain of being affected with these same disabilities rheumatism and impaired sight. We have hardly ever met without him speaking of his feeling and he would always complain of having rheumatism and not being able to see well - It has been laid up since the war but I never visited him when he was laid up and could not say whether or not it was with rheumatism. I know of no other disease or disability that he has had since the war.

My answers are correctly recorded herein.
