DOWN WITH THE TAXES.

It is but too evident that our system of internal taxation, our tariff system, and our financial system, particularly in its relation to the public debt and the restoration of specie payments, need to be reformed. They are all intimately connected with the industrial interests of the country, and ought to be treated solely in reference to them. But instead of being so treated they are subordinated to mere party interests.

The inconsistency and absurdity of paying off a funded debt which is not due, and will not be for many years, while refusing to pay that part of the national debt which is due and has long been due, cannot be overstated. It is a monstrosity in fiscal management hard to be paralleled anywhere. It is suspension, it is bankruptcy, it is repudiation. The inconsistency consists in practically declaring our inability to pay debts which are due, while we go on systematically, month after month and week after week paying those which are not due.

But if for any reason we will not pay our debts that are due, why will we persist in oppressively taxing the industry of the country to pay those that are not due? That is the question; and the answer must be given, that it is because it is thought politic, in a party point of view to go on paying the public debt.—The aggregate result makes a good show. We hear it on every hand—in messages, in reports, in the newspapers—that Gen. Grant's Administration has paid this sum or that sum, always dealing in millions, on the public debt. It is a party boast, a claimed merit, an achievement asking for applause. We do not think there is any sense in the claim. We do not think it is worth a fig in a party aspect. It is, after all, only saying, "See how we crush the people with taxes to pay bondholders who do not want the money."—But nevertheless the impulse to this policy is the idea of its being a good party cry.

On similar grounds nothing is urged in the direction of a return to coin payments, the one really great want of the country. This measure is not supposed to touch a popular chord of approval, and so it is systematically ignored and kept out of sight. The anomalous position the country is in, wanting any fixed standard of value, does not seem to attract even the passing attention of the managers of our fiscal affairs. The fact is alike incredible and discreditable, and is, like so many things we have had occasion to complain of, attributable not only to a shallow view of what party interests require, but also to a want of that necessary intellectual understanding of the situation which pervades nearly all the departments of the Government. In none of them, it is quite too evident, is there any well defined principle of action. Everything is the result of a hand-to-mouth policy.

And yet it is impossible that this state of things can long continue. The action of the Treasury is so preposterous that it must work its own cure. With or without the Secretary's concurrence, we are confident there is intelligence enough in Congress to arrest the idiotic process of paying off the public debt, at least until the Treasury ceases to proclaim itself bankrupt, by refusing to take up its demand notes. If we are able to pay our funded debt, we are able to pay the demand notes. The common sense of the country revolts at the present practice, and sooner or later it will find expression in Congress.

It is too much to suppose the people will be forever blind to the ineffable folly and charlatanism of keeping up the taxes which depress industry and enterprise, while there is no desire and no intention of applying them to the only legitimate purposes which can excuse such taxes, namely, the restoration of the currency to a specie standard, or the removal of the stain of bankruptcy from the Treasury. If neither of these most righteous objects is deemed legitimate by the Administration, the sooner Mr. Boutwell is deprived of his entire surplus the better. Let the taxes, then, come off without delay. It is a public offense to have the present state of things continued a day longer.

We are curious to see if the present Congress thinks it can afford to adjourn leaving taxes that Mr. Boutwell admits will give him a surplus of seventy millions at the close of the present fiscal year in June next.—N. Y. Sun.

COMMUNICATED.

WORTON, Feb. 3d, 1871.

Messrs. Editors:—I would not attempt to describe the many scenes of festivity that are continually being enacted in Worton during the social season; nor speak of other topics of general interest. I would not trouble you with any accounts of the successful workings of our Club, as "Particeps" will keep you posted.

I wish to speak of a little departure from the rules and regulations of the Surprise party, in going out of the neighborhood a few evenings ago, to make a surprise which was not all a surprise. I allude to the visit of last Monday evening to Col. Edward Wilkins' in Quaker Neck. It seems that our gallant leader had not kept close council, for, arriving at the palatial residence of our host, we found the "lamps trimmed and brightly burning," fires throughout the house, and everything prepared for a warm reception. We were welcomed with that genuine cordiality so characteristic of true old Maryland gentlemen, and the best the house could afford was at our service. Some of the party who were ailing retired with the Colonel to be refreshed with a little of his "Riverside" or "apple-toddy," manufactured by a peculiar process by himself; others repaired to the library to indulge in a smoke after their long ride; but the majority of the company assembled in a large parlor where the interesting daughter and a Spark-ling visitor and friend were discoursing sweet music. In time we were all thawed out and the concert became general.

During the past year the Colonel has been remodeling his before very comfortable premises, and now certainly has all the modern conveniences, except gas.—The patent fanning lamps, however, which supply themselves with a proper current of air, by a clock-work machinery, more than supply that desideratum, giving a better and brighter light.

About 11 o'clock we were invited to the dining room where the kind lady had a rich, rare and plentiful display of all of the good things of this lower sphere, spread before us. A description of this supper neither space nor ability will permit. When we had tarried long to partake of the Colonel's generous hospitality and when the small hours of the morn were approaching the "Old Man" ordered a retreat.

The ladies were soon robed with their traps and paraphanalia, the jaunty cutters and champing horses were at the door; but the ever mindful host suggested that we take a little pure grape juice with him, to keep out the "wet" as it was very damp without. Accepting the proffered prescription, Dr. Vannort on the part of the company, proposed a sentiment to the Col. and family, who in the course of his remarks, indulged in the hope, that he might live to the good old age of a thousand years. After which Mr. George Diehl offered a toast to the ladies. At the word of command we were off and tripping it at lightning speed, much pleased with the exploits of the evening. Long live the Colonel, and long live our estimable leader, Father James, and when he next doth ride, may I be there to see.

Unanswerable Arguments.

Established facts are silent arguments which neither pen nor tongue can shake, and it is upon established facts that the reputation of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, as a health-preserving elixir, and a wholesome and powerful remedy, is based. When witnesses come forward in crowds, year after year, and reiterate the same statements in relation to the beneficial effects of a medicine upon themselves, disbelief in its efficiency is literally impossible. The credentials of this unequalled tonic and alterative, extending over a period of nearly twenty years, include individuals of every class, and residents of every clime, and refer to the most prevalent among the complaints which afflict and harass the human family. Either a multitude of people, strangers to each other, have annually been seized with an insane and motiveless desire to deceive the public, or Hostetter's Bitters, for no less than a fifth of a century, have been affording such relief to sufferers from indigestion, fever and ague, biliousness, general debility, and nervous disorders, as no other preparation has ever imparted. To-day, while the eyes of the reader are upon these lines, tens of thousands of persons of both sexes are relying upon the Bitters as a sure defence against the ailments which the present season engenders, and their confidence is not misplaced. The local potions which interested dealers sometimes endeavor to foist upon the sick in its stead, are everywhere meeting the fate that is due to fraud and imposture, while the demand for the great vegetable specific is constantly increasing.

A NEW ERA IN BELTING.

PAGE'S PATENT

Tanned Leather Belt.

Tanned in Oil and by the same process as Lace Leather, by PAGE BROS., inventors and manufacturers of the celebrated Page's Lace Leather.

These Belts are perfectly soft, and hug the pulley like pure rubber, thus giving 25 per ct. more driving power than any other belt.

They also have eighty per ct. more strength than the best oak-tanned belts.

They have been placed on pullies running 9,000 turns per minute, and in places where all other belts have failed, have given entire satisfaction, outwearing every other belt 50 per ct.

The fact that they are driving out of the market in the East, very fast, the other kinds of belt, is sufficient testimony.

All the large Eastern Factories now use them.

The following are a few of the many testimonials we have received:

Messrs. Charles E. Inloes & Co.:

GENTS:—We have been using Page's Patent Belt in our factories for over a year, and believe it to be the best and cheapest belt made. Best, because it is stronger and more durable than oak-tanned; and cheapest, because its adhesive qualities give it so much more driving power.

Very respectfully,
R. H. THOMPSON,
Sup't Union Mfg. Co. of Maryland,
Ellicott's Mills.

Messrs. Charles E. Inloes & Co.:

GENTS:—The fourteen-inch Page's Patent Belt, bought from you, has been in daily use ever since, and gives perfect satisfaction, and you are at liberty to use our name in endorsing the qualities you claim for it, in every respect, as we believe it to be the best Belt made, and shall adopt it altogether in our mills.

Very truly,
