COUNTY TITLES

The Rosewood State Training School has purchased about 124 acres of land in Baltimore County near Owings Mills.

Mr. John W. Pyle has purchased about forty-two acres of land in Worcester County.

Mr. Wilson K. Levering has purchased about 16 acres of land in Baltimore County.

The Title Guarantee & Trust Company examined and guaranteed the titles.

It is sometimes overlooked by purchasers of real estate that the land has been held by various people for nearly two hundred years, and has been transferred many, many times, by deeds, wills, mortgages, leases, subleases, foreclosures, etc.

A mistake in any one of the successive transfers may, in after years, let in long-forgotten claims of heirs, widows, creditors, ground rent owners, &c.

The sure protection is an examination and guarantee of title by the Title Guarantee Company.

The TITLE GUARANTEE COMPANY is now occupying its new offices on the first and second floors of the

CABINET SLATE STANDS

The Names Will Be Sent to the Senate Today.

Washington, March 4.—Secretary Tumulty announced today that President Wilson would hold an informal meeting tomorrow forenoon of the men whose names he will send to the Senate as members of his Cabinet. The Senate of the Sixty-third Congress will meet tomorrow at noon.

In the afternoon President Wilson will receive a delegation from Illinois, headed by Representative Graham, which will urge Mr. Wilson to consider the name of John Bell, of Chicago, to be commissioner of patents, and congressional delegations from Delaware and New Jersey.

President Wilson's cabinet is complete and it remains only to formally send the nominations to the Senate, either today, if the ceremonies permit, or else tomorrow. Until actually nominated, the list is unofficial, but the list is definitely accepted to be as follows:

Secretary of State—William Jennings Bryan, of Nebraska.

Secretary of Treasury—William G. McAdoo, of New York.

Secretary of War—Lindley M. Garrison, of New Jersey.

Attorney General—James McReynolds, of Tennessee.

Postmaster General—Representative Albert Burleson, of Texas.

Secretary of the Navy—Josephus Daniels, of North Carolina.

Secretary of the Interior—Franklin K. Lane, of California.

Secretary of Agriculture — David F. Houston, of Missouri.

Secretary of Commerce—Representative William C. Redfield, of New York.

Secretary of Labor—Representative William B. Wilson, of Pennsylvania.

The last nomination for Secretary of Labor is subject to the signing of the bill creating that portfolio, which is now in President Taft's hands.

BATTLE ON BORDER

A Second Sharp Encounter Between United States Cavalry and the Mexicans.

Douglas, Ariz., March 4.—A second skirmish occurred today between the Ninth Cavalry troops and Mexican federal soldiers from Agua Prieta, across the international border, one and one-half miles southeast of Douglas. Mexicans to the number of 50 fired on the border patrol at a distanc of 250 yards.

In answer to a hurry call Troops E and F and a machine gun platoon of the Ninth Cavalry were rushed to the place where the Mexicans had fired on the patrol squad. A rapid-firer was put in immediate operation in addition to a hot rifle fire.

The Mexicans returned the fire with spirit, but soon retreated to a line of trenches dug during the Madero revolution.

When they reached the trenches the firing ceased. Whether any Mexicans were killed or wounded is not known. Many of the American troopers were hit.

Colonel Guilfoyle took personal command of the troops at the scene of today's fighting, which was a repetition of the battle of Sunday, when Mexican federals and United States troops fought for a half hour over the international line. The American soldiers were drawn up this afternoon in a skirmish line awaiting further developments.

Each insisting that the troops of the other's command began the skirmish on Sunday, which was repeated this morning between Mexican federal troops from the Agna Prieta garrison and soldiers of the Ninth Cavalry, Colonel Guilfoyle and General Ojeda stood firmly on their declarations tonight.

The American Army officer said that his men will "shoot to kill" if the border patrol is interfered with. The Mexican general asserted that if it could be shown that his men did begin the firing he would execute any one guilty of beginning the trouble.

There has been no further firing on the border near here since this morning. The Ninth Cavalry patrol has been increased to full force, including the machine guns, stretching from Douglas to Forrest Station.

There is much excitement here. The city authorities consider establishing a special guard. There is an unusual number of Mexicans in the American town, and much excitement among them. The rebel messenger arrested on Sunday by United States troops was released today. Messages he carried have been sent to Washington.

RESCUED FROM FIRE

Dr. W. Seward Webb in Danger When Home Is Threatened.

New York, March 4.—Dr. W. Seward Webb, railroad man and financier, who has been ill for some time, was rescued today by his servants when a fire on the second story of his home on Fifth avenue, near Fifty-third street, threatened to reach his apartment. He was taken to the home of his son nearby, and tonight returned to the home when it was learned that the fire, which caused the loss of about $10,000, had not reached the living rooms.

Only two weeks ago John D. Rockefeller bought from Mrs. W. Seward Webb the residence in which the fire occurred today. The price paid was $1,250,000. Mr. Rockefeller purchased the property, which was a wedding gift to Mrs. Webb from her father, the late William H. Vanderbilt, to prevent it passing into the hands of investors and to protect his own home and that of his son, in the rear of the Webb home, from the invasion of business or apartment buildings.

THE NATION NOW UNDER A DEMOCRATIC PRESIDENT

MARYLAND IN THE LIMELIGHT

State Is Represented By Thousands

OVER 6000 IN PARADE

All the Organizations Given Rounds of Cheers.

AN OVATION TO VETERANS

Agnus and Leary Garrisons Were Well Represented—Old Fighters Marched as of Yore—Governor Goldsborough, Well Mounted, Was Acclaimed All Along the Line of March—Long Walt of the Baltimore Democratic Organization — Hopkins Students Share Honors.

Bureau of The Baltimore American,
1410 Pennsylvania Avenue,
Washington, March 4.

The most widespread, the longest and loudest cheers which came from the inauguration crowd today were bestowed on President Wilson, Vice President Marshall and W. J. Bryan; upon Governor Goldsborough, of Maryland; Mayor Preston, of Baltimore, the 2,000 Maryland militiamen, the 2,500 and more Baltimore Democrats and, in fact, on every feature of the parade that had a Maryland coloring.

This demonstration came spontaneously, not only from the thousands upon thousands of Washingtonians and visitors from afar, but also from the thousands of Marylanders who thronged the sidewalks, who filled the stands and who occupied windows and other vantage points along the route of the parade.

Marylanders were here, there, everywhere. Maryland colors vied with Princeton colors, the two almost identical, in the badges, rosettes, small flags and hatbands. From Baltimore, from every town, village and hamlet came a continuous throng from 7 o'clock in the morning until after the noon hour, on railroad trains, in trolley cars, in steamboats, in automobiles and in nondescript horse vehicles.

OVER 6,000 MARYLANDERS.

Over 6,000 Marylanders participated in the inaugural procession. They were the Governor and his staff, the three regiments of militia, Troop A, Baltimore organization Democrats, a Democratic club from Hyattesville, Grand Army veterans, Knights of Pythias and Elks from Baltimore, Naval Reserves and Johns Hopkins students.

Among the most conspicuous garrisons with the Army and Navy Union in the big parade were the Gen. Felix Agnus Garrison No. 42, and Rear Admiral Richard P. Leary Garrison No. 60, both of Baltimore. The old veterans of the war between the States made a striking appearance as they paraded like men many years their junior. Along the line of march they were frequently cheered by the throngs on the sidewalks.

The new campaign caps with cord and tassel recently adopted by the Admiral Leary Garrison were worn for the first time. The remainder of the uniforms of both garrisons was the regulation dress regalia of the veterans. Whether it was the music or their enthusiasm, witnesses could not tell, but the old men who had stood at the firing line of battle marched with a gait which many of the young soldiers lacked.

They had not forgotten the drillings of the former days, either, and kept their lines as straight as any in the parade with the exception of the soldiers of the regular army. The men, many of whom are far up in years, were loudly cheered for their spirit in taking part in the affair. The veterans arrived in Washington early in the morning and were entertained at the Army and Navy Club. Shortly after the parade they left on trains of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad for their homes.

GOVERNOR CHEERED.

Governor Goldsborough was astride a beautiful black horse, graceful and lively. The animal is one of the many of its kind owned by the Baltimore Police Department. The Governor was cheered to the echo as he rode down Pennsylvania avenue and past the President's stand.

Members of his staff, in blue uniforms bedecked with gold, were well mounted. Plaudits were bestowed loudly and lustily on the First, Fifth and Fourth Regiments, and on the Naval Reserves led by Commodore Ralph Brinson.

The Baltimore organization Democrats, with Mayor Preston as chief marshal, had to wait on Capitol Hill for over five hours until they received the order to fall into line. It was a long, tiresome and tedious wait, but the Democrats were cheerful and happy. Darkness was approaching when they started, but the electric lights gleamed brilliantly. The Baltimoreans marched under the arched lights which extend from the beginning to the end of the parade route. The Johns Hopkins students got into the line ahead of the Princeton undergraduates. They received an ovation.

ON GOOD BEHAVIOR.

The Baltimore Elks and Knights of Pythias were conspicuous by their emblematic decorations. The brass band of St. Mary's Industrial School created a furor.

Next to Dixie the greatest ovation was given Maryland, My Maryland, which every band played at some stage of the day's proceedings.

The thousands upon thousands of Marylanders who witnessed the procession were well behaved, orderly and interested. The police records of Washington do not tonight reveal the arrest of a single Marylander. These thousands are tonight

Woodrow Wilson Inaugurated Under Inspiring and Auspicious Circumstances

TAFT PLEDGES HIS SUPPORT AS A CITIZEN

The Greatest Crowd in History Cheers the New Chief Executive on His Ride to and From the Capitol and Applauds His Stirring Sentences. Mrs. Wilson and the Misses Wilson Enthusiastic.

INAUGURAL ADDRESS KEYNOTES

We have been proud of our industrial achievements, but we have not hitherto stopped thoughtfully enough to count the human cost.

There has been something crude and heartless and unfeeling in our haste to succeed and be great.

We have come now to the sober second thought. We have made up our minds to square every process of our national life again with the standard we so proudly set up at the beginning and have always carried at our hearts. Our work is a work of restoration.

There can be no equality or opportunity, the first essential of justice in the body politic, if men and women and children be not shielded in their lives, their very vitality, from the consequences of great industrial and social processes which they cannot alter, control, or singly cope with.

This is not a day of triumph; it is a day of dedication. Here muster, not the forces of party, but the forces of humanity.

I summon all honest men, all patriotic, all forward-looking men, to my side. God helping me, I will not fail them, if they will but counsel and sustain me!

Bureau of The Baltimore American,
1410 Pennsylvania Avenue,
Washington, March 4.

Woodrow Wilson, the twenty-eighth President of the United States, is sleeping tonight in the White House, the threshold of which he crossed for the first time today.

William Howard Taft, now ex-president of the United States, is speeding Southward with Mrs. Taft for Augusta, Ga., where they will spend a fortnight as the guest of the city which was their home prior to Judge Taft's inauguration as President four years ago. After his vacation in the South the former president will take up his duties as Kent Professor of Law at Yale.

Under the dome of the nation's Capitol, in the presence of a countless, cheering concourse of his fellow-citizens, the new President raised a hand toward a prophetic sun that burst through dissolving clouds and pronounced the occasion a day of dedication; not of triumph.

It was an intensely human, precedent-breaking inauguration. With members of his chosen Cabinet surrounding him, the Justices of the Supreme Court before him, his wife and daughters actually dancing for joy on the platform below and William Howard Taft, ex-president of the nation at his side, the new President shouted a summons to all "honest, patriotic, forward-looking men" to aid him, extending the promise that he would not fail them in the guidance of their government.

While the President's concluding inaugural words were tossing in tumultuous waves of applause, the retiring president clasped his hand and enlisted as a patriotic servant in the ranks of private citizenship.

"Mr. President," said Mr. Taft, his face beaming with a broadening smile, "I wish you a successful administration and the carrying out of your aims. We will all be behind you."

"Thank you," said President Wilson, and he turned to shake the hand of his secretary of state, William Jennings Bryan. There they stood—Taft, standardbearer of a vanquished party after sixteen years of power; Bryan, persistent plodder of progressive Democracy, thrice defeated, accepting a commission from a new chieftain, and Wilson, the man of the hour, victorious, mustering, as he expressed it, "not the forces of party, but the forces of humanity."

It was a political picture far beyond imaginings of a few years gone by, a setting that stirred the souls of the assembled hosts, whose cheering at the scene seemed actually to reverberate from the distant Virginia hills.

INSPIRED BY TIGER CHEER.

The military and civic pageant that followed this climax of the historic day was more than five hours passing in review. Leaving Capitol Hill at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, the last of marching thousands had not doffed their colors to the President in the Court of Honor until long after darkness had fallen.

President Wilson stood for more than an hour under the glare of brilliant electric lights as he greeted thousands in the long line, among them the host of Princeton students, who as they passed before him shouted a hearty greeting that he never can forget.

The music of the bands, the glitter of the gilded uniforms and all the enthusiasm in the pageant that had gone before had stirred him again and again, but the sight of this cheering student army was to President Wilson an inspiration that brought cherished memories and joyous tears. Not long after the boys from Old Nassau had passed he turned from the human panorama and entered the White House to grasp the wheel of the ship of state.

INAUGURATION CEREMONIES.

Ceremonies in the Senate Chamber which marked the dying of the Sixty-second and the vitalizing of the new Sixty-third Congress, embracing the inauguration of Vice President Marshall and the swearing in of the senators-elect, were never more impressive. Though delayed somewhat by the course of legislation, necessitating turning back half an hour the hands of the clock, the interest was tense.

The procession into the chamber of the members of the House of Representatives, ambassadors and ministers of foreign countries in all their brilliant regalia, the Chief Justice and justices of the Supreme Court in their sombre robes, the Vice President-elect, President Taft, and the President-elect side by side, escorted by the members of the Congressional Inaugural Committee, was an awe-inspiring spectacle.

When all had taken their places and the members of the new Cabinet had been seated in the rear of the room, Mr. Marhsall took the oath of office, administered by Senator Gallinger, at exactly 12:45 o'clock. He then delivered his inaugural address, in which

CEREMONY OF THE INAUGURAL

Proceedings of the Day in Detail

THE TWO PRESIDENTS

Wilson and Marshall Are Formally Sworn In.

IT WAS A STRENUOUS DAY

President-elect Wilson Begins the Day's Proceedings by Driving to the White House, Where He Is Greeted by President Taft, Whose Sunny Smile Broadens Throughout the Day—The Induction of Marshall Delayed by a Filibuster In the Senate—Wilson Takes the Oath of Office.

Washington, March 4.—Three hours before the ceremonies at the Capitol were scheduled to begin the entire east front ws pcked with a crowd which seemed to be patient, good natured and content to wait. Sscenes about the Shoreham Hotel and the White House became more active at the morning wore on.

Shortly after 9 o'clock William Jennings Bryan, who is slated to be Secretary of State, called with William F. McCombs, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, to see Mr. Wilson. The President-elect greeted both with a hearty welcome, and the three men went into a conference in Wilson's room.

After his conference with Mr. Bryan Mr. Wilson came out of his room to meet the newspaper correspondents. He was wearing a frock coat and a rose-colored tie. He said he had been informed by congressional leaders that the business of the extra session would be ready by April 1, but added that the date was subject to change.

At that time Senators Crane, Bacon and Overman and Representatives Rucker, McKinley and Garrett, the congressional committee in charge of the ceremonies, arrived ready to take Mr. Wilson and Mr. Marshall to the White House. Meanwhile the Culver Troop and the Essex Troop had lined up outside the hotel, and the Princeton and Virginia men formed a lane toward the Executive Mansion.

Secretary Tumulty meanwhile skipped across Lafayette Park and paid a short visit to the White House offices to find out when President Wilson's nominations should be sent to the Senate. It was decided that as the Senate would not be in session immediately after Mr. Wilson takes the oath, the nominations would be sent in tomorrow. The Cabinet slate, however, stands as announced last night.

At 9:45 Mr. Wilson and Mr. Marshall, accompanied by the congressional committee, left their hotel and began the short drive to the White House. The Culver and Essex Troops cantered along as their escort. The students of Princeton and Virginia, in long lines on either side of the street, fell in behind the procession and followed it to the White House.

The ride to the White House was finished between cheering lines of the students. The party whirled up the drive to find President Taft waiting to welcome the incoming President and Vice President on the front portico. The Princeton band played the Jungle song and the student body sang Old Nassau. The official party quickly passed into the White House, to await the beginning of the drive to the Capitol.

THE TWO PRESIDENTS

The Ride From the White House to the Capitol.

Washington, March 4.—President Taft, having in mind the incoming president's desire for simplicity, escorted him to the East Room of the White House instead of the Blue Room, which is the formal reception place of dignitaries. Here Mr. Taft and Mr. Wilson chatted, and Mr. Taft's well-known smile was much in evidence.

The stay in the White House was brief. At 10:17 o'clock the ride to the Capitol began. In the first carriage were President Taft and Mr. Wilson, Mr. Taft occupying the right-hand seat. With them were Senators Crane and Bacon. In the second carriage Mr. Marshall sat at Senator Overman's right. Represent-
