Science Makes Rapid Strides In Varieties

Shore-Grown Fruits And Vegetables Being Improved Through Genetics

Science has played a major role in development of flavor and size as well as the yield of the fruit and produce raised by Eastern Shore farmers during the last ten years.

Within another decade continued improvement in strain is expected. through genetics, varieties are being mixed and already fruit and vegetables are being developed for commercial growing under new widentities.

Ten years ago cantaloupes were afflicted periodically by a mildew that caused the meat to resemble that of a leathery cucumber. Then, according to "Popular Science", a plant scientist discovered a relative of the melon family in India that was practically useless except for a strong resistance to mildew. As a result of long breeding progress this quality was joined with all the desirable features of the old cantaloupe in a new strain of fruit. Today the melon is tastier and is highly resistant to mildew blight.

Common vegetables like peas and potatoes still look the same but we are growing improved strains that didn't exist a decade ago. Scientific plant breeding is continually creating new varieties of commercial plants that are larger, better flavored, more resistant to disease, and of better keeping qualities for the long haul from farm to retail store.

Today tomatoes have been developed to a state that they will resist nearly all of the old diseases that attacked them.

New lettuce varieties escape the slime and wilt disease that were periodic menaces, and even a threat to the green onion industry has been eliminated by developing an onion that produces leaves instead of rolled stalk above ground, thus removing the hiding place of parasite insects. Another innovation is corn that grows on small thin cobs, enabling "corn on the cob" to be marketed in tin cans.

Improvements like these are the achievements of genetics. Meanwhile the hybridizers have created a startling array of new plants that no one ever dreamed about before. Things like the garlion that is a cross between the garlic and the onion, the topeppo that combines the tomato and pepper, the odorless onion and odorless cabbage, and the lemon cucumber that grows on a vine but looks like a lemon, are all new vegetables. Yard-long string beans are on the market, a colorless carrot is available, and stringless, better flavored "Utah" celery grows in the West.

Kitchen Maid Prize Novelist

New York—Sally Salminen, a kitchen maid or servant to the other household servants, has won first place with her first novel, "Katrina" in a contest sponsored by Finnish publishers. Besides the glory and future royalties her prize amounted to 50,000 Finmarks, worth $1,100.

Not So Sure?

London—Although the time for the coronation of Edward VIII is steadily growing shorter Lloyd's has cut down the original 20 to 1 odds that the cronation would not be postponed down to 5 t 1.

Presenting the phenomenal facts about GULFPRIDE
THE WORLDS FINEST MOTOR OIL

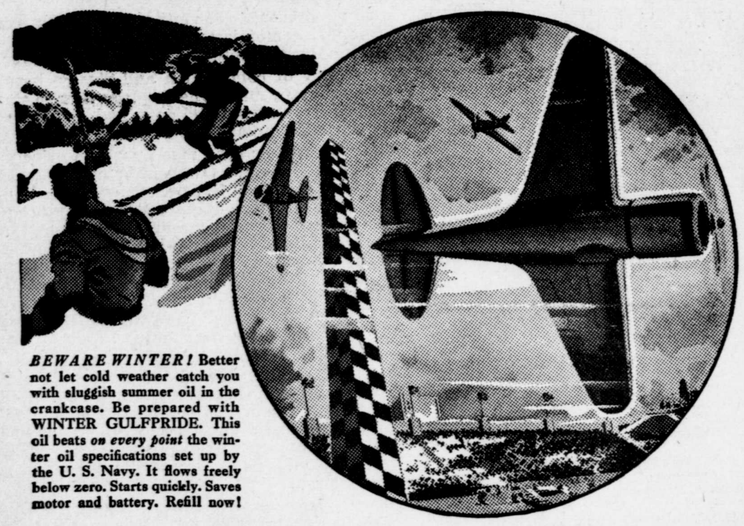
THE facts on this page sound hard to believe. But here is the reason why GULFPRIDE—and only GULFPRIDE—can accomplish such results . . .

Gulf begins with selected Pennsylvania crude, refines it to a motor oil that equals the best—then further refines it by the exclusive Alchlor process.

Only GULFPRIDE is made by this process—result of 15 years' research—the same scientific research that has made every Gulf product a leader.

Read the facts below. Then drain your dirty summer-worn oil and refill with WINTER GULFPRIDE now. At all Gulf dealers.

AN AMAZING TEST. Bottle No. 1 shows a mixture of 6 famous Pennsylvania motor oils. Bottle No. 2 shows them after being put through Gulf's Alchlor process. Bottle No. 3 shows the 20% waste removed from these already highly-refined oils by the Alchlor process. This process starts where others stop! That's why GULFPRIDE is the world's finest motor oil.



BEWARE WINTER! Better not let cold weather catch you with sluggish summer oil in the crankcase. Be prepared with WINTER GULFPRIDE. This oil beats on every point the winter oil specifications set up by the U. S. Navy. It flows freely below zero. Starts quickly. Saves motor and battery. Refill now!

TOPS IN THE AIR—8 out of the 11 winners in last year's National Air Races used GULFPRIDE OIL, the identical oil you can buy for your car at any Gulf dealer. This "aviator's oil" will take you farther before you need to add a quart than any oil you ever used!
