MR. EDITOR: In the Cambridge Chronicle of the 5th inst. there appeared a regular docket entry, without provocation or even the form of a trial, against a private individual who has always believed in the Constitution and laws, as established by the blood of our Revolutionary Fathers, that all men were born free and equal, and that our private, religious and political opinions &c., were held and deemed sacred from attack by any political newspaper editor. The piece alluded to was "Practice vs. Theory,"—A man who by theory opposed the U. States Bank by practice is now issueing shin plasters, is about the substance of the piece, as understood by one who has no knowledge of Grammar, &c., owing to the misfortune of poverty, caused by the great loss sustained by his family in paper money, issued with promises to pay and never redeemed in goods or any other articles at a fair value. For a handkerchief, say $80, &c. was the price demanded at one time, and finally no amount would purchase any article of small value. No person in this place who reads the Chronicle could mistake who was intended to be cut at by the piece alluded to. Now some of the editor's friends hold stock in the U. S. Bank—I war not against them or any other individual. I have my opinions and sentiments and hold them not for the hope of gain. I am no office holder or seeker.—I am no candidate for election this fall and never think of offering, and would not go to Annapolis to legislate were I sure that I could go with a majority of 500 votes at the approaching election. The editor seems very sensitive at the idea of cunning and deception used by Justice. The piece would not have appeared if I had been let alone, as I am not in the habit of troubling the types, for the very reason that I unfortunately lack education, which perhaps would not have been the case, had my friends enjoyed the benefit derived from office holding.

I was aware that two or three persons had prescribed my business for opinion sake which gave me no uneasiness, as their influence would not take far with men of correct moral habits,—but the editor of the Chronicle was among the last men in the county I should have expected an attack from—for I know no reason why he could wisi to gratify the smiles of a few vulgar minds at my expense, for I do not believe that his political friends would justify the attact thus made. As to those who rejoiced in the victory of the British arms during the late war with England, it was not expected that they would forgive old Hickory for the drubbing given to their English friends at N. Orleans. It would not require argument to prove that all such would war against the old Hero as a matter of course.

JUSTICE.

MAINE—The election to Congress of J. C. Noyes (Whig) from the Washington & Hancock district (of which there is little doubt) completes the delegation from that State—which stands, 6 Republicans to 2 Whigs, as formerly—the Republican gain of a member in Jeremiah Raily,) compensating for the loss in the H. and W. district, where the Van Buren party divided upon two of their candidates.—Albany Argus.

ALABAMA ELECTION.—We have a few additional returns of the election in Alabama, all of which are highly favourable. In Baldwin cnunty the votes were for Bagby 511, and for Oliver 194, in one precinct in Washington county Bagby 18, Oliver 3; in Monroe county Bagby 198, Oliver 85; in Clark county Bagby 140, Oliver 21. Mr. Bagby is the administration candidate, and Oliver of the opposition. Mr. Lyon still continues to lead very considerably Mr. Baylor, and is no doubt elected.

QUITE A DILEMMA.—We learn from the Hartford Courier, that a young man in Tolland County, Connecticut, is desperately in love with a young woman; and she is as desperately in love with him. This is no uncommon posture of affairs, but there are circumstances about the case rather 'out of the ordinary.' The young woman was some time ago 'bound out' by the town authorities to the brother of her lover, and there are yet two whole long years which the indenture has to run. The master in law is determined to have his bond—the husband that is to be is clamorous for his wife. The only compromise offered by the holder of the indentures is that the lover should pay him a hundred dollars for the unexpired term of service. The girl is amiable, pretty, and accomplished, and the editor of the Courier considers her a good bargain at a hundred dollars, even in these hard times. Furthermore, the gallant editor offers to raise the money if the husband will give him a bond and mortgage on the property as security for repayment. If there is not a hundred dollars in Connecticut, we'll go half the loan, upon the same terms and forward the fifty in Connecticut one dollar bills.—N. Y. Sun.

Durable Road.—The road made by Appius, the censor, from Rome to Terracina, and afterwards continued to Brundusium, is still, after twenty-three centuries, one of the most remarkable monuments of Roman power and greatness.

A Revival of Business in New York.—The Mercantile Advertiser of yesterday remarks—"Our streets, in the business part of the city, which for the last four months have appeared almost like promenades—so free were they of encumbrance by boxes, bales and casks, we are happy to state, "now are them selves again"—piles of dry dood in boxes and bales—bales of cotton, casks of hardware, and other articles of merchandize, now cover those side walks, which were so long without their legimate tenants, and the smiling looks of the cartman, as they rattle over the pavements—and the cheering song of the stevedores taking goods into vessels bound to the North, South, East and West, imparts to the well wisher for the prosperity of our city, a cheerfulness and life, we are happy, very happy to see."

His TABLE will at all times be furnished with the best the market will afford. His BAR is now, and will continue to be, stocked with pure and unadulterated Liquors, of every variety; to attend in which he has procured the valuable services of Mr. Thomas Smith, who will always be ready to administer to the comforts of visiters. To attend his STABLES, he has careful and experienced Ostlers, which, together with his personal knowledge of the character and habits of that most valuable of animals, will, he flatters himself, afford ample assurance that all horses left in his charge will be well attended to. The House, in the course of the ensuing summer, will undergo a thorough repair, and be very considerably enlarged.

The advantages of its location must be acknowledged by all who visit it; for, while it is in the middle of the village, it is yet retired and quiet, standing on a fine airy situation, about equal distant from either end of the town.

The undersigned pledges himself to his patrons that his efforts to render their sojourn with him agreeable, shall be unremitting, and that nothing shall be left undone to accomplish that object; he, therefore, respectfully solicits a share of the patronage of an enlightened public.
