CAMBRIDGE:

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 19, 1838.

To our Patrons.—This Paper has now been in operation nearly three years, and at a good deal of expense we have carried and still continue to carry it on. So far, we have received but little compensation for our trouble and disbursments.—Nominally this press has been well sustained. We have a large amount due us, from our subscribers and others, but in sums so small from each debtor, as to seem but of trifling consequence to them, and therefore we suppose they think it but of little importance whether they pay or not. This, perhaps, is the best apology we can make for the tardiness of some of our customers. They should recollect however, as Franklin said, "every little makes a mickle," and if they were all to pay, we should have a good round sum of money to defray the expenditures of our establishment, which we have made and continue to make, out of our own private purse. Believing it was only necessary to appoint an agent to call upon those indebted, and that they would promptly pay according to the dictates of their conscience, we have authorized Mr. Wilson to collect for us, but we are sorry to say, from information derived through him, that some that he has called upon seem to take it quite in dudgeon, talk of stopping their paper and all that sort of thing. We refrain at present from publishing the names of such, but we must be permitted to express our antonishment and indignation at such inexcusable conduct. Ought not men to pay their just debts? Is it honest not to pay debts fairly contracted? We hope upon reflection, all such will be convinced of the impropriety of their conduct. Such hardened sinners as will not pay, and shew no disposition, we shall try the strength of the law upon. Those that do not intend to settle the sooner we are clear of them the better.—We will sift the wheat from the chaff.—Many we have no doubt have omitted to make payment more from neglect than otherwise—Such when called on will settle.

We cannot conclude without returning our thanks to those who have honorably adjusted their liabilities, or have punctually paid when requested. And at the same time, we must express our utter disgust at those who clamor because called on to pay. We have enough good patrons to sustain us, we believe, and we shall continue to conduct our paper as heretofore, regardless of the backwardness of those, who never expect to settle. The sooner such withdraw their names, the better. We feel independent enough, to go on without the mere nominal encouragement of such.

There is very little news of importance at present.

The War in Canada, seems in a great measure to have subsided, since the evacuation of Navy Island, by the patriot insurgents.

The Hon. Henry A. Muhlenberg has been appointed Minister to Russia.

It seems to be admitted on all hands, that the Reform Bill, will pass the House of Delegates, with scarcely an opposing voice. It has already passed the Senate.

The Senate of the United States, are discussing the merits of the Sub-Treasury Bill, reported by Mr. Wright the Chairman of the Committee on Finance. It will pass that body, we have no doubt.

The friends of the Administration in the City of New York have had a great meeting, and passed some very spirited resolutions. They are warmly in favor of the Sub-Treasury Scheme, and utterly opposed to the present ruinous measures of the Banks.

Small Pox.—We have heard of no new cases of this awful disease, in this county.

The Committee upon the Banks in this State, have not as yet, made their report to the Legislature.

If people would generally study more, and eat and drink less, they would find it more conducive to their health and also to the welfare of their pockets.

It is not the possesion of wealth that makes one happy, but a contented mind.

All partial evil, says Pope, is universal good. 'Tis a wise man that understands the force of this remark.

MARRIED,

In Delaware by the Rev. Mr. ——, Mr. Henry C. Rawlins, of this county, to Miss Elizabeth Martin, of Delaware.

HEALTH COMFORT AND ECONOMY.

It is well known by many that Feathers absorb the dampness from the surrounding atmosphere, also matters exuding from bodies occupying the beds, therefore rendering them unpleasant and liable to engender disease.—The above mentioned process is found by experience to purify feathers under all circumstances and add much to the preservation and wear of feathers.

The subscriber has his machine now in Cambridge, and the public are respectfully invited to call and see his machine in operation. A bed sent to the machine in the morning can be returned in the evening in perfect order for use. Those wishing work done must apply immediately. L. PECK.
