CAMBRIDGE:

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 26, 1838.

MR. GRASON'S RESOLUTIONS.—We publish in another column these resolutions, which were offered in the House of Delegates on Wednesday the 14th inst. We are apprehensive that the House is too much affected with National Bankism, to endorse the doctrines embraced in them. Their spirit and drift evince the able and comprehensive mind of the talented author. As the same time, they manifest a republican tone of feeling to which a majority of the House we are confident are total strangers. These resolutions however are nothing but truisms, and they cannot be successfully controverted. Why should this state give life and breath to corporations—to Banks, and at the same time have not the power to control them, but place herself under the necessity of soliciting a National Bank, to protect her citizens from the offspring, to which she has given birth? There is no reason in such a creed as that. The state can and ought to take care of her own interests, and not suffer herself to be placed at the foot-stool of the Rag Barons, created by herself, and who recklessly ride over her rough shod, whenever caprice, or exclusive interest prompts such a course. The old ship Maryland has for sometime past, been spell-bound by the political mushroom conjurers of party fanaticism, but she is about to be disenchanted. She will yet majestically sail forth on the broad sea of equal rights, but she must first throw overboard, the depredating crew, who have so long had the command of her. Overboard with them! is the word, for if they are not tossed over we shall all be engulphed together.

THE NEW YORK RESOLUTIONS will be found in another part of our paper. They are the genuine effusions of the Democratic Republicans of that city, who, without reserve, support the present National Administration, in opposition to the lawless outrages of the Banks, and the overweening efforts of overgrown monopolies to make money out of the sweat and toil of the producing classes. They are worthy of the descendants of the old Knickerbockers. The Conservatives, (who are whigs in disguise, and tinctured with indomitable prejudices in favor of a National Bank, or a batch of Banks of the State genus,) lately had a meeting in the city of N. York, and have ushered forth their resolutions as the true and unsophisticated product of the Democracy of that city. They have been sent far and wide to deceive the friends of the Administration. They have been franked by the whig Senators and Representatives, and transmitted in every direction. Such trickery won't answer.—The people are not to be deceived.—They can distinguish between the legerdemain of city political hacks and the natural and full flowing sentiments of the true republicans of the country.

We have the pleasure to announce to our friends, that the Reform Bill has passed both branches of the Legislature and is now a part of the Constitution of the State. The news of this result reached here on the 21st inst., and the redoubtable reformers fired a salute of 19 guns, in honor of the resolute 19 Van Buren electors, by whose firmness we have no doubt, this reformation has been mainly effected. The obsequies of the old constitution were thus observed. She has been decently buried, and a new constitution more worthy of the spirit of the age, is now the fundamental law of Maryland. It Is a glorious consummation. We must now go to work to carry the state and rescue her from the hands of the Goths & Vandals who have so long ruled her destiny. They were forced by the demands of the people, to vote for this change in her organic law. We doubt not it went against the grain, for in assenting to this measure, they have measurably given up the ship. Our friends, the Reformers, will now make a successful effort to take the reins from the whigs. There will be a convention in Baltimore, as the most central place, probably in June for the purpose of comparing notes, and selecting a candidate for Governor who is, as he ought, to be elected by the people. The sooner we adopt our concerted plans the better. The whigs are already disconcerted, & with proper exertions, we shall disenthral the state, from the Iron grasp of the despots, who tyrannized over her. Let every freeman be at his post, perform his duty and the first Wednesday in next October when the election takes place, will be one of glorious victory. We say to our friends, onwards, onwards. Let no one prove recreant or dispirited, if he does, he will be anathma maranatha.

THE SPY IN WASHINGTON.—A whig letter writer, who uses the signature of the 'Spy in Washington" being the same man who wrote the life of Burr, whose he excuses and eulogizes, and the effusions of whom spleen we often see in the various whig papers, has got himself into a scrape, by some of the tales he has fabricated. The name of this Spy, is Davis. We have published to day, the speech of Mr Duncan in Congress, who has portrayed the character of this Spy in the most severe colors. He has literally roasted him It will thus be seen, what sort of men, manufacture dishes to suit the taste sf the morbid whigs—Men without character, and without truth, pennyless rascals who often set better men by the ears, and who make most of the mischief of the day. Get up panicks, create alarm, and disturb the peace of the community, merely to fill their own pockets. We commend Duncan's speech to the whigs, who have been swallowing the fabrications of this spy, for gospel.

For the Dorchester Aurora.

TO MISS ——

I knew her when the dawning years
Of childhood deck'd her circling brow,
When like the rose just budding forth,
Her charms were but a promised show:—
Her image waxed both bright and fair,
As days and months roll'd ceaseless on,
Her heart was buoyant as the air,—
And radiant as the morning sun.

I knew her when in youth's bright morn,
A flowret still more fair she grew—
The rose-bud sipp'd the noonday rays,
And burst her hidden charms to view;
'Twas thus this sweet retiring maid
First glanced upon the passing swain;
And oft within the silent shade,
She sighed to join the social train.

I knew her when in riper years,
Her form disclosed a model rare;
And when she smiled—her looks so sweet—
The graces joyed to revel there;
Her brilliant eyes, like twinkling stars,
Would shed abroad each speaking glance,
Her golden locks, unloosed their stays,
Would o'er her polished forehead dance.

Her mouth, whose gently pouting lips
Caught every youth's admiring gaze,
Was but excell'd by blushing cheeks
That far out shone Sol's evening rays;
Her beauteous form and graceful mein,
Has captured many a feeling heart,
And he that meets her fond embrace,
Is sure to feel a cupid's dart.

FEATHER DRESSING.

THE inhabitants of Cambridge and its vicinity are respectfully informed that the subscribers have put in operation, at their Steam Mill, in Cambridge, a MACHINE, for extracting the Gasses and all impure substances from New Feathers, and cleansing the dust and filth from old and worn feathers, while the operation restores them to lightness and elasticity. The beds sent to the Machine in the morning, may be returned at night in perfect order for use. The public are invited to call and examine the machine, which will be in operation about three months. All orders sent, promptly attended to.

The following names among many of the citizens of Cambridge bear testimony to the merits of the renovating process.

TEMPERANCE NOTICE.

Mr. Barrow,

SIR: I wish through your paper to suggest to the friends of Temperance, in this county, the propriety and utility of renewing the "County Temperance Society," according to a proviso made by said Society, held in the town of Cambridge, July, 1835. I conceive it to be the grand means of prompting to action and industry the several neighborhood societies throughout the county; and the means by which the friends of Temperance are more closely united, embodied in firmer phalanx, and, as a natural consequence, more successful. I wish some friend of the Temperance cause would name a suitable time for a meeting of the friends of said cause, to make arrangements to renew said county society.

Having just commenced the business on his own responsibility, he hopes his friends and the public, will give him a liberal support.

Samuel Griffin and Eliza his wife and Caleb Griflin and Eliza his wife. vs Levin Griffin and others.	IN CHANCERY, 18th Oct. 1837.

The object of the Bill filed in this cause is to obtain a Decree for the sale of the Real Estate wherof Nathan Griffin of Dorchester County died siezed, the same not being susceptible of division.

The Bill states that the said Nathan Griffin deceased was in his lifetime seized and possessed of certain Real Estate That prior to his death he executed his last Will and Testament, by which he devised said real estate to be equally divided between his children and their descendants that is, the descendant or descendants of a child, to represent their deceased parent.
