shall endure, or until it shall cease to be pursued by the sighs, tears and undying curses of the houseless mothers and orfed children who have been made the deluded victims of the guilty misrule of that fraudulent institution.

Resolved, That we view the passage of the odious "INDEMNITY BILL" as a laboured deed of hard earned infamy; as characteristic of our minority rulers to oppress the people; as a most wicked violation of our Bill of Rights, and a determination to impose on the honest abourer and useful citizen, a most unjust law. And we hereby invite the fixed attention of the people of the land to this unholy act, as clearly demonstrating the principles and doings of Maryland whiggery.

THE FRENCH INDEMNITY.

The Paris dates received at New York are to the 25th March. It is said that on the 19th of March Messrs. Rothschild had applied to the agents of the Havre Packets for the freight of specie, being the first two instalments under the French Indemnity Treaty.

According to the New York Times, a letter has been received from the house of Rothschild, our financial agents in France, stating that they had been informed by the Minister of France that all the instalments now due under the Treaty of Indemnification would be paid over in twenty days from that time.

The Paris Messenger of the 23d says, "It was yesterday reported on Change, says a Journal, that the Treasury had already paid the instalments, of the indemnity to the United States, which are already due."

It is stated that the Texian Commissioners have effected a loan in New York of a considerable amount. On the first day $100,000 were subscribed.

The New Orleans Bee gives a rumor that the U. S. Troops stationed on the frontier of Texas have deserted and joined the Texians. Doubtful.

COMMODORE HULL.—This veteran commander, the pioneer of our glory, is on furlough making a tour in the Mediterranean with his family. At Maltaw here he arrived in February last, a few days after his proud ship "old Ironsides" had touched there, he was treated by the British officers in the fleet and garrison—among whom, by a singular coincidence, was Capt. Dacres, in command of a 74—with a degree of courtesy and ceremony from the Admiral downwards, which a royal prince might have envied. Dacres called on him almost every day, and showed him about as a lion. This was magnanimous and worthy of a British heart and gallant officer.

The resolution authorising the President to take measures to secure the Smithson Bequest was adopted by the U. S. Senate on Saturday last ayes 31 nays 6. It was supposed as unconstitutional, by Messrs. Calhoun and Preston.

Communicated for the Whig.

MR. SHERWOOD,—I am informed that the General Assembly of Maryland meets again on the fourth Monday in this month. Well, sir, for what purpose? To gratify the friends of the great Internal Improvement Bill, that was virtually lost, by the last grave act of our most wise and sapient legislators. Why was not that Bill brought up for consideration at an earlier period than it was? Why, in fact, was not the report of the committee made at an earlier day? Was their method in this trickery, for trickery it evidently was, or was it actually delayed for want of data? One would suppose that Mr. Wm. D. Merrick, the chairman of that committee, would not have required much time or labor, to say what appropriation was requisite for cleaning and draining Piscataway creek and Tachia swamp in Charles County, when it appears this farm is contiguous to it; and which swamp will require only $216,000 to drain it, according to the opinion of the State engineer! Pray sir, who is benefitted by this appropriation? First, Wm. D. Merrick, Chairman of the Committee of Ways and Means; second, a widow lady, and some other individual whose farms are situated somewhere thereabouts!

"O consistency, thou art fled to brutish beasts,
And men have lost their reason!"

Nothing, Mr. Editor, would afford me greater pleasure than to see the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road speedily completed, and I am even willing to give my feeble aid in support of any exclusive measure to this great and highly important work; though I believe the State is under greater obligations to complete the Canal.

But sir, the special Session. The first, I believe, that has ever been required in Maryland. And why an extra Session? Was it to give the members a breathing spell, and an opportunity to consult the will of their constituents? I presume it was. But he it recollected that the time occupied by Reverdy Johnson's Counsel at the Bar of the House, would have been more than sufficient for all the gentlemen to have blown off their scant oratory upon the great bill (and truly great it is) that requires their deliberation at an extra session. If this bill pass, it is done in the very teeth of a contingency; and should that contingency occur (a failure in reimbursing) the State becomes the bearer of the burthen, and the people directly taxed to redeem her pledged and forfeited faith. Every foot of ground in Maryland will groan with the load, and the poor verily become poorer indeed!

The session already held was about one hundred days; the number of Laws excessively great, and no doubt perplexing enough, taking the Magistrates' Court Bill for a sample, and how constitutional let the Indemnity Act speak! I think $600 a day would scarcely pay the expenses of the Assembly, but of this I am not certain having nothing more than a few facts upon which to found my calculation. Here is a display of 'spoils,' which added to the liberality which characterise many of their acts, show them to be at least not so frugal as they would appear to be wise.

The Improvement Bill is not a party matter; for the State is divided in opinion as it is effected in interest. But if we look at the acts done under the ruling dynasty of poor degenerate Maryland, we would have the world to know that Whiggery is the ruling planet in our legislative orbit. The Legislature has gone on creating moneyed institutions, and its committee of Ways and Means proposed plan after plan for the constructions of a number of Canals and Rail Roads and cleansing of swamps, and by way of providing the means for their accomplishment, recommends to the State to BORROW the enormous sum of TEN MILLIONS OF DOLLARS, which at six per centum would amount to the annual sum of SIX HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS! upon the property of the Farmers and Mechanics! Mr. Editor, this is a startling fact, & well worthy of the sober reflection of every man in the State. The committee in looking at our bankrupt Treasury, quietly obviates the difficulty it presents by waiting the simple word "borrow!" And what is the consequent result upon this borrowing. Again I repeat the property of our Farmers and Mechanics become pledged for the faith of the loan, and in the event of a contingency, the property of the farmers and mechanics will have to pay the amount.

We have had sufficient warning, how far these public servants of the people will tramper with their trusts, therefore, let the people read, reflect, and boldly speak. The poorest man among us, is in power superior to him in whom he but delegates his trust; because he is the fountain, the source from whence the power legitimately springs. His voice is potent, and his will is law! None will quietly acquiesce in seeing a trust that they have reposed and delegated into a fellow man, but for a space of time, limited and circumscribed, too grossly abused or wantonly subverted. Look to it, fellow citizens, for either or both of these, may be the end of unwise legislation.

Now could I, Cæsar, name to thee a man—
A man so mighty, that compared with him
In personal action, yet portentously grown,
And small
But we the while our fathers minds are dead,
And we are governed with our mothers spirit,
Our yoke and sufferance show us womanish!

A FARMER.

FREEMEN, BEWARE.

The Whigs, alias, the Federalists, are famous for their bug-bear stories, particularly just before the election. It has been their practice, ever since they have been known as a party, to resort to humbuggery, as their last effort, to keep the ascendency over the people. This has had a greater or less weight. That weak, timid minds should be influenced by their tales of "raw head and bloody bones," is not, perhaps, remarkable; but that men of sense should be operated upon by them, is strange—passing strange"—Of the hundred and one instances of this kind of deception, we will mention a few of the most prominent.—Just before the election of Mr. Jefferson, it was cried from one end of New England to the other, that, in case he should succeed all the meeting houses would be pulled down and the bibles destroyed. Strange as it may appear, this story was fully believed by many honest persons. Afterwards, when Mr. Jefferson purchased Louisiana, the same party so up a hue cry that the country was nothing but a worthless morass, and that the object of the administration was to aid the Emperor and Jacobin party of France. "Fifteen millions," it is said, "paid for useless territory, and to fill the coffers of Bonaparte." Nothing was more false, and men of all parties are now satisfied that the purchase of this very large and fine tract of country was one of the most fortunate events recorded in our annals. It gave us not only the lands, but the immense rivers leading to the west, and opened a passage to the sea for the vast productions of the whole western region.

But we need not go back to by-gone days. We all remember the late Panic Hamburg, got up for the same purpose by men who hunted largely in the old federal party. We all heard the declaration of one, that the President, a "Despot and Military Tyrant, had seized the purse and sword of the nation,"—of another, that "we are in the midst of a revolution,"—and of another, that "there are no Sabbaths in Revolutionary times." We all heard these declarations, and a thousand others equally terrifying. Were they true? Every one of them was false! Time, and a very short time, has proved to the people that all these sayings, together with the woful predictions connected with them, were totally false.—Bridgeport Republican Farmer.

OBITUARY.

Died in this county, near Easton, on Thursday 28th ult. WILLIAM, son of the late William T. Clarke, after a lingering illness in the 21st year of his age.—O! how painful it is to record the death of many virtues, even in hoary age, but how much more so to see pleasing and promising ones just as the germs of grace and virtue are ready to burst from each bud, to wither and die ere they reach maturity—such indeed seems to be the lamentable fate of the exemplary youth now slumbering in an early grave. When scarcely 11 years of age he was left an orphan, with a limited education, yet from assiduous application he soon grasped enough to form a common man; he spent his youthful leisure in reading & attending church, where he found a stream to satiate a pious thirst. He was much devoted to literature—and just as the present prospects of youthful improvement began to beat high with thoughts of future usefulness, the strings of every key was suddenly severed—yea the fell destroyer of mortality had singled him for a prey—and from the high strung bow flew unerring to his tender heart an arrow steeped in stern affliction, leaving its direful effects slowly to perform the office of execution—what must be the feelings of youth, when in apparent health inspired with a knowledge of approaching dissolution pressed by early consumption, 'tis beyond the mind accurately to conceive,—but when finding his health gradually waisting he repaired to the West, buoyed with the thought of restoration—but alas! disappointment was the reward of his journey, and after baffling of medical aid his kind physician flattered him no longer but frankly told him if he had any desire to see his friends he should take his departure immediately from Columbus, and pale and emaciated he travelled a long distance through inclement weather, to die in the bosoms of his friends.

Peace be to thy departed soul
Since here thou could'st no longer stay,
May it in heaven's high court swell
The chorus of an endless day.
