[illegible] as the foresters of Prince Georges, or the natives of the piney woods of Anne Arundel. Eastern Shoremen are a high and a ranting people and though they have the facilities, on which Dr. Claude and Mr. Pratt, so potentially insisted, it does not follow, that they should not have the additional facility of a rail road, which at the cost of a few millions would give them the choice of sending their wheat, corn, muttons, peaches and damsons, to market either by land or by water. Dr. Claude and Mr. Pratt would have placed Eastern Shoremen in a condition subordinate to the people of the Western Country, who will have their choice of land or water carriage, by the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal and the Baltimore Rail Road when they shall be ——— finished. Maryland legislators, ought to possess an accurate knowledge of the topography of the Eastern Shore, and if they have not the good fortune to be born there, so as to have it by nativity they ought to seek it by the best maps, and that Dr. Claude and Mr. Pratt, may be prepared for a future emergency, I take leave to recommend to them, one made some years ago by a little Frenchman, by the name of Charles Varley. The only defect in which is the omission of one river. The reason assigned by the little Frenchman, for he was good at reasons, was that there were so many rivers in the Peninsula, it was utterly impossible to place them all on one map.

I am pleased to learn, upon the authority of Gen. Emory, that, "T. A. Spence, Esq., is a young gentleman of much promise, and who may hereafter, be very useful to his State, if his unfortunate identity to the misguided, and selfish views of his own county, do not impede or defeat a career which otherwise promises fairly." Contracted notions ought to be shaken off by all men, who intend to run a high career. If Mr. Spence had looked into the Senate Chamber he might have seen illustrious examples of men, who, under enlarged views, act upon a great scale. Nothing so much expands the mind, or so soon destroys, "unfortunate identity," "a great travel," especially if it be on a rail road. Feeling some interest in Mr. Spence, as the summer grows hot and the musquitoes bite sharp, I recommend to him a tour to the North, for expansion and improvement, he might learn banking at Princess Anne, financiering at Easton, topography at Centreville, and finish off with Hydrostaticks at Millington.

It is entirely true as the General states, that the ignorant are generally arrogant, and for the truth of his apothegm, I refer him to his own county. If I be rightly informed certain ignorant men there, not only arrogantly opposed his great scheme of Internal Improvement, but most presumptuously insinuated darkly, that the General had doubled Point Folly.

The General seems to think, the project of a rail road from the cape, through the Eastern Shore counties of Virginia, to pass through Worcester, into Delaware, and then along the Delaware line, both alarming and detrimental to the interests of Maryland. I do not see why a rail road on the East side of the Delaware line should not afford to our people, the same facilities with one on the West. If the Generals object be "a great travel," a term to which he attaches much importance, it appears to my simple judgment, that a run through the whole Peninsula through on the East side of the Maryland line would better answer his purposes than to start from Watkins's point, ninety miles up the Bay. I should prefer a rail road on the East side of our line, at the cost of Virginia and Delaware to one, on the west at the cost of three or four millions to ourselves to be sure it would not be so magnanimous as to have a rail road of our own, and I am quite certain it would not be very agreeable to gentlemen who are looking for the crumbs which may fall from the table of the company. The President, Secretary, Treasurer and agents, with salaries from one to six thousand dollars, would feel themselves quite comfortable. If our million must be expended and a rail road is a hobby that Eastern Shore men are determined to ride, I think the public interest would be best consulted by laterals from our county Towns and navigable depots, to strike the Virginia and Delaware rail road.

If the rail road was made, according to the General's plan, thro' the Forrests of Somerset, Dorchester, Caroline and Queen Annes, I do not perceive "the interest of Baltimore to help us to construct laterals to all our county towns and navigable depots," unless she should fancy that she would get our commodities in better order by "a great travel," around the head of the Bay than by a short cut by water.

Some distrustful men think, that the Eastern Shore rail road will never progress beyond the survey, which I understand is quite a profitable job to the undertakers. I have even heard it insinuated, that to farther the appropriation of three millions to the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal, and three to the Baltimore Rail Road, the Eastern Shore Rail Road was thrown into the bill by a set of arch-magicians, (who prowled about the lobbies of the Senate chamber and House of Delegates) as a mere lusus to bubble certain Honourables of the Eastern Shore.

The recall of General Scott from the command of the army in the South has reached that gallant officer, and he is now on his return to Washington. The Richmond Enquirer says—"We have seen a letter from him to a friend in this city, from Columbus (Geo.) dated on the seventh, which states that he would "set out perhaps the day after to-morrow, (the 8th) for the North, via Augusta, the Charleston rail-road, and the sea, for Norfolk;" that he shall be obliged first to go to Washington—that the war is nearly wound up—and that he leaves Jessup in commanded—to send off the Indians," &c. &c. It is said that a Court of Inquiry is to be called—and for our [illegible] contrary, we look forward with unshaken confidence, to the development of a plan; and most active arrangement for its execution, both as it relates to the war in Florida and amongst the Creeks—which will reflect great honor upon the military genius of Gen. Scott."

PRICE CURRENT.

Saturday, July 16.

GRAIN.—Wheat—A parcel of old white wheat was sold yesterday at $1.75; and a contract was made for the early delivery of 2000 bushels prime white, of the new crop, at the same price. We know of no receipts of red wheats, and we have no sales to report. Prime reds would command, it is believed, $1.70.

Corn.—The sales of white have generally been made at 75 cents; one parcel of very prime was sold to day at 78 cents. We quote yellow at 77 a 78 cents—none at market at present.

Rye.—We hear of no sales by the quantity.

Oats.—In the early part of the week a cargo of Susquehanna was sold at 46 cents; but the market has since declined, and a cargo was sold yesterday at 42 cents. We quote Virginia at 40 cents.

Easton is known as a town of considerable trade, and the Steam Boat Maryland, which plies twice a week between Baltimore, Annapolis and this place, considerably increases the business, and of course adds very much to the value of this establishment, by the constant intercourse of travellers from the different counties on the Western and Eastern shores, and elsewhere with these places.
