OBITUARY.

Death comes with a shock even if we are expecting it. So it was when I heard that Eliza Clayton Davis was dead. Dead! Gone! Never will we see her in this life! I wonder sometimes how we bear our loss! So many old are left behind whom we expected would pass through the pearly gates long before our youthful friend. But such was not God's will. He took her from—we know not what. We only know that His will is best and we dare not question it. During my summer vacation scarcely a day passed that I did not spend part of it with her at the store. I never heard her say one harmful word about anyone. If she did not know any good she was silent. This, I think, is the most beautiful trait anyone can possess. We are all given to speaking too much of others' faults, forgetting how short and uncertain life is, and how soon we may be rushed into eternity. I, for one, am trying to learn a lesson from her quiet, modest life, and I hope we may all profit by her example. Of those who die as she did one can say—

Ah, the angel of death is not one to fear,
For he cometh in kindness with words of cheer;
His smile is glad though his eyes are dim,
And a halo of glory encircles him;
No withering frown is seen on his brow,
But peace that mortals may never know,
And he brings a gift from the world above
All perfumed with blessings and crowned with love. M.

THOUGHTS

Inspired BY THE Season

SINCE the establishment of the "Mammoth Hardware Store" in this town the people have enjoyed a service which has met every demand and pleased every taste.

The secret of this phenomenal achievement lies in our strict and constant adherence to the following principles:

1. We make no misrepresentations. The goods are just what we sell them for.
2. We handle durable and substantial goods
3. We keep a large variety in all departments of our business.
4. We sell nearly everything demanded by ordinary needs, and the extraordinary are furnished with almost equal celerity as the ordinary.
5. And we sell our goods as low as they can be priced commensurate with a profit sufficient to justify business.
