SAND SPRING.

Maid of the mountain! Thou gem of the fountain!
Thou shrine of sobriety and foe of ebriety;
Thou friend of society and handmaid of piety,
To thee I will sing, that thy treasures you'll bring.

Thy streamlet forsake, that its rivulet make,
Sweet joy to the lips that of thee will partake,
Thy sequestered haunts now turn to our wants,
Thy brinks and shades with umbrageous blades.

With thy sweet gurgling, devotedly tingling
And its sweet music so wontedly jingling—
Come in thy womanhood, now, matron so pure,
Come now, thou art sparkling and not premature.

Come in crystal dewdrops ere the sacred leaf falls
Let Autumns chilly blast, thy soothing relish palls.
We greet thou, thou pearl of value divine,
From workshop and household and toiler in mine.

Not a stranger to those thou leavest behind—
You will mingle with such as are of thy kind,
Let nothing dismay thee, or naught else be tray thee
Thy course shall be westward in Lethe may end.

In thy progress detain thee, "a trifle" you'll lend.
Ere ocean receive thee our love will not leave thee
For joys thou hast brought us and thus purely taught us
That at morn, noon or night amid sunshine or rain,

Now knowing thou'rt near we'll sing this refrain
We praise thee and prize thee and joyfully sing—
All hail! grateful Sand Spring! clear, liquid spring.

Meyersdale, Pa. J. D. M. A.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL ITEMS

Brevities.—About 200 persons from Frostburg attended the Hyndman camp meeting last Sunday.

The surface of the Consolidation coal company's extensive tract of land never looked better and was probably never more productive. Mountain land nowhere is in better condition, under higher cultivation or more fruitful than this great tract. Mr. Randolph, superintendent, himself a master in all the lines of his employment, is fortunate in his choice of competent lieutenants on the surface as well as in the mines.

When you know of a marriage, death, party, social incident, or accident; when you or any of your family are going away, or you have any visitors from abroad, tell the JOURNAL; then it will be published, and your friends in particular, as well as the world at large, will be interested. The brightest reporter in the world cannot find out half as much as all our readers could give in the way of news. The ideal news-paper is the one whose patrons, each and all, contribute all they know of popular interest.

A Meyersdale (Pa.) Commercial poet does up "Sand Spring" in verse, and his effort is elsewhere reproduced. Both Frostburg and Allegany grove have a "Sand Spring," and the JOURNAL copies for the benefit of each.

One of the Wineland properties, lately advertised, was sold last Saturday at public and two at private sale at fair prices.

The German Electro-Galvanic Belt advertising company, No. 17, are giving a series of concerts for advertising purposes. Doors open at both ends of the street.

James McMillan and Miss Ella Feldman, of Eckhart, will be married next Tuesday.

The same report may be made for John Fagan, of Vale Summit and Miss Elizabeth Lavin, of Hoffman.

LOCALS IN MINION.

Publications.—Babyhood for August is, as usual, full of seasonable hints and practical advice to young mothers. In the department of "Nursery Problems" alone a great variety of interesting topics may be found, such as "Sucking the Tongue," "Quinine as a Cause of Deafness," "Slow Gain in Weight," "Throwing up Milk After Nursing," "Coated Tongue," Rings Under the Eyes," "Time for Weaning," "Slow Teething," etc. It is very desirable that Babyhood, whose many useful suggestions and careful medical advice make it indispensable to every young mother, should be found in every nursery, and persons willing to aid in extending Babyhood's usefulness will find it a pleasant and profitable task. The publishers offer unusual inducements to energetic canvassers. 15 cents a number; $1.50 per year. Babyhood Publishing Company, 5 Beekman street, New York.

"The Battlefield of Gettysburg: Its memories and Memorials' is most interestingly treated in the Popular Monthly for August. The famous points of the great battle, the visits paid to it by the commanders and by officers and soldiers of both armies, the monuments that now mark the ground where regiments held their own under withering fire—all these come before the reader vividly. "Over the Tete-Noire" takes us to Alpine travel, and will interest all in a land that cannot be too well described or pictured. "The Spice Trade of New York" is an illustration of how "many a mickle makes a muckle." Few would suspect the amount annually invested in these trifles of the kitchen, or how the world is circled to get them. Our young men will be more interested in single-hand yachting, the management of sailing craft that one person can with a little skill direct, in fair weather or fowl, sneak-boats, canoe-yawls, cruisers, etc. A sketch of Houdon, the sculptor of the best statue of Washington, makes known an artist of more than ordinary merit. "Old-time Ladies Headdresses and Mufflers" will give suggestions at least to lady friends. "Life in Pompeii" is depicted by pen and pencil. "Striking a Light" "Lightning Photographed," Stories, Adventures, and a continuation of Clarence M. Boutelle's absorbing novel, "The Grave Between Them," make up a most attractive and seasonable number to while away many a pleasant hour and give topics of conversation.

DON'T YOU FALL

Into the glaring error of believing any man who says that he make or will makes better prices than we are making on our goods. No man can buy cheaper than we do. We buy for clean cash, down on the nail, and we nail the bargains. No man can underbuy us, and no man shall undersell us!

We have the best goods, biggest stock, and best prices and just bear in mind that we don't intend to have any stand-off or draw in this fight. We take no man's dust, but here's our blow:

BIG MISTAKE

CORRECTED!

SOME persons have reported and others believed that I intend removing from here.

In order to set everyone right I would emphatically say

THIS IS A MISTAKE!

I am here to stay, and have just returned from the eastern markets with the largest, most fashionable, and cheapest stock of

CLOTHING, GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS, CARPETS, OILCLOTHS TRUNKS, SATCHELS, HATS AND CAPS,

Ever brought to a single establishment in our county. Moreover, as I am cramped for room to store all my goods, I will sell every article at about 6 per cent. profit—at least for the next thirty days.

I have not time nor space to put all on paper; therefore, I have mentioned but a few articles in order that you may appreciate and realize that all should come—not wait, but come at once and examine goods and prices. No one in want of goods, will leave my store without buying, but you should come right along before the rush begins and the assortment is broken.

☞ All persons coming by rail buying goods of me will have their fare paid both ways.

Don't forget that my place is opposite C. F. Nickel's furniture store—the first clothing store as you come from the depot. Thankful for past favors, I am respectfully,
May 12 M. WINELAND.
