To All Whom it may Concern.

FROM STILL POND, BY W. W. B.

INTEMPERANCE.

Touch not that fatal cup,
The cup of woe and sorrow,
It ruins the mind destroys the soul,
And makes a man go borrow.

Intemperance is an awful curse,
It causes many an aching heart,
It brings its victims to the grave
And causes many friends to part.

It is the cause of many sins,
It draws the young to seek it,
It brings them from their homes of peace,
And causes them to like it.

It clothes a man with rags,
It almost makes him crazy,
It makes him dislike every thing
And then it makes him lazy.

Keep away from that sinful bowl,
The bowl of wrong and shame,
That causes many a one to part,
And brings no one to fame.

Oh, drunkard, take heed in time,
Before it is too late;
Leave off this sinful habit of yours,
And from this wicked curse forsake.

It costs you many a cent,
That you could have to spend,
For something that would do you good,
And then have some to lend.

Touch not another drop,
For your wife and children's sake,
It will at last bring you to the grave,
Then why not stop before it is too late.

WACKUP'S WASHING.

Mr. Wackup, a married man of Bridgeport, quit work early the other afternoon, and went home to fix up for the purpose of spending the evening—or rather half the night—with a number of his friends. He found his wife lying upon the lounge enjoying a sick headache, but he couldn't find a clean shirt. Mrs. Wackup said his shirts were washed, but not ironed, and she was too ill to do it, and it was the girl's afternoon out. A shade of disapointment clouded his brow, and rushing into the kitchen, he slammed the door with much earnestness, and fortunately found an iron on the range, nice and hot. Then he dived into the basket of dampened clothes, and found one of his shirts at the bottom, just as he expected. He spread the garment out on a table without first removing the oilcloth cover and hurriedly consulted his watch. Then he couln't find the ironholder, and substituted his pocket handkerchief and after burning four of his fingers and breaking one of the commandments he landed the hot iron on his shirt bosom. He thought the garment had a strange look, but supposed it would assume its proper shape when ironed, and he shoved the iron up and down like a jack-plane. The labor seemed so easy that he mentally said he had a mind to follow the business for a living. Then he undertook to turn his shirt, and just because it adhered to the glazed table cover, he gave it a violent jerk, adding at least six inches more to the split in the back. Then he noticed for the first time that he had set the hot iron on the tail of the garment and scorched a hole in it as large as his hand, and in his haste to remove the smoothing machine, he neglected to use the holder, and dropped the hot fraud on his choice toe; and when Mrs. Wackup, who was startled by the intensity of his language, entered the kitchen, holding her head with both hands, she discovered her husband hopping about the room on one foot and clasping the other with both his hands. The sympathy that Mrs. Wackup tendered was not one of a nature that her blister husband yearned for just at that particular moment. She placed her arms akimbo and indignantly observed: "Ain't you ashamed of yourself, you old fool! dancing the cancan around here, and your poor wife nearly dead, too!—And"—here her eyes rested upon the wreck on the table—"and if the old idiot hasn't gone and ruined my best—!! O, the—the—." Wackup didn't tarry to hear his infuriated better-half to finish the sentence, but adroitly dodged the broom-handle, and limped out of the room and upstairs to bed without his supper. The next morning he told his friends that the reason he failed to keep his engagement, he was suddenly attacked with the cholera morbus at the supper table, and liked to have died during the night.

A LARGE VOLUME would not contain the mass of testimony which has accumulated in favor of Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry as a safe, efficient, and reliable remedy in curing coughs, colds and pulmonary disease. Many of the cures are truely wonderful.

THE difference in nature was well illustrated at the Boston depot. Two sisters met. "O, my dear sister!" said one, exhaustedly, they embraced. "You've been eating onions," said the other, calmly and fearlessly.

ANGER causes us to condemn in one what we approve of in another.

IT is stated that nearly one-tenth of the horses in New York are suffering from the new disease.

FROM OHIO.

The women's temperance war now raging in different parts of the country, particularly in the west, with such unparalleled success, recommends for persons who claim whiskey a necessity for medicinal purposes, to use Green's August flower, which contains no intoxicating spirits, and is a gentle laxitive, and a certain cure for Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Indigestion, Costiveness, Sour Stomach, Sick Headache, coming up of the food after eating, purifies the Blood and System. Just what is needed in the Spring of the year by everybody. Try it. Sold by C. F. STAM & BRO., and THOS. W. WICKES.

Mill Notice.

THE undersigned, having rented Mr. Wm. Bacchus' Mill, where he has been employed as Miller for several years, is prepared to grind Grain of all kinds at short notice.

TO THE PUBLIC.

THE subscriber most respectfully informs the public that he has made arrangements with Dr. Thos. H. Whaland to carry on his near Chestertown, for the present year.

His long experience in the business and his reputation as a Miller warrants him in the belief that he can give universal satisfaction.—As soon as practicable he intends to keep on hand a good supply of which he is determined to sell at reduced prices.

CORN MEAL, WHEAT FLOUR of all grades, HORSE FEED, &c., &c.,

He only wants to make the regular toll, and will be compelled to sell for Cash only as his capital is small and he does not intend to keep books.

He will use all means to make the Mill a public convenience as well as a source of profit. A trial is all he asks.

Most respectfully,
