Notions of the Dead.

In a Russian tale a grandmother says to her grand-daughter, who is threatened with a fiend, "O dear me, my poor, unhappy child! Go quickly to the priest, and ask him this favor, that if you die, your body shall not be taken out of the house through the doorway, but that the ground shall be dug away from the threshhold, and that you shall be dragged out through the opening."

This was originally the common mode of proceeding among various nations — They thought the spirit could only return by the same way that it went out of the house, and in order to prevent its return they took the dead through an opening that could be afterwards stopped up.

The Tiski of Alaska always carry their dead out through a hole in the back of the hut, and then close up the hole with the greatest care. The Hottentots break an opening through the side of their hut for the same purpose, and the Siamese, not content with this, having taken the dead body out, hurry at full speed round to tne other side of the house.

Another strange custom in Russia is this: When a person suffers a very lingering death, in order to render his departure more easy, they let a black dog by a cord down through the roof over the dying person's head. They regard a black dog as an emblem of the human spirit, and their action intended to show the departing spirit which way to go.

The Chinese and the North American Indians have also the idea that the spirit always leaves through the roof, supposing that the life must depart in the same way that it came—from above.

In ancient Rome a person who had been believed to be head could only be permitted to re-enter his house through the roof. In Germany the general belief is that the soul departs through the window. When a person dies the window of the room is at once thrown open, and sometimes a cup of water is placed on the sill for the refreshment of the spirit as it enters on its "long journey.

Amateur Railroading.

The Fredericksburg and Gordonville Railroad Company has some seventeen miles of road completed from Fredericksburg, Virginia, to Parker's Store, which is not now operated. Some of the means devised by the people on the line to make use of the track are thus described by the Fredericksburg Ledger:

"A gentleman who is residing here, who is the owner of a small stationary engine, has attached to it a flat car, on the Fredericksburg and Gordonville Railroad, and with a molasses hogshead for his water tank, runs up and down the road between this city and Parker's Store, for freight and passengers. One of those indefatigable geniuses peculiar to the Wilderness of Spotsylvania, becoming disgusted with the tardy movements of the railroad company, and fearful that his hoop poles, if kept much longer on hand, would not be merchantable, conceived the novel idea of hauling his poles to town on a flat car, drawn by a young bull. The car was loaded with one hundred bundles of poles. There was some difficulty in teaching the bull exactly what was expected of him.—The modus operandi was as follows: The bull drew the car up grades, and was then unhitched and mounted on a platform at the rear of the car, which then ran down grade without help. As soon as his bullship got the hang of the thing he took it very kindly, dragging the car up the grades with great alacrity, and evincing the same pleasure in riding down that is shown by boys who draw their sleighs up hill for the pleasure of riding down again."

OUR BELIEF.

Much has been written and published about farming, but we do not recollect to have seen so much in a nut-shell:

We believe in small farms and thorough cultivation.

We believe the soil loves to eat as well as the owner, and ought, therefore, to be well manured.

We believe in going to the bottom of things, and therefore, in deep plowing, and enough of it. All the better if it be a sub-soil plow.

We believe in large crops, which leave land better than they found it, making both the farm and farmer rich.

We believe that every farm should own a good farmer.

We believe that fertilizer of any soil is the spirit of industry, enterprise and intelligence—without these, lime, gypsum and guano, will be of little use.

We believe in good fences, good farm houses, good orchards and children enough to gather the fruit.

We believe in a clean kitchen, a neat wife in it, a clean cupboard, a clean diary and a clean conscience.

One of the most extraordinary things in this world is the conduct of a hen on the approach of a team. If she is standing in the way at the time, she remains there, and you instinctively stop your horse only to discover that she is safely out of the way. And if she is on one side of the road she immediately dashes into the centre and brings you up again, while the cool sweat forms on your back at the thought of the damages. And it is a little singular that while you are confident you never saw a hen run over, nor even heard of such a thing, yet no number of trials can keep back the perspiration from your back, or prevent you from drawing up your horse, to the imminent danger of his hind legs.

A little urchin seven or eight years old, in a school where a Miss Blodgett was teacher, composed the following, and wrote it on his slate at prayer-time, to the great amusement of the boys:—"A little mouse ran up the stairs to hear Miss Blodgett say her prayers." The teacher discovered the rhyme and called out the culprit. For punishment, she gave him his choice to make another rhyme in five minutes or be whipped.—So, after thinking and scratching his head till his time was nearly up, and the teacher was lifting her cane in a threatening manner, at the last moment he exclaimed, "Here I stand before Miss Blodgett; she's going to strike and I'm going to dodge it."

A great object in life—A giant.

AGUE CONQUEROR.

No Quinine, Arsenic or Poisons.

This is strong language, as Physicians and Chemists have for years tried to compound a preparation that would entirely cure Fever and Ague without the use of strong medicines such as Quinine, Arsenic and other poisons injurious to the system. There is no case of Fever and Ague, Intermittent or Billious Fevers, Congestive Chills, Night Sweats, Liver Complaints, &c., that this remedy will not cure at once and permanently. It purifies the blood, Liver, Spleens, and all other secretory organs so effectually that the Chills will not return during the season, even when persons have had them for years.

TO THE PUBLIC.
The subscriber most respectfully informs the public that he has made arrangements with Dr. Thos. H. Whaland to carry on his near Chestertown, for the present year.
His long experience in the business and his reputation as a Miller warrants him in the belief that he can give universal satisfaction.—As soon as practicable he intends to keep on hand a good supply of
CORN MEAL,
WHEAT FLOUR of al grades,
HORSE FEED, &c., &c.,
which he is determined to sell at reduced prices. He only wants to make the regular toll, and will be compelled to sell for Cash only as his capital is small and he does not intend to keep books.
He will use all means to make the Mill a public convenience as well as a source of profit. A trial is all he asks.
Most respectfully,
SAMUEL A. ANTHONY.
