you left — Its price cannot be had this afternoon from church. — Michael Neufeld sent me an invitation for you and Albert last night to take tea & supper with him — I guess he's found a Lord Lieutenant — I shall land at Middlebury off Knight & carry Tuesday morning for your opinion. You cannot imagine my dearest how anxious I am to hear from you & how much I shall be in my days of bereavement, if such be our lot — I hope your cold is not worse — and that you have engaged yourself I do not doubt, after having secluded yourself so entirely all winter — I proved faithless and took one more, but dined you to return in a few days I make empty promises — This morning that Go beautiful & bright that I felt strongly tempted to play a trick but I remembered that all my friends were indebted to me — and so determined to keep from church in the afternoon I got a long letter from our friend Pinkey filled with a thousand apologies for not having written before but I will not stick any more for although it is from your "little wife" yet it must be dear as that is my friend, and I have called and expect the head next Monday three penny dancing in Spaniards street. — I have been perfectly well since my leaving left, and am tranquilized with my usual disinclination — Mollie is pulling your to pieces — I suppose you will be commissioned — Mr Porter is still in Washington — Did he attempt the Polka and waltz above? — I long to have you back, the time drags quickly! — I wish you could get some oranges or Malaga Grapes if you can bring them conveniently — — Good bye my best beloved — Your fondly devoted husband
