remarks, one was that you verily believed that I was one, that consented to you taking the property at this house as you did, I also you never mentioned that subject to me. The other was that I was the only one, that disapproved of what you did. W. R. Brown Mr. W. H. Tilghman, W. H. Goldsborough all to whom I showed your letter, thought as did. you other remark, I pass over. Would you be disposed to have any conversation on what has past, I am willing at any time; as to the property I have none of it, (at any price) it would be inconsistent indeed now to admit the advance when I before condemned the principal. I do not think I shall have to have a reference to Mr Cummings's acct, but cant say until I see the D. Court which I hope will be on Saturday next, when I hope to settle my acct, and then will know I have to pay over to you. a lame finger must be my excuse for this, and not sending you now a copy of your letter, when I send you a copy, I will thank you to send me a copy of my letter to you. There is one subject I must call your attention to, the fees that have accrued in our trial, I have paid, allready sixty odd dollars, and there is yet about $120 to pay which I am called on to, and I have not that money to spare, be without, I will let each have, you know that is each one that I acted for know as soon as I know the ~~exact~~ dividend

Respectfully Yours
