-nate and lying on the South side of Emory's Creek or Cove adjoining the lands of William Emory, and being a lot of Woodland, and contained within the following meters and bounds, courses and distances to wit: Beginning at a point South forty three and three quarter degrees, West eight and four tenths perches from the stone B. and where a post was driven, and runs thence South forty three and three quarter degrees West one hundred perches to the Creek thence with the Creek North fourteen and a half degrees, East sixteen perches, thence North thirty two and a quarter degrees, East twelve and eight tenths perches, thence North three degrees East six and eight tenths perches, thence North sixty two and a half degrees East eight perches, thence North thirty nine degrees, East twelve and eight tenths perches, thence North fifty six and three quarter degrees East twelve perches, thence North twenty seven and three quarter degrees East eleven and two tenths perches, thence North sixty and a half degrees, East twenty and two tenths perches, thence South eighty one and a half degrees, East ten and three tenths perches to the Beginning, containing six acres, one rood and eighteen perches of land, Being Lots No 1 and No. 2. described