THE SUN.

BALTIMORE, MONDAY, JUNE 7, 1886.

THE SUPPLEMENT OF THE SUN today contains a special dispatch dealing with the uppermost topics of interest in New York, together with the usual variety of correspondence, news matter, reported articles, editorials, and local and general miscellany. The advertisements are classified as follows: Auction Sales by Matthews & Kirkland, Wm. Topping & Co., Wm. Seemuller & Co., Taylor & Creamer, Thorne & Sloan; Awnings, Flags, Tents, Stable Supplies, Copartnership Notices, Miscellaneous, Building Associations, Financial, Dividends, Storage, Election Notices, Meetings, New Publications, Insurance, Pasturage, Pianos, Organs, Carriages, Wagons, Horses, Mules, Summer Resorts, Guns, Pistols, For Hire, For Charter, Steamship Lines, Steamboat Lines, Railroad Lines.

CONFEDERATE MEMORIAL DAY.—This afternoon the graves of the Confederate soldiers in Loudon Park Cemetery will be decorated, the procession forming at the main gate of the cemetery promptly at 3.30 o'clock. More than usual interest has been shown in the preliminary arrangements, and should the weather prove favorable the attendance will doubtless be large and the proceedings of an impressive character. In the evening, at Ford's Opera House, an address on "The Southern Volunteer" will be delivered by Major H. Kyd Douglas, of Hagerstown, Md. Major Douglas served on General Stonewall Jackson's staff during the late war, and won reputation as a brave and dashing soldier. Since the war he has achieved distinction as a lawyer and public speaker, and his lecture on "The Southern Volunteer," delivered before one of the historical societies in Boston some months ago, was so favorably received that it had to be repeated in several Massachusetts towns. It is safe to say that all who succeed in getting into Ford's Opera House this evening will enjoy an intellectual treat, and at the same time be vividly reminded of the historic events of the civil war as Major Douglas rehearses the exploits of "The Southern Volunteer."

THROWING GOOD MONEY AFTER BAD.—Some years ago a pretty good market for Confederate bonds was developed in England on the basis of a report that the Confederacy had large sums deposited in various London banks at the time of its collapse. The story was shown to be false, and Confederate bonds ceased to find buyers. The speculation is to be revived, however, it appears. The English holders of evidences of the debt of the Confederacy have employed a lawyer to urge the liability of the United States for the whole amount, and this legal gentleman has actually appeared before a House committee to show that the United States, in annexing the Confederacy, annexed its debt. The fourteenth amendment to the constitution holds that the United States shall not pay any debt incurred "in aid of insurrection or rebellion against the United States," which is conclusive, if the resistance of the seceding States to the effort to bring them back into the Union is correctly described as "insurrection or rebellion."

DUPLICATING STREET NUMBERS BY THE THOUSAND.—A correspondent calls attention to a practical inconvenience that must result from the method of renumbering that is being observed in the part of the city that lies in Baltimore county. As the county authorities reckon from the boundary as the starting point, it must result that the numbers on streets that extend beyond the city limits will be duplicated. Number 86 North Charles street, for example, must hereafter be ambiguous, if the method adopted by the county authorities is persisted in, as there will be another "86 North Charles," beyond the imaginary line of the boundary. This confusion of numbers must occur as respects every number on "Charles street extended," and a like confusion will affect every street common to the city and county. The inconvenience that must result from so defective a plan would be very great, and ought to be obviated.

RUSHING PRIVATE PENSION BILLS.—The Senate on Saturday passed 220 pension bills, thus making an immense amount of work for the President on his return to Washington. He has already vetoed a number of such bills on the ground of insufficient evidence to show that the beneficiaries were entitled to pensions. It is perfectly plain that the Senate could not become acquainted with the merits of 220 bills in one day. What it did was to take the word of some individual Senator that such and such a bill was all right. The Senator had previously taken the word probably of his clerk that it was all right. This, however, is not honest legislation, and the President ought to veto the lot on the ground of insufficient consideration.

THEY WANT A TARIFF ON FISH.—The New England fishermen now want us to pay them a bounty for engaging in the fishing business. They want the consumers of a cheap and wholesome article of food to be made to pay a tariff tax on that article if brought to our market by anybody but themselves. Under the protection of that tax they propose to put up the price of fish until fishing pays enough to suit them. As they want the poor consumer to fight Canada for bait for them, too, their [illegible]

Quivering lips will faintly say—
