Trotting Gossip.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29, 1893.

The first of the important trotting sales in this city has given breeders plenty of ground for encouragement. Prices did not jump skyward and good stock did not go begging for buyers. Taken all in all it was a happy medium, a healthy, conservative market, such as we may hope for in the future, and beyond which any one is foolish to indulge in expectations. Horses can be bred and reared at a profit at these prices, but of course not under extravagant methods. If the prices that prevail this year could be guaranteed for the future, breeding good horses upon conservative business principles would promise profit as well as pleasure to the breeder. We all know there has been an over production of horses, not only of trotters, but of other kinds. Earning capacity is always the foundation of values in a healthy market. A thoroughbred that can earn many thousands, or that at least gives promise of being a big winner, will always command a price that represents a nice profit to the breeder. The trotter that has speed enough to win in his class will always command a price representing a nice profit to the breeder. The horse with a high degree of finish, with size, soundness and well-educated manners, will always command a price representing a profit to the breeder. The trotter that cannot trot, the driving horse lacking in beauty and qualities that endear him to his owner, in fact, mediocrity in any and every style of horse, will seldom pay the breeder a profit. The rarity of any article enhances its value and overproduction cheapens it. If any reader does not think a trotter that can win money or a road horse that can outstyle all others is not a rarity, let him try to produce one. The common, every-day affair is not difficult to produce, and at present the woods are full of them; hence it is difficult to get a price representing what the actual cost has been to the breeder. The list of horses sold on Wednesday and Thursday, with prices and buyers, is appended:
