von Metzy to-night. He came to see Ben and me once, some time ago.

I asked Edward to room with me during Ben's absence, but he said he thought that it was worth while to move for such a short time.

Our dining table seems also deserted now, as several of the fellows are in Philadelphia and several away over Sunday. As a result, I have eaten all three meals to-day by myself.

With much love I am

Thy Son,
Howard.
