them to adopt the same system of plunder and devastation; It is therefore to their own Government the unfortunate sufferers must look for indemnification for their loss of property.

And this Order is to remain in force until I receive information from Sir George Prevost, that the Executive Government of the United States have come under an obligation to make full remuneration to the injured and unoffending Inhabitants of the Canadas for all the outrages that troops have committed.

Given under my hand at Bermuda 18th July 1814
