SATURDAY MORNING.....Jan. 5, 1884.

LETTER FROM FAIRLEE.

Sayings and Doings Among Our Folks at Fairlee—Christmas.

The merry Christmas is gone. May the strifes and bickerings, the anxieties and cares, the sorrows and troubles of all hearts go with it into the irrevocable Past.

The New-Year has dawned and with it new hopes and aspirations, new resolves and more earnest endeavors. May they be happily realized to all your large family of subscribers and your large circle of readers.

It is said that drunkenness prevailed to an unusual degree on Christmas day in this quiet and sedate community. No doubt there were some who became too merry, especially of the kinky-head race, but so seldom is a drunken man seen in our midst that a few attract more notice, and persons unconsciously magnify somewhat the numbers and the extent of the phenomenon. The cases seen are all of the Jug-or-naught stamp.

Weddings are now to be the order of the day. It is said that three at least are now on the tapis and to be consummated in the near future. May the young folks enjoy many years of conjugal felicity.

The Grange Hall, though not entirely finished, is occupied by the brethren of "the plow, spade and hoe, and the sisters of the (now discarded) distaff and churn."

The literary entertainment advertised in your columns to take place here on the 10th inst., under the management of the ladies of the Aid Society, promises to be of more than ordinary interest judging from what I have seen and heard of the program. It is varied and good, and the music well-selected and admirable. It will certainly not be for lack of energy on the part of the ladies if it is not. If Miss Buttermilk does not give the full worth of a ticket in rollicking fun we agree to resign our pretensions to impartial criticism. We predict a full house should the weather prove propitious. The moon promises to be all right.

It is said that petty larcenies are committed on the boats of the Tolchester line. The jovial professor of pantomnology, who is the profound lecturer of Fairlee Grange, lost on a recent trip from Baltimore a package containing his Christmas supplies which cost ten or twelve dollars, and Capt. Franklin Wing returned from the city minus an overcoat. It is indeed provoking to be the subject of such practical jokes, but it is easily avoided by placing small parcels on which no freight is collected in charge of the gentlemanly and obliging clerk, Mr. Robert Francis. This secures absolute safety. It would be simply impossible for the company or the officers of the boats to vouch for the honesty of all their passengers, or even their crew. Let the traveling public therefore look out, each for himself.

The Christmas tables (not trees), at Salem, drew a good crowd of juveniles, and not a few adults, on Wednesday evening, 26th ultimo.—Brother James Kendall was in his element surrounded by his happy boys and girls, and, with several assistants, up to his eyes in nuts, fruits, candies, &c. Children have wonderful capacities for such things, even when lacking it for the substantial nutriment of scriptural lore.

The measles have about died out for lack of subjects in this vicinity and our school will re-open without this drawback.

The family of our accommodating mail carrier, J. C. Dowling, have suffered quite severely, being at one time all, except himself, confined to their bed. Mrs. D. is still quite ill, but gradually improving.

I am quite sure that all the Fairlee readers of the old KENT NEWS will join me in wishing a happy and very prosperous New-Year to its courteous editors and printers, your de'il included.

SIMON SHARP.

LETTER FROM EDESVILLE.

Messrs. Editors :—If it were possible we would like to pen in a few words the remonstrances of our people against the present system of mail matters—certain it is, there is room for complaint. Our merchants go to the city, buy their goods, return home the same day or the next, depending upon the mail as heretofore for a bill to mark said goods, but owing to the twenty-four hours delay have been compelled thereby to mark them by guess. A pretty state of affairs this. Wish we could construct a railroad over the Chesapeake and have the Government employ an old man to attend a draw in the centre. Why this detention of our mail matter? Perhaps those in fault are sufficiently deluded in the idea that our people live in a swamp or some deserted forest. On the contrary, as a mass they are intelligent and are readers worthy the daily arrival of the news from every section, and at proper hours. Most undoubtedly somebody is due to the postoffice officials at Washington for a glorious reprimand, either for inefficiency or neglect of duty.

Xmas passed off very quietly in the village; the bailiff having no cause to make arrests during the holiday season.

Mr. George T. Copper lost his large, heavy-limbed gray mare last Sunday night, by getting hung under the door.

The Ladies' Aid Society, M. P. Church, met at Mrs. B. B. Adkinson's a few days since. A more genial, social gathering is rarely witnessed. A bountiful and delicious supper was served by the hostess. The ordinary routine of business gone through the young ladies sang for the pleasure of the company, Miss Ella Adkinson presiding at the organ. A proposition was here offered and promptly responded to, that a subscription be had at once to raise a sufficient sum of money to purchase for their friend, the Hon. B. B. Adkinson, a first-class silk hat to wear at the capital. Mr. A. told us that he had carried out the wishes of his friends.

In the way of moving (as we usually term it) Capt. H. Clay Hadaway takes the dwelling recently occupied by Mr. John F. Newcome. Mr. R. S. Tarr takes the "Hodges" property. Mr. Purnell Jump now occupies the store and dwelling of the heirs of the late Jas. H. Edes. Mr. Frank Newnam has caged his bird in the "Wood's" dwelling. We give them hearty welcome. May they live long and enjoy life. Mr. O. P. Leary having refused $300 rent for his house and premises, is now occupying it himself; Mr. R. S. Tarr removing.

Those on the sick list are at present greatly improved; we are truly glad we can so report.

The members and friends of Wesley Chapel surprised their pastor, Rev. T. O. Crouse, and family, in good fashion last Tuesday evening. Notwithstanding the very inclement weather pastor and people give evidence of love for each other.

LETTER FROM "PARTICEPS."

Messrs. Editors :—In your issue of the 22d you refer to "Particeps" as "having on his war paint" and "will make things lively," with what authority "Particeps" cannot conceive. He does not use "war paint," and don't propose to try to "make things lively." "Paint" is not the means to combat an evil so entrenched in the affections of so many otherwise good men as horse racing. The truth and right, the teachings of the Bible and the opinions of the wise and good, together with its own damaging record, are legitimate weapons with which to oppose it, not "Paint." "Paint?" How could you, Messrs. Editors, with your general accuracy and nice discrimination in the use of language. "Paint" is superficial; on the surface; does Particeps use surface work? are not the forces he has used such as in their nature must act upon the heart, conscience and judgment, the deepest and best part of man's nature. Why "Paint" is artificial; are the men and principles arranged against racing artificial? Editorial pens will slip sometimes. And then you say "Horse fanciers had better prime their guns and be at the front on the day of battle." What sort of ink was the editorial pen dipped in? Could so short a sentence contain more inaccuracies by inference? Webster, with his wonderful preciseness, defines a "Fancier" to be "one who has a special liking for, or interest in a thing." That man is to be pitied who has no interest in, or special liking for so beautiful and useful an animal as the horse; with horse fanciers there can be no possible controversy. The conflict is with those who would degrade this noble beast by urging it to stimulate and encourage vice and immorality. Love never seeks to degrade its object; the desire for unlawful gain and illicit success always does.

Your correspondent "Y" in your last issue, led by you, falls into the same error in the use of "Paint," but, with more fairness urges "both sides to be on hand," and then attempts to discount "the result." If men voted their deepest convictions, and had the nerve to stand up and be counted, what grand results would follow, not only here but everywhere. Opponents of wrong cannot afford to be influenced by apparent "results;" it is theirs to do, dare and wait, and "having done all to stand;" were immediate results assured, cowards could be brave, and faith of no value.

[We are compelled for want of space to omit here the article and argument of Particeps which he gives verbatim as proposed for consideration at the meeting on Monday.]

A long line of sad failures of agricultural societies, and the damage our own society has received, show that aside from the principles involved (which of themselves should be paramount) the prosperity and usefulness of our society, largely depends upon the adoption of this article.

Yours, PARTICEPS.

LETTER FROM GALENA.

What our Sunday Schools are Doing.

Messrs. Editors :—Some folks imagine that the masses are not interested in Sunday Schools, and their various public exercises. Of this idea they would have had their minds disabused had they been present and seen the number in attendance on Tuesday evening, Jan. 1st, at the public Christmas entertainment of the Westminster Presbyterian Sunday School at Georgetown. The weather had been very unpropitious (on this account the entertainment had already been once postponed), but the church edifice was quite well filled with a highly respectable and expectant audience. The children were there too, with their bright faces and happy hearts (even stern old Boreas would have had his match in keeping them away), but quite a number of the adult members of the school were absent. At half-past 7 o'clock the exercises commenced, the pastor opening with prayer, and the school favoring the audience with the first piece in the service, entitled "There's a Holy Light." The beautiful service used, "The Holy Child," was well carried out, the responsive readings and musical recitals being executed, in the estimation of those present, in a highly creditable manner. The extraneous matter introduced at appropriate intervals throughout the entertainment consisted of an interesting dialogue between three of the pupils, Bud Wilson, Arnie Stewart and Eben Clark, which was well-spoken and had some pretty good and deserved "hits" at the shallow excuses sometimes given for non-attendance at Sunday School. Laura Jester and Nettie Huett also won marked credit by the recital of a dialogue in which the motive for Sunday School and other religious work was made very manifest. These Misses, who have on similar occasions taken conspicuous places in church entertainments, have developed quite a talent for public speaking. The infant class, under Miss Ella Oldham, recited their parts quite prettily and sung at the close a very sweet little carol. Master Rossie and Miss Minnie Phelps seemed also to afford those present considerable amusement by their humorous recitations. The pastor's address was excellent and pregnant with much thought, being very suggestive of deep Bible study in connection with the usual secular studies for the young. Miss Lockwood presided at the organ with her usual skill, adding also the support of her excellent voice in the chorusses. Two solos by Miss Lizzie Hayes and Mrs. E. C. Phelps, respectively, were features of the music, while a quartette by the Misses Bessie Woodall, Nettie Huett, Minnie Phelps and Emma Clark was listened to with evident pleasure.—The floral decorations were of a very elaborate character and reflected great credit upon those who with much painstaking, had the arranging of them.

I have ample accommodations and a full supply of the best material on hand for the manufacture of Carriages, and have in my employ the very best workmen to be found anywhere, enabling me to make to order any style of Carriage needed in this section.
