SATURDAY MORNING.....Jan. 5, 1884.

IN DESPONDENCY.

Sometimes there comes within the life,
This chequered life of ours,
So much of loss and pain and strife,
That our sad eyes, with tear-drops rife,
Look up, and see no flowers.

A sudden sorrow clouds the day,
And the tried heart grows faint,
For strength and courage die away,
And lips that have been firm to pray
Can only make complaint.

And life becomes at such a time
An unattractive thing;
There is no sound of cherry ch ime,
The days move on in dreary rhyme,
And bring no heart to sing.

If such a time should come to thee—
(And somewhere in the years
For everyone its pain will be)—
Do not despair, but try to see
Some sunshine through the tears.

And know that he whom sorrows teach
Receives a gift from heaven,
His tenderness some hearts may reach,
To whom the glad in vain might preach,
And joy through him is given.

Oh, then, be thou a comforter
To some more sad than thee;
And while thou thus dost minister,
Strange bliss in thine own heart shall stir,
And grief forgotten be.

A STRANGE ELOPEMENT CASE.

Some time ago a man about fifty years old, walking on crutches and calling himself Dr. Joseph Perry, an Indian doctor, made his appearadce at Duffyrn, Mawr, Chester county, Pa. The fame of the great Indian doctor soon spread and he was called to the house of James Smiley to consult with in reference to a humor that was troubling his wife. A kindly feeling sprang up between the doctor and the family, which resulted in his making the house of Smiley his home. Everything moved along swimmingly until the beginning of last week, when Mrs. Smiley wished to go to Delaware county to see her brother. It did not suit the husband to go with her, when the doctor volunteered to drive her over with one of Mr. Smiley's horses and carriages, which Mr. Smiley thought was a very kind thing for him to do. The pair started off in very high spirits, which was the last the husband has seen of either of them; but on the following day after their departure he received a note from the doctor, from which he gained the astonishing information that "he could get his horse and wagon at his brother's, but his wife he could never get." Mrs. Smiley, who is over 60 years of age, has children and grand-children, and has always borne an excellent character in the neighborhood. She was possessed of a good and comfortable home, with a husband that is well to do, and, so far as can be learned, has always treated her with great consideration. Why she should leave such a home at her age, to go with a cripple, and a mere tramp at that, is something that is past finding out.

NOT THE HOUSE.—A day or two ago a well-dressed man, who had taken three or four drinks too much, was weaving around and falling down and getting up on Montcalm street, when along came a kind-hearted citizen who asked:

"Where do you want to go?"

"Wan go home," was the reply.

"How far is it?"

"Noz f'r; I'll show you"

They walked along in company for a block or two, when the inebriate suddenly paused and said:

"Zish 'er place."

"You recognize it, do you?"

"Shurtinly—shurtinly. I'm 'er greatest recognizer in Detroit."

He was assisted up the front steps, and as the door happened to be ajar he was helped into the hall. Here his knees gave out and he fell in a heap, and his patron left. The latter had not gone a half a block, however, when he heard a great hubbub behind him, and he turned to discover the drunkard rolling down the steps, followed by a pail of water and a coal-scuttle.—While he stood and stared a servant girl came down the steps with a broom in hand, waved it over her head and shouted:

"You leave another drunkard in our house and I'll have you where the dogs can't bite you!"

And the man lying on his back on the walk opened his eyes in a dreamy way and replied:

"I'm 'er greatest recognizer in Detroit! Recognize zhat I live 'bout four blocks furzer on."

A MATTER OF SYNTAX: "Which am de properest way to suppress one's self; does yer say: 'We eated at de table,' or 'We has done ate at the table?' asked one darkey of another, they being engaged in a grammatical discussion. As they could not agree, the question was referred to Uncle Mose for his decision, which was; 'In de case ob you two niggahs none of you am right.' "What am de proper way to say, 'We eated at de table,' Uncle Mose?" "De properest way for such cattle as you two am to say, 'We fed at de trough.'"
