The expedition will then proceed with all dispatch to Barbadoes where it will complete its water and provisions, and thence to Negril roads at the west end of the Island of Jamaica; at this rendezvous it may be expected about the middle of November, and you, with Major General Moore, the troops under his orders, the Marines, and such Naval force as you may think proper to employ on this service should meet it at this rendezvous not later than the 20th November.

In addition to the troop ships you may also expect to find at Negril from ten to twenty small vessels of an easy draft of water, and capable of carrying about 100 men each: which
