SATURDAY MORNING.....JULY 12, 1884.

Protecting the Workingman.

The specious cry of a high tariff for the protection of the workingman is an utter fallacy, if any one will just take five minutes time to look into the matter. We will take the sewing basket of the poor woman who has to work for her daily bread with her needle and fingers stitch upon stitch all the day long. She pays to the manufacturer on needles 25 per cent.; thread, 80 per cent.; beeswax, 20 per cent.; pins, 30 per cent.; scissors, 35 per cent.; buttons, 25 per cent.; knitting needles, 25 per cent.; crochet needles, 25 per cent. Does the high tariff protect these poor women?

We have shown how the poor seamstress is made to pay a royalty on the contents of her work basket to the manufacturer, and we will further illustrate the beauties of a high tariff by showing the duty on writing materials which enter into every household in the land: Paper and envelopes, 25 per cent.; ink, 30 per cent.; inkstands, 60 per cent., pencils, 54 per cent., mucilage, 20 per cent.; pens, 39 per cent.; penholders, 30 per cent.; metal eraser, 45 per cent.; rubber eraser, 30 per cent.

THE Civil Service Record says "the civil service reform plank of the Republican platform would have been satisfactory if the candidates had been," but "the convention presented to the people of the country as its choice for the two highest offices in the gift of the people its two most conspicuous representatives of that sort of politics which it is the mission of civil service reform to abolish." In another article the same paper says:

The Republican party has changed front. A month ago, it appeared to be the party of administrative reform and improved political methods. By its nominations at Chicago, it has elevated to be its leaders and standard bearers two of the most notorious of those political 'robber barons,' who, by the practice of an evil system of politics, brought the country to the danger line of demoralization and corruption, and the party which they managed to the verge of defeat. To that point had these two men, with Conkling and Dorsey and Cameron and Hubbell and others of the same sort, brought matters, when an alarmed people sprang to the rescue. Under the lash of public opinion as administered at the polls, the party dethroned its bosses, and entered upon what seemed to be a new reign of usefulness. But, on the accession of Garfield, the evil genius of the Republican party soon turned up in a high place of power, and promptly commenced his evil work. What use to relate the story of the conflict precipitated by the machinations of a magnetic and seductive self-seeker, which began with a prostitution of the power of patronage, and ended with the murder of a President? Garfield died, the victim of anger stirred up by a factional struggle over the New York collectorship. Roscoe Conkling's imperious head rose over one faction, and the magnetic influence of James G. Blaine was scarcely concealed behind the other. The tragedy removed Mr. Blaine to private life, and thus the country was for a time saved from a great danger. Congress and the new President, chastened by the tragic event and warned by the people, soon took steps in the direction of safety, and the Republican party placed itself in an attitude toward reform which was in itself fairly satisfactory to reformers and much in advance of the Democratic position. But the situation is now suddenly changed. The step backward is a deliberate one, and is momentous. It threatens to drive the country back to an even more dangerous situation than when a good President was being seduced into evil action by a magnetic adviser at his elbow, and our foreign relations were being endangered by the jingoism of a theatrical Secretary of State. For it aims to put into the high executive office of President that evil counsellor and dangerous Secretary.

CORRESPONDENCE is now going on between the officers of the Washington County Agricultural Society and the officers of the State Agricultural Association, having in view the holding of the State fair in Hagerstown. Manager Frank Brown, president of the State Society, J. D. Ferguson, secretary, and Mr. Alex. Seth, representing the Breeders' Association of Maryland, visited Hagerstown last week to confer with the board of the home society upon the subject.

GEN. GRANT'S HORSES.—When Gen. Grant met with his severe accident last winter he had no use for his horses, and he allowed Ferdinand Ward the privilege of them until his recovery. They were all sent to Ward's stables. When the crash came they were attached by Ward's creditors, and that is the reason why visitors to Long Branch this year will not have the pleasure of seeing the General handling the lines behind his fast horses.

THE lower peninsula is now having traveling facilities never before experienced and the people appreciate it. The New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk Railroad has made the improvement of running passenger and freight trains separate, so that passengers are not subjected to the delays and uncertainties of freight trains with passenger cars attached. There are two fast passenger trains North and two South each day.

A RECENT CENSUS of Denton gives a population of 569, of which 270 are males and 299 females. Of the total population 346 are white and 233 colored. A recent assessment of the same town shows that the taxable property has increased in a few years $40,000.
