SATURDAY MORNING.....Nov, 2, 1884.

The Sadness of Human Life.

Man that is born of woman is small potatoes and few in the hill.

He riseth up today and flourished like a rag weed, and tomorrow or the day after the undertaker has him in the ice-box.

In the midst of life he is in debt, and the tax collector pursueth him wherever he goes.

He walketh forth in the bright sunlight to absorb ozone, and meeteth the bank teller with a sight draft for $357.

He layeth up riches in the bank, and the cashier speculateth in margins and then goeth to Canada for his health.

He sitteth up all night to get the returns from Ohio, and in the end learned that the other fellows have carried it.

He goeth to the trot, and betteth his money on the brown mare, and the bay gelding with a blaze face wineth.

He married a red-headed beiess with a wart on her nose, and the next day her paternal ancestor goeth under with few assets and great liabilities, and cometh home to live with his beloved son-in-law.

That Night Key.

Mrs. Minks—"There it goes again. That man Jinks has been nominated for another fat office, and that odious Mrs. Jinks will hold her head higher than ever."

Mr. Minks—"Yes; he is sure to be elected."

"Like as not; and here we are plodding along just the same as before. I'm sure that Jinks is no smarter than you are."

"He is a regular ignoramus."

"I thought so, and yet he goes right up and makes money while you can hardly keep body and soul together."

"Well my dear, you see he is a successful politician."

"Then why in the world don't you become a successful politician, too?"

"Because you would never allow it."

"Never allow it, indeed! What did I ever do to prevent you from getting nice offices at big salaries?"

"You took away my night key."

The Way Was Clear.

A young colored man looked in at the window of the Atlanta police station and anxiously inquired:

"Captain', is you alls got Bill Davis in de callyboose yit?"

"Yes; do you want to see him?"

"No, sah! I dess wanted ter know whudder I cood go down ter his house ternight."

"Well, you can ask him."

"I don't wanter ax 'im; I dess wanted ter kno' ef he wuz hyar, and gwinter stay in."

"What do you mean?"

"Well, boss, I'se co'tin Bill's gal, an'—an'—yes I'se de berry same nigger what he busted down er panel ob fence wid last Chuseday night."

He was assured that Bill was safe for the night.—Georgia Cracker.

The Smartest Old Man in the Country.

Seth Cook, of Rathboneville, N. Y., will be 103 years old if he lives until Jan. 10, 1885. On October 16 he went alone to Cowanesque Valley, expecting to meet his son. When he arrived there, he learned that his son was at Gaines. There would be no train for that place until night. Centenarian Cook concluded it would be a waste of time to wait for it, and set out for Gaines on foot. The distance is seventeen miles. He walked the entire distance in six hours, arriving at his son's in good condition, and an hour ahead of the train.

A Steady Young Man.

"Jane, I hear your beau is a little wild; not very steady they say."

'Oh, yes, he is; he is one of the most steady young men I ever saw.'

'Steady? Oh, no, he can't be. I've heard he was anything but steady.'

"Well, he is just steady. He has always come to the house every evening since we were first engaged, drunk or sober.'

"Come in," said the fourth floor lawyer as the boy rapped on the door. "Say, mister!" "Well?" "Are you going to burn coal this winter?" "I may." "Then you'll have to buy some." "Perhaps." "And you'll have to have it carried up." "Shouldn't wonder." "And I'd like the job."

The lawyer locked his hands back of his head and looked out of the window for a long time without a word in reply. The boy put in his time looking around the room, and when the silence had become painful, he said:

"Well, good bye. If you get a case this fall, and get any money, and buy any coal, and don't want to carry it up yourself after dark, I'd like the job. You can remember I'm the boy who spoke to you. I've got red hair and two boils on my leg, and I feel awful sorry for poor folks!"—Detroit Free Press.

Romantic but Real.—Thirty-three years ago, when the gold fever was at its height, there lived near Worth, Ga., a young man named Wilson, who had a pretty young wife and child. A quarrel between the couple caused the husband to go to California. A few years later it was announced that he was dead. The widow remarried, and the grave in California was forgotten. Last week there arrived in Worth a gentleman about 55 years of age, evidently a man of means, who began inquiring about the old families. It was the long absent husband, who was appointed commissioner for California at the New Orleans exposition, and was anxious to make up with his wife. He found his son, who is married and the father of a family, and has furnished them means to join him in California, where it is said he is a millionaire. Mr. Wilson continued on his way to New Orleans.

Scene—Lodging house at Ramsgate. Landlady (to lodger): "Beg pardon, sir: did I understand as you was a doctor of music?" Lodger: "I am. Why?" Landlady: "Well, sir, my son 'ave just been and broke his fiddle, and I thawt as 'ow I should be glad to put a hodd job in your way."

He you would not fall into sin, do not sit by the door of temptation.

Nothing present is so barren but that there are fertile fields beyond.

Nothing is so credulous as vanity, or so ignorant of what becomes of itself.

Converts who boast of their blessedness are not always the most stable.

The progress of rivers to the ocean is not so rapid as that of man to error.

A MARVELOUS STORY

TOLD IN TWO LETTERS.

FROM THE SON: "23 Cedar St., New York, Oct. 25, 1882.

"Gentlemen: My father resides at Glover, Vt. He has been a great sufferer from Scrofula, and the inclosed letter will tell you what a marvelous effect has had in his case. I think his blood must have contained the humor for at least ten years; but it did not show, except in the form of a scrofulous sore on the wrist, until about five years ago. From a few spots which appeared at that time, it gradually spread so as to cover his entire body. I assure you he was terribly afflicted, and an object of pity, when he began using your medicine. Now, there are few men of his age who enjoy as good health as he has. I could easily name fifty persons who would testify to the facts in his case.

Yours truly, W. M. PHILLIPS."

FROM THE FATHER: "It is both a pleasure and a duty for me to state to you the benefit I have derived from the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Six months ago I was completely covered with a terrible humor and scrofulous sores. The humor caused an incessant and intolerable itching, and the skin cracked so as to cause the blood to flow in many places whenever I moved. My sufferings were great, and my life a burden. I commenced the use of the SARSAPARILLA in April last, and have used it regularly since that time. My condition began to improve at once. The sores have healed, and I feel perfectly well in every respect—being now able to do a good day's work although in my seventieth year of age. Many inquire what has worked such a cure in my case, and I tell them. More have tried to tell you, AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. Glover, Vt., Oct. [illegible], 1882. Yours gratefully, HIRAM PHILLIPS."

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA cures Scrofula and all Scrofulous Complaints, Erysipelas, Eruptions, Ringworm, Boils, Tumors, and Eruptions of the Skin. It clears the blood of all impurities and corruption, stimulates the action of the bowels, and thus restores vitality and health to the whole system.
