SATURDAY MORNING.....Nov. 15, 1884.

Kent County Agricultural Association.

CLUB ROOM, NOV. 10, 1884.

Messrs. Editors:—Pursuant to a call for a meeting ordered by the president and signed by the secretary a number of the prominent members of the club met this afternoon in the club room, but neither of the officers calling the meeting were present. The vice-president, Mr. J. W. Corey, called the meeting to order, and the treasurer of the executive committee, Mr. Sam'l Vannort, was chosen as secretary. In the absence of the minutes, and of anyone to state why the meeting was called, the prospect was that the session would be short and uninteresting, but one thing suggested another until the meeting was fairly a good one. The treasurer of the executive committee stated that the late exhibition netted about $400. This does not include the lumber bill, but the lumber is held to be worth near the cost; a very satisfactory showing. The treasurer of the club, Mr. Wm. Nicholson, was instructed to make an effort at once to collect outstanding and over due claims owing the association and report on the same next Monday. Some of these claims are of long standing and the intention is to collect at once. A motion to sell the lumber on hand was postponed until the next meeting and is the standing order for that time.

Twelve members spoke to the question, "Was the late exhibition a good one; helpful to the cause of agriculture and the interests of farmers?" and all stated that the fair was a great success and that the exhibit of agricultural machinery, stock and poultry was superior to any previous fair, and that the general influence of the exhibition was advantageous to agriculture.

The question was asked, "Shall the meetings of the club be continued this fall and winter and an intelligent and persevering effort be made to have them attractive and interesting?" and, I believe, every member answered in the affirmative. Some of the members were quite enthusiastic in speaking of the value of the meetings and the benefit they had derived from them. Not one member was willing they should be discontinued. The meetings are just what the members choose to make them. There is talent, experience and knowledge in the association equal to any demand, and the range of appropriate questions has been so broadened by the action of the club as to make it to consider every question of the day, outside of partisan politics and sectarian religion. A good audience makes earnest speakers and earnest and attractive speakers are pretty sure to have good audiences, and as many of the members are fairly good speakers, and all are good hearers, pleasant and profitable meetings are assured.

Question for next meeting, "Is it advisable considering the dryness of the ground to set out peach trees this fall?" Mr. C. H. Hurlock to open. Mr. S. Vannort was appointed to make an address or read an essay as he should select. We hope you will meet with us, Messrs. Editors, and take your own notes of our doings, which surely would be better and more interesting to your readers than ours, as writing good and interesting things is in your line, while ours is plowing and reaping. It is hoped every member will be present next Monday prepared to contribute something to the interest of the occasion. PARTICIPS.

LETTER FROM FAIRLEE.

Odds and Ends—Protracted Meeting—Mrs. E. Smith to Preach—The Question Current.

Our oft-repeated suggestion of the need of a shoemaker in our village has resulted in the location of Mr. Wells in a part of the drug department of Mrs. M. M. Greenwood's store. So that the soles and bodies of our favored community can be mended at the same place and time. That's odd and the ends are waxed ends.

A protracted meeting was begun in Salem Church on last Sabbath day evening. There is a deeply solemn feeling pervading the congregations, but, I regret to say it, a few young gentlemen (?) and ladies (?) interrupt and distract the attention of the audience by low-toned conversation during service. This brief reference to them is not to be the end, unless it shall be discontinued. Old Father Sewall of Baltimore was once disturbed in the delivery of a discourse by two or three giddy young women in the gallery of the church; he reproved them by saying, "If those young women with red ribbons on their bonnets do not desist, I shall point them out by the color of the ribbon on their bonnets;" and that was the end of it. The young folks at Salem can be described. The initials of their names are withheld for the present.

On the evening of next Sabbath (tomorrow) Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, a daughter of that good old minister, Brother Foulk, who served the people of Kent circuit many years ago, will preach at Fairlee.

The question of the day and hour is, "Who is elected?" It might be supposed that the smoke of the political battle had by this time cleared away sufficiently to enable us to distinguish the dead from the living, but a dense curtain of doubt still hangs over the horizon. Let us hope that the truth may be known before next March.

Your Worton correspondent is troubled about the vote of his Fairlee brother and that one vote for B. F. B. If he has scanned the returns even cursorily he might have noticed that that one vote was not returned from the Fifth district.

I learn from a prominent member of "the party of moral ideas" that John P. St. John and B. F. Butler have been burned in effigy for breaking up the old parties. If they have done this, or even made a beginning of that work, they deserve an apotheosis, and Butler should be placed in the calendar of the saints with the prohibition standard bearer. The serious fact is that the people have set up two Gods and worship Astarte and Baal—Republicanism and Democracy—with the devotion of Phœnicians. The iconoclasts who shall break down and destroy these idols, saturated as they are with corruption and lies, if their own statements concerning each other are credible, will be worthy of all human honor. The old shibboleths of both free-trade and tariff-protection have been worn threadbare by the discussions of at least half a century; now they are revived and re-argued for the sole purpose of self-aggrandizement. Root out the liquor traffic and give the grain now converted into poisonous drinks to the people; let the cost resulting from this source go into the pockets of the people, and no industry, no business, infant or venerable, will need other protection. Protect the home, the men, the women and children from the desolations of this parent of all poverty and misery. Apply the $944,000,000 spent annually for liquor to the real wants of the people and protection and free-trade is a mere bagatelle. SIMON SHARP.

Galena Items.

A person with a non-observing eye might assert that we were positively stagnating in this vicinity, but not so with those who "take notes" as they jog along. One of the finest and most unique edifices ever erected in Galena now adorns the north end of our village. We refer to Father Bradford's parsonage, built by Mr. Thomas Solloway, and at an expense of some $3,500. To say the least it is complete in every particular. About Thanksgiving time the Rev. Bradford holds one of his wide-awake church fairs here in Odd Fellows' Hall we understand. Doubtless more will be heard in reference to this in your future columns.

Our genial townsman, Mr. E. A. Scott, is now absent from Galena in attendance upon medical lectures in Baltimore; that he may become a famous disciple of Esculapius is the fervent wish of his many friends.

Sunday morning and evening services are now in progress at Westminster Presbyterian Church with the expectation of holding extra services each evening in the near future at Georgetown.

One of our Galena merchants has struck the nail on the head in his mode of buying. He goes right into the big markets cash in hand and thus seems to well-nigh verify the old adage "well bought is half sold."

The musical part of our little world is just now well rippled with excitement owing to the presentation soon to the public of "Under the Palms," Prof. Gambrill, leader.

Our physicians are now quite at leisure, except among the colored people, who are suffering unusually from throat and lung difficulties.

"Tempest Piggin" as says the schoolboy, and soon the sound of the grunty "poker" (not Peter) will be heard in the land. Since the bets have been declared "off" on Presidential aspirants nine-tenths of the chronic betters have been betting on big hogs. OBSERVER.

Jay Gould's Big Stake.

It is asserted, says the Washington correspondent of the Baltimore Sun, that Jay Gould will, if Blaine's defeat is assured, not only lose hundreds of thousands which he has wagered on the result, but it is not at all improbable that he will be driven into hopeless insolvency. It is believed that he has been staggering under the load of his watered stocks, and his only hope of relief was in Blaine's election. It is understood that the bargain between him and Mr. Blaine included not only the withdrawal of the suits against the Pacific Railroads for the hundred million dollars owing by them to the government, but the promise to use the whole power and patronage of the Executive to saddle upon the government the Western Union telegraph at its inflated stock valuation of $80,000,000. Of course, loss of Mr. Blaine's particular friends would come in for nice slices out of this.

THE Washington Monument is now 520 feet high, tallest structure in the world.

AN EASTERN SHORE MISER.

William J. Handy, of Somerset—His Miserable Hoarding Life.

Milton, in Comus, speaks of the "unsunned heaps of miser's treasures." Death brings them to light, and lets the sun shine on them.

No more curious or interesting character perhaps ever lived on the Eastern Shore than William J. Handy, of Somerset county, who died last week at the age of 85.

The Handy family is a prominent one in Somerset and Worcester counties, and several of its members have risen to distinction. William J. Handy was born before the 19th century began on the farm on Jones' creek, near Princess Anne, and lived there until he was taken away by an order of Court a year or two ago. He was thoroughly educated and remarkably intelligent. He studied law, but never practiced. He never married. He was of miserly habits, and in slave times it is said denied his negroes food enough to keep them from being hungry; the weekly allowance being a peck of corn and two pounds of bacon. So "Handy's niggers" had an evil reputation throughout the country-side for stealing. He had a hundred slaves and a large land estate.

Handy accumulated a large amount of money which he kept hid about his premises, being afraid to trust a bank with it. In 1854 he was robbed of $3,200, which was never recovered.

When he lost his slaves through emancipation, Handy became embittered and enraged. It made him almost helpless, and his lands were never thoroughly cultivated afterwards. And the revenue raised by hiring out slaves was gone so that he became more miserly than ever, and it is said that his sister who kept house for him, with thousands of dollars around her, did not have enough to eat.

In 1863 a second attempt was made to rob him. The house was entered, but Mr. Handy opened upon the intruders with a double barreled shot gun, and drove them off.

After this affair Mr. Handy kept strict watch and ward over his money. Even in the hottest weather the windows and doors were kept fastened down, and Mr. Handy and his sister led miserable lives. During the night while one slept the other would watch with a double barreled gun and pistol heavily loaded at hand. Even during the day Mr. Handy kept his gun in his hand and seemed to be constantly afraid somebody would rob him. The farm became a wilderness, and the house almost inaccessible from the bushes and thorns that grew around it.

About six or eight years ago, in the broad daylight, three men approached his place by boat, and while he was out of the house, entered by the back door, and securely tied his sister before he returned. When he did return they seized him and pointing a pistol at his head was told that if he did not unlock his chest they would kill him. The old man was plucky, however, and remarked to his captors: "My life has been a very unprofitable one and by reason of my age it will now be very short at best; kill me and be d——d, I will not open the chest." But just then his aged sister began to entreat him to open his chest, and mainly through her importunities it was opened and his life spared. He lost about $2,000 in gold this time and after the booty had been secured they tied Mr. H. and departed in their boat. The cries of Mr. H. and his sister were heard by their neighbors and they came to the rescue, but not until the boat, containing the robbers, was nearly out of sight. Mr. Handy then engaged detectives and put them on the track of the robbers. The detectives thought they had the men "spotted" and Mr. H. was induced to visit Philadelphia for the purpose of identifying them. He saw them and believed them to be the very men who had robbed him but refused to testify as to this fact.

A short time after this his sister died and then he was left alone, and he would have died several years ago from hunger and cold had it not been for the kindness of his neighbors. He would neither furnish food nor raiment for himself, yet he persisted in remaining in the house in which he had eked out such a miserable existence, though kind friends offered to care for him at a reasonable figure. But he rejected every generous offer, and would have remained under the old roof until his death, had not the house been reduced to ashes. He was then forced to take up quarters elsewhere.

Two years ago he was adjudged a lunatic and Col. Levin L. Waters was appointed by the court trustee to sell the property and take care of the proceeds.

SERIOUS RAILROAD COLLISION.

Two Trains Run into Each Other in a Fog and Smoke from Forest Fires.

A serious collision occurred on the Delaware, Maryland and Virginia Railroad Monday morning shortly after seven o'clock, sixteen miles north of Snow Hill, between a passenger and mail train going north and a special train coming south to convey passengers to Snow Hill, who were to attend court. Jos. Russell, the engineer of the north-bound train, who remained at his post to the last, was caught between his engine and tender, where, in a conscious condition, he was shockingly scalded by the escaping steam. Amidst most heartrending cries he was extricated from his excruciating position. He was conveyed to Berlin, in Worcester county, two miles south, where he shortly afterwards died. The fireman of this train saved himself by leaping from the engine before the collision. Levin Smith, the engineer of the south-bound train, together with the fireman, leaped from the engine. Smith, who was rendered unconscious by the jump, was severely scalded by boiling water, which formed a pool under him. He was shortly afterwards carried to a residence near by, and is momentarily expected to die. One passenger, William Long, had a leg broken, while several other passengers were slightly injured. The north-bound train had reached Berlin before the engineer was informed that a special train would run from Selbyville, ten miles north of Berlin, to Snow Hill. He delayed his train at Berlin ten minutes, and the operator at the last-named place being unable to communicate with Selbyville, the train started from Berlin, expecting the north-bound train would not leave Selbyville until the regular train had passed. They collided at a point about half way between Berlin and Selbyville. The engines are total wrecks, and most of the cars of both trains were wrecked. The accident would probably not have happened, at least would not have been so serious, but for a dense fog and smoke from forest fires, which rendered the engineers unable to see only a few feet ahead of them. It is believed, however, there was neglect somewhere, which will be investigated. Mr. Russell leaves a widow and seven children.

RESCUING THE B. S. Ford.—Some three months ago the Columbian iron works and dry dock company bought the iron hull and machinery of the steamer B. S. Ford, which was burned at Chestertown, last spring. The hull was towed to the city and thoroughly inspected. All the defective parts were removed and will be replaced with new iron, and the steamer rebuilt upon the same plan followed by the original builders in Wilmington. Mr. Malster stated that the iron in the hull is first rate, and the steamer will be as good as new when she is finished. She will have new boilers, engine and other machinery. He expects to complete her next spring. They are doing this work chiefly to give their men constant employment during the coming winter. She will be given a new name, which will be determined by whoever may purchase her.

REV. J. E. MOWBRAY, of Frederica, Del., has been called to the Easton M. E. Church and has accepted the invitation.

SENATOR GORMAN said to the correspondent of the Baltimore Sun in New York on Tuesday that—"The more he had seen of Cleveland during the progress of the campaign just closed the more he had found to respect and admire. Cleveland would show himself in the presidential office fully equal to all its requirements, and his policy and appointments would be of such a character as to disarm just criticism. He did not believe there would be more, if as many, removals in Washington under Cleveland as there would be under Blaine. Cleveland has not made one single pledge as to office, and is not under a solitary obligation, while Blaine had mortgaged every office in Washington above that of any ordinary clerk.

"The Senator said it had been published in some of the newspapers that he was to go in Cleveland's cabinet as Postmaster-General. In his belief Mr. Cleveland would construct his own cabinet when the proper time came. So far as he was concerned, he desired no place in the cabinet. He preferred his position as a Senator from Maryland to any other under the government."

DAVENPORT ON THE NATIONAL COMMITTEE.—The New York Herald quotes Mr. John I. Davenport, the United States supervisor of election, as saying to one of its representatives on Sunday:

"I saw very early in the campaign that the canvass in this State was very badly managed by the national committee, and if Mr. Blaine is not elected it will be the defective executive ability of the men who are running things at headquarters that is the cause of it. I told them so, and they didn't like it. In consequence our relationship has not been very cordial. For some of the men on that committee I would not turn my finger; there are others I would. Take the committee collectively, I don't think they have ability enough to run successfully a tramp lodging-house in the Bowery. Some of the newspapers have said that ex-Senator Chaffee went to Florida to manipulate the electoral vote of that State. It is not true. He went away because he was disgusted with the proceedings of many of his fellow-committeemen. If we are defeated it will be from bad management."

ANOTHER plan, says an exchange, for raising money at church sociables has been discovered. It is called a weight social, and is managed as follows: The ladies are placed on a scale and their names and weight put in sealed envelopes. Each gentleman draws an envelope, and opening it he finds the name of the lady he is expected to take to supper. Oysters are served. He pays for the same at the rate of half a cent a pound for as many pounds as his partner weighs. These socials will furnish a great deal of amusement.

FOR the accommodation of travelers to the South, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company has placed on sale winter excursion tickets to Jacksonville, Florida, which will be sold from Wilmington to Jacksonville, at $45.00, good until May 31st, 1884. A stock of excursion tickets have also been placed on sale at the above agency for Cape May, Cape May Point, Atlantic City and Old Point Comfort.

GOV. CLEVELAND AT HOME.—Although Gov. Cleveland did not carry his home county, Erie, he reduced Garfield's plurality of 3,300 to 1,488 for Blaine. In Buffalo he gained in most of the wards on the democratic vote of 1880, and his heaviest gains were in the best republican wards. He lost in some democratic wards where local candidates were traded against the electoral ticket.

A LEAP year hop was given by the ladies of Cambridge last week to their gentleman friends. The invitations were sent out by the ladies to the gentlemen, and the latter were escorted to the hall by the former. The ladies made engagements with the gentlemen and escorted them to supper. The ball was largely attended, and a grand success.

DR. LEWIS H. STEINER, of Frederick, Md., has been selected as librarian of the Pratt Free Libraries of Baltimore. He will have charge of the entire library and branches, and is regarded as having peculiar qualifications for the position. The appointment is regarded as an excellent one.

WM. M. BELL, cashier of the National Bank of Smyrna, has resigned. He has had thirty-five years of continuous service in the bank, which he entered as bookkeeper.

BALTIMORE MARKET.—The Baltimore papers of yesterday quote as follows:

WHEAT—Longberry 87c @ $ 88; Fultz 84c. @86c. for fair to good. CORN—White, prime 53@55; yellow, 51@53. OATS—Maryland, 65.

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral.

No other complaints are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs; none so trifled with by the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unconscious exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal sickness. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has well proven its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured.

"In 1857 I took a severe cold, which effected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and I rested night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded me the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of the PECTORAL a permanent cure was effected. I am now 62 years old, hale and hearty, and am satisfied your CHERRY PECTORAL saved me.
HORACE FAIRBROTHER."
Rockingham, Vt., July 15, 1882.

Croup.—A Mother's Tribute.

"While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. One of the family suggested the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than half an hour the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours,
MRS. EMMA GEDNEY."
139 West 128th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to pronounce it the most effectual remedy for coughs and colds we have ever tried.
A. J. CRANE."
Lake Crystal, Minn., March 13, 1882.

"I suffered for eight years from Bronchitis, and after trying many remedies with no success, I was cured by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.
JOSEPH WALDEN."
Bybalia, Miss., April 5, 1882.

"I cannot say enough in praise of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, believing as I do that but for its use I should long since have died from lung troubles. E. DRAGDON."
Palestine, Texas, April 22, 1882.

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.
