SATURDAY MORNING.........Dec. 6, 1884.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

The President transmitted his message to Congress on Monday. The Baltimore Sun gives the following very full synopsis of its contents:

The President reviews with his usual painstaking care the public incidents, both of a domestic and foreign character, that have marked the history of the past year, and upon questions of policy affecting the industries, the commerce, the finances, the taxation, the foreign relations and defenses of the country, makes a number of important suggestions that will doubtless receive from the national legislature all the consideration they deserve. In the outset he alludes to the recent presidential election, and congratulates the country upon the fact that, despite the fervor and intensity of the contest and "the slight preponderance by which the issue was determined" the public peace suffered no disturbance. In this he sees a signal demonstration of "the strength and wisdom of our political institutions," yet in view of the controversy over the national election eight years ago, and the evident risk of dispute over the recent contest by reason of the narrowness of the margin by which it was decided, he again calls the attention of Congress to the necessity of providing more precise and definite regulations for counting the electoral vote. Our foreign relations continue to be wholly amicable. With Nicaragua a treaty has been concluded by which the United States secures certain advantages for the construction of an interoceanic canal, a railway and telegraph line through the territory of that republic. With Spain has been negotiated a reciprocity treaty, the result of which would, it is thought, be "to make the intercourse between Cuba and Porto Rico and ourselves scarcely less intimate than the commercial movement between our domestic ports." The treaty of a similar character with Mexico has been ratified, and but awaits the necessary tariff legislation of Congress to become effective. These treaties are the expression of a settled policy on the part of the government to cultivate, through reciprocal concessions, intimate trade relations with all the countries of this hemisphere, and the mission of the Central and South American commission which is about to proceed to Mexico is to prepare the way for a general "enlargement of our commercial intercourse with American States." The neutrality laws of the United States, it is recommended, should be enlarged "to cover all patent acts of hostility committed in our territory and aimed against the peace of a friendly nation." The President sees no reason why "overt preparations in this country for the commission of criminal acts should not be punishable, whether such acts are intended to be committed here or abroad." Some modification of our naturalization laws is also required. The recommendations of the Secretary of the Treasury, whose views, as is generally known, are somewhat in advance of those of his party, are concurred in with some explicitness. The coinage of silver dollars and the issuance of silver certificates should be immediately suspended, experience having shown it to be impossible to get the former into circulation, while the growing abundance of the latter threatens to drive gold out of circulation, thus effecting a serious contraction of the currency and creating the conditions of a financial panic. "Unless this coinage and the issuance of silver certificates be suspended, silver is likely at no distant day to become our sole metallic standard." To speed the retirement of the trade dollar it is suggested that "a slight advance over their bullion value" might be offered for them. The beautification of our subsidiary silver coin and an increase of their weight is thought to be advisable. The recommendation that all internal revenue taxes except those on distilled spirits be abolished is renewed. The revenue thus lost will cut down the present surplus, but still leave a margin "large enough to permit such tariff reduction as may seem to be advisable when the results of recent revenue laws and commercial treatise shall have shown in what quarters those reductions can be most judiciously effected." The Secretary of the Treasury's advice that a commission be created to study the problem of "increasing our foreign trade and thus relieving the depression under which our industries are now languishing" is concurred in. Special attention is invited to the Secretary's recommendation of subsidies as the best means of building up our merchant marine. The rapid redemption of the 3 per cent. bonds threatens the destruction of the basis on which the national banks can profitably rest their circulation, and the question how to avert the contraction of currency caused by this threatened retirement of national bank notes, is recognized as one of constantly increasing importance, and the hope is expressed that, as a temporary expedient at least, the banks be allowed to issue notes to the full par value of the bonds deposited by them with the treasurer. A considerable reduction in the expenditures of the War Department is noted. A notable feature of the past year has been the entire absence of Indian outbreaks. The defenseless condition of the important cities of the seaboard, as demonstrated by the chief engineer's report, is discussed at some length. The time has now come, in the President's opinion, when defensive works may be begun with some confidence that they will not be rendered useless before their completion by the progress made abroad in the improvement of guns. "For the most important cities, those whose destruction or capture would be a national humiliation, adequate defenses, inclusive of guns, may be made by the gradual expenditure of $60,000,000 much less than a victorious enemy could levy as a contribution. An appropriation of about one-tenth of that amount is asked to begin the work." One of the four steel cruisers authorized by the acts of 1882 and 1883 is described as more than half finished, and "certain adverse criticism upon the designs of these cruisers" are mentioned as discredited by the favorable opinion of these vessels held by the naval authorities. The restoration of the navy to its former efficiency is warmly urged. The recommendation of the Postmaster-General favorable to the reduction of the rate on drop letters in cities, and the increase of the unit of weight in rating first-class matter from one-half to one ounce is approved, and the extension of the free-delivery system is recommended, as also the project for securing "exceptional dispatch in dealing with letters in free-delivery offices by payment of extraordinary postage." Drastic legislation with regard to Utah; the repeal of the pre-emption law; the enactment of statutes resolving legal complications in regard to lapsed land grants to railroad companies, and the funding of the debt of the several Pacific Railroads under sufficient guaranty, are other topics that Congress is invited to consider. Large space is given to the new commercial policy of the United States. One feature of it is expected to be a monetary union of American nationalities, followed by a general remonetization of silver. Treaties contemplating intimate trade relations with American States are now being negotiated, and it is desired to enlarge also our trade with Europe, Asia and Africa. "It seems to me," says the President, "that many of the embarrassing elements in the great national conflict between protection and free trade may thus be turned to good account; that the revenue may be reduced so as no longer to overtax the people; that protective duties may be retained without becoming burdensome; that our shipping interests may be judiciously encouraged; the currency fixed on firm basis, and, above all, such a unity of interests established among the States of the American system as will be of great and ever-increasing advantage to them all." The labors of the civil-service commission are commended by the President, and an extension of the system of its operations is being contemplated.

How the President is Elected.

Technically speaking, the President is not elected by the people, and the people do not vote directly for any Presidential candidate. They cast their ballots for electors, and these electors choose a President and a Vice President. In each State the number of electors is equal to the number of Senators and Representatives which the state has in Congress. In New York ther are 36 electors. Each party has an electoral ticket with the names of these 36 electors printed on it. The electoral ticket which receives the greatest number of popular ballots in the state will be chosen by the people, and the electors named on it will be entitled to give their votes for the candidate they represent. The electors who are chosen will meet in each State on the first Wednesday in December and cast their ballots for a President and a Vice President. As a matter of law they then can vote for whom they please. They are not legally bound to vote for Cleveland or Blaine, or any other person who was a candidate before the people. As a matter of usage and public trust they are expected to vote for the candidate whom they are pledged to support. Certificates of the votes cast by the electors in each State are then made out and sent to Washington. These certificates will be opened in the presence of the Senate and House of Representatives and counted on the second Wednesday in February. The candidate for President receiving the majority of these—that is 201—will be declared President. If no person has a majority, then the election goes into the House of Representatives, which is required to chose a President from the persons—not exceeding three who have received the most electoral votes for President. In the House the vote is by States, each State having one vote.—New York Times.

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral.

No other complaints are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs: none so trifled with by the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unconscious exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal sickness. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has well proven its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured.

"In 1857 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded me the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of the PECTORAL a permanent cure was effected. I am now 62 years old, hale and hearty, and am satisfied your CHERRY PECTORAL saved me.
HORACE FAIRBROTHER."
Rockingham, Vt., July 15, 1882.

Croup.—A Mother's Tribute.

"While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. One of the family suggested the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than half an hour the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours,
MRS. EMMA GEDNEY."
159 West 128th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to pronounce it the most effectual remedy for coughs and colds we have ever tried. A. J. CRANE."
Lake Crystal, Minn., March 13, 1882.

"I suffered for eight years from Bronchitis, and after trying many remedies with no success, I was cured by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. JOSEPH WALDEN."
Byhalia, Miss., April 5, 1882.

"I cannot say enough in praise of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, believing as I do that but for its use I should long since have died from lung troubles. E. BRAGDON."
Palestine, Texas, April 22, 1882.

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.
