SATURDAY MORNING.....Dec. 6, 1884.

LIFE AND PAY OF A JOCKEY.

A Good Jockey Earns More Than a Sea Captain.

New York Commercial Advertiser.

"Who are these jockeys?" asked the reporter of an old turfman at Jerome Park.

"They are stable boys who show some aptitude for riding and have good pluck. Of course, when they start, their lines are not cast in pleasant places. There can be no more disgraceful life than that of a low-class jockey, hanging around stables and begging for mounts. Such an one is everybody's scapegoat, everybody's butt. But for a steady boy in a good stable, who really rides well, obeys orders and is honest, the life is not a bad one. Such a boy as Mr. Pierre Lorillard's Olney, for instance, who is a quiet, respectful, reliable young fellow, gets to be a favorite with his employer, and is very well treated indeed. For a boy of that sort the pecuniary rewards are considerable. A salary of $80 or $100 per month, supplemented by $25 for riding, $50 for winning a race, with occasional tips for pulling off a big event, easily runs up to $3,000 or $4,000 a year, or twice the emolument of the average lawyer, doctor or engineer; and fully up to the income of the captain of an ocean steamer, with his great weight of responsibility. Great jockeys, of course, do much better than this. They are paid like prima donnas or fashionable preachers, but many of the inferior jockeys get much less than the figures I have named. Then every employer is not as good as the Lorillard's, and in some of the pure commercial stables the boys have a hard time. But, after all, an ordinary jockey earns better wages than a boy of his class and age could earn in any other vocation, and is regarded as a hero and a swell by his own set.

"But the jockey's life, of course, along with the emoluments and honors, has likewise its shadows. His nerve may fail, when his occupation is gone, for race horses are often very vicious brutes and very quick to detect a lack of courage and decision on the part of their riders. Even worse the jockey may begin to take on flesh, when he either becomes too heavy to ride or is condemned to pass a life of martyrdom in the way of sweats, diet and medicine to keep down the growing corpulency. To this forced wasting may be attributed many shortened lives and broken down constitutions.

"Then, in a moral point of view, the surroundings of a racing stable are not specially delectable. There are temptations to drink to excess, destructive to nerve and brain, and there are insidious temptations to dishonesty. When the unscrupulousness of many betting men is taken into consideration, it is creditable to the jockeys that so few succumb. Lastly, there is an ever-present danger from falls and collisions.—The danger is not very serious in ordinary flat-racing, and even in hurdling, for but few deaths have occurred in the past twenty years. Neither sort of racing is so dangerous as polo. But accidents do occur, and, if they do not cause death, often have lasting effects in fracture and strain.

"However, there are many jockeys, both in this country and in England, who survive all the accidents and temptations of a jockey's career, and live very respectably to good old ages. A man's fitness or unfitness is soon ascertained, and the money and fame, if they come at all, come early in life, when the capacity for enjoying them is at its height."

Good Rules for Winter.

The following rules, published in Farm and Fireside, are worth heeding by those who believe that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure:

Never lean with back upon anything that is cold. Never begin a journey until the breakfast has been eaten.

Never take warm drinks and then immediately go out in the cold.

Keep the back, especially between the shoulder-blades, well-covered; also, the chest well protected. In sleeping in a cold room establish the habit of breathing through the nose, and never with the mouth open.

Never go to bed with cold or damp feet.

Never omit regular bathing, for unless the skin is in active condition the cold will close the pores and favor congestion or other diseases.

After exercise of any kind never ride in an open carriage or near the window of a car for a moment; it is dangerous to health, and even to life.

When hoarse, speak as little as possible until the hoarseness is recovered from, else the voice may be permanently lost or difficulties of the throat be produced.

Merely warm the back by a fire, and never continue keeping the back exposed to heat after it has become comfortably warm. To do otherwise is debilitating.

When going from a warm atmosphere into a cooler one keep the mouth closed, so that the air may be warmed by its passage through the nose ere it reaches the lungs.

Never stand still in cold weather especially after having taken a slight degree of exercise, and always avoid standing on ice or snow, or where the person is exposed to a cold wind.

How to Treat Folks.

The evil is not all in talking about people, but in doing so ungenerously. If our sewing society will keep to the bright side of Mrs. Grundy's character, they may hold her up in as many lights as they please. Nothing is nobler than the study of people. They are the lights and shadows of ideas. The parterre is more interesting than the seed stores, and humanity than philosophy. To be the small critic of human weakness, touching no character without stinging it, is one thing. To be the generous admirer of whatever is true and good and worthy is quite another. We would far rather study American history through Irving's Life of Washington, than through an abstract history and the Reformation in life pictures of its leaders than in a discussion of its principles. Let us teach our children a generous appreciation of goodness and greatness and a sovereign scorn of meanness and sham, and let their talk gather around persons as much as it chooses. It will be about persons only nominally. Really, it will be about the truths, great or little, for which the persons stand. That is not gossip. It is biography, and that is history and philosophy both.

Sayings by Josh Billings.

Soap don't cost as much as diamonds, but lots o' people don't seem to be able to use both.

A man that needs 50 cents worth of whiskey to give him an appitite for a 15 cent dinner always has the dyspepsia.

I never feel comfortable when there is a man around that smiles all the time. The only dog that bit me never stopped waggin' its tail.

W'en I see a feller sittin' two quarts of ashes an' smokin' a 10 cent cigar at one time, I know he will get rich because he's so economical.

I don't often ask riddles, but wot do you think a family is likely to have for dinner wen the old man earns $8 a week, spends $4 for beer, $2 for cigars and buys a raffle ticket.

There's a great deal of talk about folks killin' themselves by overwork. There's people struck by lightnin'. Most such critters work eight hours a day, dance, drink or play poker ten more. Then, wen they break down, their wives put on the tombstone, "Died of Overwork."

A Terrible Pilot.

From the Burlington Hawkeye.

Belva Lockwood has organized a fiendish conspiracy for getting rid of the other presidential candidates. She made a fruit cake with her own fair hands and sent each of the gentlemen a piece of it. Governor St. John was suspicious and tried it on a trusted and life-long temperance man and in thirty-five minutes that man's temperance charter had to be revoked sine die. Governor Cleveland ate some of his, and began to go around making straighout Republican speeches, hurrahing for Blaine and Logan, urging John Kelly for a place in the cabinet, Mr. Blaine gave his piece to the leader of a brass band, and the man went away, destroyed his horn, and joined the church. When the returns were all in, Belva clasped her hands, and said hoarsely: "Foiled again!" And then, after casually remarking "ha, ha," she went to work making a batch of biscuit, saying, "They'll fetch 'em."

His Flock.

A Methodist minister tried to start a church in a Western town, but from lack of support had to give up the project. This was the peroration of his farewell sermon: "At the last day the Lord will say to Saint Peter, 'Where is your flock?' and St. Peter will answer, 'Here, Lord;' He will say to Calvin, 'And where are your sheep?' and Calvin will reply, 'Here, Lord;' and so all the shepherds can answer. But when he asks me, 'Where are your sheep?' how will you feel when I am compelled to reply, 'Lord, I have none; mine were all hogs.'"

Hard times, low wages, shrinkage of values are all having their effect on prices. The Clothing market feels the effect so much as to reduce prices to almost a give away point.

Now is your time to buy good first-class Clothing, such as our stock is composed of, at the lowest figures known to us for years past.

T. W. WICKES,
aug. 4, 1882. DRUGGIST.

WARREN LELAND, whom everybody knows as the successful manager of the Largest Hotel Enterprises of America, says that while a passenger from New York on board a ship going around Cape Horn, in the early days of emigration to California, he learned that one of the officers of the vessel had cured himself, during the voyage, of an obstinate disease by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Since then Mr. LELAND has recommended AYER'S SARSAPARILLA in many similar cases, and he has never yet heard of its failure to effect a radical cure.

Some years ago one of Mr. LELAND'S farm laborers bruised his leg. Owing to the bad state of his blood, an ugly scrofulous swelling or lump appeared on the injured limb. Horrible itching of the skin, with burning and darting pains through the lump, made life almost intolerable. The leg became enormously enlarged, and running ulcers formed, discharging great quantities of extremely offensive matter. No treatment was of any avail until the man, by Mr. LELAND'S direction, was supplied with AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, which allayed the pain and irritation, healed the sores, removed the swelling, and completely restored the limb to use.

Mr. LELAND has personally used for Rheumatism, with entire success; and, after careful observation, declares that, in his belief, there is no medicine in the world equal to it for the cure of Liver Disorders, Gout, the effects of high living, Salt Rheum, Sores, Eruptions, and all the various forms of blood diseases.

We have Mr. LELAND'S permission to invite all who may desire further evidence in regard to the extraordinary curative powers of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA to see him personally either at his mammoth Ocean Hotel, Long Branch, or at the popular Leland Hotel, Broadway, 27th and 28th Streets, New York.

Mr. LELAND'S extensive knowledge of the good done by this unequalled eradicator of blood poisons enables him to give inquirers much valuable information.
