SATURDAY MORNING .....May 9, 1885.

LETTER FROM FAIRLEE

Fossils — Mr. Hickman and his Theories — A Direct Answer and a Specimen of Grange Theology, which is also Solomon's—Locals.

Fossils may not perhaps possess any great amount of utility except to adorn museums of natural history and illustrate the fact that "there were giants in those days." Such were Major Bowers, of Chestertown; Thomas Gale, of Still Pond; the brothers, Benjamin and Joseph Howard and Jere Boots of the same locality; William Coburn, Daniel Lamb and Major Thos. Hynson, of Poplar Neck; the Comegys brothers, the Wilsons, the Welch brothers and the Masseys, of the upper districts of this county, and others who accumulated large estates, much of which has gone to perpetuate the "fertilizer craze" and the sterility of their broad acres.

I do not propose to bandy words with Mr. Hickman as to the matter of memory. That the flying years have left evidence of physical decadence is undoubtedly true; but I am grateful that my mental faculties are not yet so much impaired as to lead me to treat with disrespect the agricultural giants of the past or to offer the incense of adulation and gifts of gold to the pigmies of the present. I know that my statement of the substance of the lecture of April 9th will correspond with the recollections of the same by a large part of his hearers on that occasion. Further, I may add, that at a subsequent meeting of the grange one of its most intelligent members, taking Mr. H.'s own figures, showed by them that every farmer had lost over two thousand dollars on every ton of fertilizer that he had not bought. I propose to make this rejoinder as brief as may be consistent with justice to the "agricultural fossils," and will only occupy your valuable space so far as to reply to the only point really essential to this discussion; a thing which Mr. H. prudently failed to do in his reply of the 2d inst., I quote: "Compare the present crop statistics of Kent with that (those) of thirty or forty years ago; what has wrought the change?" I answer not "Tip-Top," my friend, nor "Oriole," nor "Orchilla," nor any such stimulating and exhausting compounds, but the sturdy labor and close, thoughtful attention of those stalwart old fossils, Thomas Gale and Wm. Coburn, who by the use of the despised lime and clover and the equally underrated stable manure brought the lands of Kent county from a condition of positive sterility superinduced by the continuous cultivation of tobacco, to a degree of fertility far exceeding that of the present era, when it will produce no crop without costly and depleting stimulants. This is, I hope, sufficiently direct for Brother Hickman. Now, let him answer if he can, equally as direct, this query. Why does it now require continual repetitions and, in larger quantities, of his compounds to secure any crops at all? If he is disposed to answer this or other plain, fair questions touching this matter, and will name any Thursday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, to meet with Fairlee Grange, he will without doubt receive a hearty welcome. The grange has nothing to sell, on the contrary they are desirous to "buy the truth," also wisdom and instruction and understanding, as Solomon advises. This is a sample of the theology which Brother Hickman "would esteem it a privilege to sit at 'Simon Sharp's' feet" to learn.

Farmers are planting corn with much doubt as to its speedy germination owing to the continued cold. The late frosts have not perhaps affected the peaches—the young fruit being yet protected by the calyx.

Salem church was well filled on Sunday evening under the impression that the popular evangelists would conduct the meeting. Some made a wider mistake in driving to Chestertown hoping to hear them.

The death of Mrs. Margaret Kline, after a lingering illness, leaves a sad void in the family circle.

Brother James Kendall is still confined to his room without any marked change.

SIMON SHARP.

A WORD FROM WATTERSON.

A Somewhat Jaundiced View of the Administration Cured by a Closer Look.

Mr. Henry Watterson, editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, who has recently spent a week in Washington, gives in his paper as expressive of his impressions of President Cleveland and his administration:

"A slight attack of sore eyes suggested a visit to Washington, and having tried the executive and departmental treatment for nearly a week, it has occurred to me that a brief account of some impressions of the administration may not be without interest to the readers of the Courier-Journal." Mr. Watterson first says that it can no longer be doubted that it is a democratic administration, and, he continues, "for my part, I have never doubted this in the least. If I had been given the making of it I could not better have suited myself. Indeed, I have been so well pleased that I have been content to stay at home and play at philosophy, leaving others to play at patronage, quite satisfied that the President and the eminent and accomplished men with whom he has surrounded himself might be trusted to give us a civil service capable and clean; to handle the public business with fidelity and efficiency, and to discharge adequately their obligations, both to the people and the party. Personal contact and opportunities for getting at both sides of points of criticism and dispute have strengthened these original impressions, and I am happy to say that the case of sore eyes with which I started from home has entirely disappeared. The attack of Mr. Eustis upon the administration seems to me equally unjust and unwise. As long as Senators and Representatives insist upon sharing the patronage of the government, they should be willing to share the responsibilities. Today the President is just two months in office. There has been no attempt to shape a policy. The thankless duty of hearing the appeals and considering the claims of aspirants, and the friends of aspirants, has consumed all the time. Appointments mean disappointments, because for every place there are a dozen or more applicants, and for each which he fills the President must take the risk of making one traitor and eleven enemies. No one understands this better than Mr. Eustis, who is a deliberate and thoughtful man, and hence it is a matter of surprise to those who know him that he should break with the administration upon a simple question of patronage. * * He can, of course, embarrass the administration in the Senate. But something better is worthy a Senator so eminent and so ambitious."

LAST MAY I bought of Henderson at a cost of over $5 per bushel, some of this Seed Corn; raised a fine crop and now offer Seed at $1.50 per bushel.

Last season Henderson offered this corn for the first time, and says "it is one of the most beautiful varieties of field corn ever cultivated—ears perfect, with 10 to 16 rows, full to the end of bright golden grain, largest size, not hard and flinty nor shriveled; vigorous grower, stalks 8 to 10 feet bearing one and two ears; matures early and unsurpassed in size, appearance and productiveness. Has produced 100 bus. shelled corn per acre under ordinary culture." Mr. Henderson now asks $2.50 per bus.
