SATURDAY MORNING..........JUNE 27, 1885.

The Dolphin Considered Unseaworthy.

Mr. John Roach has probably had more trouble and vexation with the Dolphin than all the other vessels, built by him for the Government, put together. The board appointed to examine the Dolphin after six or seven trials trips of the vessel, consider her unfitted for the U. S. Navy.

The report goes into detail as to the defectiveness of the vessel. First, while she was supposed to be designed for speed she failed to go faster than fifteen knots an hour in smooth water, even under the most favorable circumstances. As the law required that she should come up to that standard in rough water, the board came to the conclusion that she would be of no use as a dispatch boat, since she could neither run after a really well constructed vessel nor run away from one. Then she cannot fire a shot, either fore or aft, because a small hamlet of houses, known as "Social Hall," have been constructed on her deck. It is certain that a war ship which can neither run or fight will not be much of an addition to our navy. The report also points out the structural weakness of the vessel. A few tons of ballast in the bow on one trip caused binding and heating of a forward crank-pin, and when on another trip this was changed to the stern, the same result was reached by the heating of an after crank-pin. The general conclusion is that, owing to the absence of proper braces and to defect in machinery, it is doubtful whether it would be safe to send the Dolphin to sea. In other words the Dolphin is a failure.

The Whipping-Post.

Frank Pyers, who had been sentenced to six months in jail and fifteen lashes for brutally beating his wife in Baltimore last January, was whipped at the city jail by Sheriff Airey on Friday of last week. After the third lash, says the Sun, the muscles in his arms began to swell and his teeth came together with a grinding noise, but not a word or cry did he utter. The other lashes followed rapidly, each leaving a red mark, but none drawing blood except the last one or two, which lapped the shoulders and tore the flesh open under the right breast, from which the blood trickled. It took just sixteen seconds to give the fifteen lashes. Had the sheriff by going slower been less merciful it is likely that Pyers could not have stood the punishment without fainting. As it was the pain was so intense that when he was unfastened the flesh on his arms and breast and back quivered, his eyes were bloodshot, and his face plainly indicated that though he had nerved himself to bear a great deal, the agony was more than he had expected. But he did not whimper. On the contrary, he tried to sneer or smile as he was putting on his shirt, but as it came in contact with his raw back the sneer and smile faded away. Dr. S. V. Hoopman followed him to his cell, and with arnica and laudanum tried to relieve his suffering. "That's a d— hard punishment for a white man, doctor," he said, and as he spoke tears came in his eyes, caused by the relaxation of his nervous system and probably by the realization of his degradation. He spent the rest of the day sitting in his cell in a dazed, half-stupid condition. Pyers was the first white man punished under the law of 1882.

ANOTHER MAN WHIPPED.

The Supreme Bench of Baltimore, Judges Brown, Duffy, Fisher, Phelps and Stewart met on Tuesday and after argument by counsel overruled the motion for a new trial in the case of Henry A. Meyers, sentenced to twenty lashes and a year's imprisonment for beating his wife. The sheriff did the whipping himself on Wednesday, as he did in the case of Pyers.

THE STATUE OF LIBERTY.

The Largest Work of the Kind That Has Ever Been Executed.

The New York World, in an interesting article on Bartholdi's statue of "Liberty Enlightening the World," says:

"The statue is the largest work of its kind that has ever been executed. The famous Colossus of Rhodes, according to the proportions which the legends attribute to it, was but a miniature in comparison. Other great statues are also in comparison quite small beside this gigantic copper figure. Thus the Bavaria, at Munich, measures 15 metres, 70 centimetres; the Virgin of Puy, 16 metres; St. Charles Borromeo, 22 metres. The Vendome Column in Paris is only 44 metres in height, and Liberty Enlightening the World measures 46 metres from the base to the top of the torch, or 305.11 feet above mean low water-mark. An idea of its size may be formed from the following figures: The forefinger is 2.45 metres in length and 1.44 metres in circumference at the second joint. The nail measures .35 metre by .26 metre. The head is 4.40 metres in height. The eye is .65 metre in width. The nose is 1.12 metres in length. (A metre equals 35.368 inches.) About forty persons can be accommodated in the head. It is possible to ascend into the torch above the hand. It will easily hold twelve persons. The total weight is 200,000 kilos, and the entire work represents an outlay of more than a million francs.

"The statue is made of repousse, or sheets of beaten copper, fixed on a pylonic iron trusswork. This trusswork serves as a support for the copper form of the statue. The copper plates, kept in shape by iron bands, are supported by iron braces, which are clamped on to the central core. They do not bear in the least upon the lower plates, and their weight is always independent of all that is above and below. Exhaustive mathematical calculations were made upon the resisting power of the iron pieces, upon the centre of gravity and upon the action of high winds. The calculations were made by taking as a base the most powerful hurricanes which have been recorded in America or Europe. The copper sheets are $2\frac{1}{2}$ millimetres in thickness. The copper plating of the statue of St. Charles Borromeo is only one millimetre, and it has stood two centuries.

"The total height of the first model was 1.25 metres. This was the study model. The next statue measured 2.85 metres. This statue was reproduced four times as large, the result measuring 11 metres in height. This statue was divided into a large number of sections, destined to be reproduced separately at four times their size. After this enlargement reproductions were no longer possible. The rest was accomplished in enormous fragments executed in wood and in plaster. This process necessitated a number of difficult measurements—9,000 in all. The profile of the forms were again taken in detail with sheets of lead pressed upon the model, and the copper again worked according to the profiles. There were 300 sheets of copper used, each from one to three yards square, and weighing in all eighty-eight tons. These form the outside of the statue."

SENATOR GORMAN ON OFFICE-SEEKERS.—A Chicago dispatch to the New World quotes Senator Gorman, of Maryland, as saying in regard to office-seekers:

"The trouble with these fellows is that they want the earth and don't know how to get it. They get a lot of indorsements first and then fire them into a department. Then they come on themselves and start into make an impression. If their documents are any good they spoil the effect by getting introduced to the President. Some of them find a Congressman to do it, and some of them pick out a solid business man on whom they may have a grip, and then the apparent contrast kills their chances. It isn't true that the President wants to see most of the applicants in person, so he can 'size 'em up.' He wants most of them to stay away. I've seen a man go off of a lunch route into the White House, loaded with beer and cheese or bad whisky. They have had to put in fan ventilators, and it isn't any wonder the President has changed his mind about taking a summer vacation. I tell you he wants air; that's what ails him. If you could hear the remarks he makes about people when they leave, you could write a new joke-book. He asked me the other day if the new Chicago Directory was out, and if St. Louis hadn't distanced us this spring in population. A man has a better show if he has some personal friend of good standing to introduce his papers or himself. Everybody that gets left goes away saying this is a sheol of an administration, and I guess Cleveland is glad they're beginning to think so."

LOCUSTS AS FISH FOOD.—The Port Deposit correspondent of the Baltimore Sun says that large numbers of locusts in their flight fall into the Susquehanna river, where they are eagerly gobbled up by the fish. Some large "catties" have been taken that had as much as a handful of the cicada in their stomachs, and the rock and bass are so well supplied with this kind of food that it is difficult to induce them to bite at a hook, however temptingly baited.

A TERRIBLE CRIME.

A Woman Dragged from Her Bed and Murdered—The Criminals Lynched.

Friday night of last week Randolph Hazell, a respectable citizen of Elkhart, Texas, who resides on the outskirts of the town, attended a dance in the village, his beautiful young wife of twenty-three remaining at home with her two little children. When Hazell returned home about midnight he found the two children sleeping, but the mother was gone. Finding his wife's clothing in the room and the front door unlocked, he became frantic with apprehension, and, gathering his friends together, began a search. Examination showed near the doorway, in the mud, the tracks of two men with large, broad feet, and between them the delicate imprint of a woman's naked foot. When the poor husband saw this, he realized what these tracks meant. Dogs were quickly put on the track, and at 2 o'clock Saturday morning the body of Mrs. Hazell was found about a mile from the house and only twenty-five yards from the main road. The body was nude. The jugular vein had been severed with a common knife. Along her cheeks were visible great gashes made with a dull knife. Around her neck was a dark circle, as though she had been hanged. Near the body was found a pair of men's drawers, and three hundred yards away was found a man's undershirt, clotted with blood.

Over twenty colored men were immediately arrested and examined. The theory of the officers is that after assaulting the lady the fiends, fearing they had been recognized, determined to kill her. After murdering her they attached a rope around her neck and dragged the corpse about an eighth of a mile. All this took place within a few yards of a public road, about 11 o'clock at night. Over one hundred people traveled the road that same night. In the house of a colored man named Andy Jackson, near by, was found secreted a rope clotted with blood and hair, and also a white sheet with a woman's footprint on it. A dozen or more colored men were arrested and committed to jail. About 2 o'clock Sunday morning a mob of several hundred men seized Andy Jackson and his wife, Lizzie, also Frank Hayes, Joe Norman and Wm. Rogers and hanged them all to a tree near the scene of the previous night's murder. Mrs. Jackson and her young daughter, Lizzie, confessed to the crime. Several days ago Mrs. Hazell refused to allow Mrs. Jackson to draw water from the Hazell well. This was the only incentive to the crime. Jackson's wife said she stood by and saw her husband place his pistol at the head of Mrs. Hazell, while the negroes Hayes, Norman and Rogers assaulted her.

WHIPPING FOR WIFE-BEATING.—Judge Stewart of Baltimore recently received a letter from Mr. Albert A. Day, corresponding secretary of the Brooklyn (N. Y.) Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor, dated June 16, as follows:

"My Dear Sir: Maryland is certainly ahead of New York in respect to the punishment of wife beaters. Two years ago a strong but unavailing effort was made in our Legislature to enact a law providing for public whipping for men convicted of wife beating. This office furnished the committee to whom the proposed measure was referred with a great many instances of wife beating, many of them too revolting in details of cruelty for publication. Wife beaters are almost always physical cowards, and a sound castigation at a public whipping post is certainly the surest preventive against their abuse of helpless women. I want to thank you for recognizing this in the sentence imposed by you on Henry Myers. Indiana, and I think Illinois, have the same law. I wish it could be general in all the States. It would save many a weak woman from the inhuman and abominable abuse of a cowardly, unfeeling husband."

FORTUNE OUT OF MISFORTUNE.—Col. McLean, who is acting commissioner of pensions in Gen. Black's absence, had his attention called to a paragraph in a Philadelphia paper on Monday, regarding a woman named Margaret A. Cox, living in Pennsylvania, who was terribly burned the day previous. The paragraph stated that she was the widow of a Union soldier, and the mother of a large family of children, and that she had had an application on file for several years for a widow's pension. Col. McLean immediately ordered the claim made special, had the record examined, and in less than one hour from the time the matter was called to his attention the claim had been approved and received the signature of the Secretary of the Interior, and the certificate for over $1,500 back pay was on its way to the woman's home.

A SENSATIONAL ELOPEMENT.—A highly sensational elopement has stirred up Mitchell, Dakota, society. Miss Nettie Barnard went to that place from Manchester, Iowa, in the spring of 1882. She was a charming young lady and a talented vocalist. Among her suitors was a prominent young lawyer there, and they became engaged and the intended husband built an elegant residence and furnished it throughout to the lady's liking. The day was named and arrangements made for an elaborate wedding ceremony, but on the eve of the marriage the lady fled to Vermont with Mark Ward, of Kimball, a member of the last Dakota Legislature. The elopement was arranged with the knowledge and consent of the young lady's parents.

AN AERONAUT'S TERRIBLE FATE.—One of the attractions connected with the opening performance at Charleston, W. Va., on Friday of last week of Richards & Leon's circus was the balloon ascension of William Patterson. Just as the ropes holding the balloon were cast off, the hot-air stoves, used to inflate the balloon, turned over setting the balloon on fire. The burning balloon shot up into the air at great speed with the terrified aeronaut. The crowd called to him to jump, but he clung desperately to the basket until the balloon had attained an altitude of several hundred feet, when the balloon collapsed and the unfortunate man was hurled to the ground and killed. It was Patterson's first ascension.

HURLED HIS HANDCUFFS AT THE JUDGE.—Frank Whitney and Charles Daniels, convicted burglars, were recently arraigned in the Criminal Court, at Indianapolis, Ind. When Judge Norton asked Whitney if he had anything to say why sentence should not be pronounced, the prisoner sprang to his feet, abused the court with a volley of profanity and hurled a pair of handcuffs at the judge. The missile passed over the judge's head, shattering a heavy plate glass. Whitney turned fiercely upon the police, and had to be soundly beaten before he was subdued. His friends in the court-room pressed into the prisoner's box, and the officers were finally compelled to draw their revolvers. The two men were handcuffed and taken to the Michigan City prison.

TIRED OF HER COLORED HUSBAND.—It is reported from Annapolis that the white wife of Jesse Plater, the colored man, with whom she ran off nearly a year ago, and afterwards married in Washington, has left her husband, and is living with a relative in the eighth district of Anne Arundel county. Parties living in the neighborhood say they have recognized her lately on several occasions, and that she was met at Camp Parole Station, near Annapolis, one day last week and driven in a carriage to her relative's house closely veiled. Her name was formerly Miss Helen Owens. Plater is said to be still living in Washington. It has been stated that he and his white wife did not live happily together, and that the separation is the result of their disagreement.

A LOCUST THAT KILLED A HOG.—Wm. Pritchard, living near Hoffman Mines, on Saturday last had a sow valued at $50. He now has a locust that cost him that amount. The cicada alighted in the sow's pen, the animal made for it open-mouthed, when the locust flew into its mouth, and stopping the hog's windpipe, killed the valuable animal in ten minutes. The sow's death was so mysterious as to induce a postmortem examination by the owner and his friends, resulting in the finding of the locust in the windpipe, and there is no doubt in the minds of those who assisted in the investigation that the sow's death came about in the manner described.—Cumberland News.

IN a recent interview at Atlantic City Vice-President Hendricks is quoted as follows: "I am daily asked the question: 'Are you not bored to death with Democrats seeking office?' And I reply: 'It is true that many apply to me to intercede for them with the President and his Cabinet, and it is nothing more than my duty. I went about the country asking democrats to vote for the ticket, and it is my duty, as it should be my pleasure, to do everything in my power for those who exercised the franchise in my behalf. I believe in rewarding capable and meritorious democrats.'"

A WELL-DIGGER KILLED.—John Smith, a well-digger, aged 55 years, while being lowered down a 65-foot well, which he was making for Charles J. Bayard, in Elk Neck, near North East, Md., shortly after seven o'clock on Monday, was overcome by gas. His helper, hearing him coughing, attempted to pull him to the surface, but he fell out of the bucket to the bottom of the well and was instantly killed.

BALTIMORE MARKET.—The Baltimore papers of yesterday quote as follows:

Lightning Rods—An Explanation.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—Permit me through the columns of your much valued paper to make a few remarks on an item in your last issue giving an account of the disastrous storm that took place on the 15th inst. I wish to call attention to the part referring to Mr. George W. Hatcherson's dwelling being struck by lightning, which was rodded last season by the so-called firm of G. M. Tucker & Co. Being engaged in that business at different intervals for the past four years on the Eastern Shore of Maryland and Delaware and doing a good business I can state most positively that there has not come to our knowledge a single instance where a building rodded by us has has ever been struck and I presume a few remarks will be appreciated. The writer of that article states the rods are what are termed "non-conductors," I simply withhold my opinion in reference to that or it might be said I spoke "harshly;" suffice it to say the utility of proper constructed "Metallic Conductors" for securing protection against injury by Lightning has been so fully demonstrated by the experience of mankind, since the original discovery of Franklin, that it is scarcely reasonable to suppose that any but the most ignorant entertain doubts upon the subject. The most eminent scientific men of the age, Sir Humphrey Davy, Arago, Farraday, Brewster, Harris, Lardner, Bache, Johnson, Henry, and others who have devoted themselves to the investigation of the phenomena of thunder storms and the action of conductors have without exception given positive testimony in favor of the use of Lightning Rods. The manner in which the Rods were constructed on Mr. Hatcherson's place were contrary to all scientific principles, from the fact the rods being nailed to the wood from the very comb of the roof to the earth the electric fluid being obstructed in its path necessarily discharged into the building. The rod should have passed through glass insulators firmly enclosed by the attachments. It is highly essential to observe this if security would be enjoyed, and it is according to all "instructions for the erection of Lightning Conductors" by reliable companies, and in accordance to scientific principles. Being now engaged in the business, and as I have said before, at different intervals for the past 4 years, I know whatof I speak. The business of selling lightning rods is not one whit less respectable and honorable than the business of selling dry goods, hardware, or other merchandise, or of banking and insurance; in fact it deserves a higher rank than either, for certainly no business can be more respectable or more honorable than that of laboring to protect human life as well as property from destruction. There can be no odium attached to the business; it can only attach to the practices of such as conduct it regardless of the principles of truthfulness or fair dealing, which are essential to the proper conduct of any business. This is written simply in justice to the cause and not for the benefit of disreputable persons who ply their rascality for the sake of a few dollars at the risk of the lives of their patrons and destruction of property and to the detriment of an honest toiler engaged in the Lightning Rod Business. Resp'y,

AYER'S PILLS.

A large proportion of the diseases which cause human suffering result from derangement of the stomach, bowels, and liver. AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS act directly upon these organs, and are especially designed to cure the diseases caused by their derangement, including Constipation, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Headache, Dysentery, and a host of other ailments, for all of which they are a safe, sure, prompt, and pleasant remedy. The extensive use of these PILLS by eminent physicians in regular practice, shows unmistakably the estimation in which they are held by the medical profession.

These PILLS are compounded of vegetable substances only, and are absolutely free from calomel or any other injurious ingredient.

A Sufferer from Headache writes:

"AYER'S PILLS are invaluable to me, and are my constant companion. I have been a severe sufferer from Headache, and your PILLS are the only thing I could look to for relief. One dose will quickly move my bowels and free my head from pain. They are the most effective and the easiest physic I have ever found. It is a pleasure to me to speak in their praise, and I always do so when occasion offers.

W. L. PAGE, of W. L. Page & Bro."
Franklin St., Richmond, Va., June 3, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S PILLS in numberless instances as recommended by you, and have never known them to fail to accomplish the desired result. We constantly keep them on hand at our home, and prize them as a pleasant, safe, and reliable family medicine. FOR DYSPEPSIA they are invaluable.

J. T. HAYES."
Mexia, Texas, June 17, 1882.

The REV. FRANCIS B. HARLOWE, writing from Atlanta, Ga., says: "For some years past I have been subject to constipation, from which, in spite of the use of medicines of various kinds, I suffered increasing inconvenience, until some months ago I began taking AYER'S PILLS. They have entirely corrected the costive habit, and have vastly improved my general health."

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS correct irregularities of the bowels, stimulate the appetite and digestion, and by their prompt and thorough action give tone and vigor to the whole physical economy.
