Kent News.

SATURDAY MORNING..........JULY 11, 1885.

Kent County Teachers' Association.

Discussion of Questions by Teachers—Profs. Newell and Whittington Present—Col. J. R. Day's Address—He Makes a Singular Declaration.

Reported for the Kent News.

The meeting was called to order by the president, June 30, at 10 A. M., and opened with prayer by Rev. Walter R. Graham. The association sang a selection, Miss Mary Chapman presiding at the piano. There are 59 teachers in this county and all were present but 7. Some of the absent ones were reported sick. The president appointed Messrs. Topping and Brown tellers. The examiner, Mr. E. F. Perkins, was unanimously re-elected president for the ensuing year; vice-president, J. V. Crosby; recording secretary, W. G. Fallowfield; corresponding secretary, Miss Indiana M. Comegys. The president thanked the association for the honor conferred and he was followed by the other officers-elect in their thanks.

On motion of Mr. Long the literary committee was empowered to prepare questions for discussion during vacation, said questions to be discussed at the meeting in September.

The president called up the first regular question: "What should be taught pupils outside of text-books?" which was discussed by Mr. Long, Miss Comegys, Mr. Starkey, Mrs. Gilpin, Mr. Topping, Miss Leaverton, Mr. Wagner, Miss Stewart, Mr. Crittenden, Miss Porter, Miss Roberts, Mr. Fallowfield, Col. Day, Mr. Tonkin and the examiner. It was the opinion of those who discussed the question that many important subjects not found in text-books ought to be taught and were taught in the schools of Kent county. Such subjects as punctuality, order, regularity of attendance, good manners, politeness, temperance, abstention from the use of tobacco in all its forms, and everything that is needed in the formation of good character and in the make-up of useful men and women. The examiner did not think lectures very effective on intemperance and evil effects of tobacco when the lecturer indulged.

Mr. Milton Melvin offered the following resolution, which was adopted: Resolved, That in our experience the present method of conducting examinations is satisfactory.

The examiner asked if the questions used during the last examination were generally satisfactory. There were no expressions of dissatisfaction concerning the questions except those of arithmetic, and only a few thought they were too difficult for the several grades. During this discussion Prof. Newell arrived accompanied by Prof. Whittington, of Waverly, Baltimore co.

After a short recess Col. Day delivered an address, having for his subject: "Our Work in the School-room." He complained of feeling unwell, having a severe headache, but notwithstanding his indisposition he entertained the audience for fifteen or twenty minutes in an interesting talk. Col. Day asserted that no individual eminent in the arts or sciences had been educated in a public school and appealed to Prof. Newell for confirmation of the assertion. Since the professor did not deny the assertion it is presumed that he acquiesced in the speaker's statement. Fortunately, Prof. Whittington was present, and he disproved the assertion by citing John G. Whittier, an eminent poet, who was educated in no other than a public school. He was certain that many others could be found that reached eminence from no other than a public school training. The colonel defended compulsory education, declaring if it were all right to tax people to support public schools it is all right to compel parents to send their children for a definite period, from seven to fourteen years. He thought our work as teachers would be a success if we trained the boys and girls in that way that would become good and useful men and women.

After the address the second regular question, "How can the power of observation be best strengthened in our pupils?" was called up and discussed by Mr. Tonkin, Miss Comegys and Prof. Newell. The professor deplored his training as a school-boy, saying that between the lids of text-books was he told to seek for information to satisfy his craving mind; and because habits of observation were not engendered in his early school-days he suffers for the mistake made in his early education. He stated that the question could be resolved into two: "What to observe, and how to observe?" Children should be trained to observe what is beneath us, what is around us and what is above. Not that they should be taught geology, but there should be instilled in them a spirit of geological investigation. They should be trained to observe accurately, systematically and perseveringly. In his closing remarks he complimented the lady teachers on their good looks. He was followed by Miss Richmond and Prof. Whittington. Prof. Newell invited the teachers to go to Deer Park to attend the State Teachers' Association, promising them a delightful time—a feast of reason and flow of soul.

The examiner explained to the teachers that the school board insisted that he should attend the State Teachers' Association, and for that reason he would not be able to pay them until the 14th of this month. The association then adjourned.

SPECTATOR.

CHAPTERS ON CHICKENS.

By Experience — Care of Chicks.

1. For each brood, which may consist of the hatch of two or three hens, have your clean coop and small doorway yard ready.

2. Confine the mother, but allow the chicks to leave the coop in freedom.

3. Feed the mother large grain, all she will eat. Every time feed her first, then feed the chicks.

4. For three or four days the food should be bread crumbs and hard boiled eggs, crumbled up fine. One egg, hard boiled for 10 chicks, daily, with the other food.

5. Feed the chicks about six times a day, or two hours apart.

6. For the next week or so, corn meal, cooked and fed dry, with bread crumbs occasionally, may be used, if the corn meal is in the shape of Johnny cake, crumbled, it will be best.

7. For the third week, continue the above, and add wheat screenings, also scalded meal, and a little boiled potatoes, mashed, and a little cracked corn.

8. For the fourth week, continue the cooked feed with something green in the fore part of the day, chopped tender grass or turnips, and give at night cracked corn or small grained chicken corn all they will eat.

9. A very little cooked meat and raw bone meal may be given them with profit to their health, and will add strength to their legs.

10. After four or five weeks feed the cooked food as usual in the morning, with vegetables; and all the grain, corn, wheat, etc., they will eat at night.

11. Give water to drink in shallow pans; the flower-pot saucers answer a good purpose here, and the little chicks will use them to perfection. The water should be fresh every morning, the saucer washed clean each day. If the water is renewed two or three times a day all the better.

12. After six weeks old, or thereabouts, a little cayenne pepper in the water does good. If you have milk handy—skim milk, sweet milk, or sour milk—it is always an advantage to the chicks, old or young.

13. Don't feed meal mixed with cold water. Give soft feed in the morning and during the mid-day warmth; but whole grains or cracked corn at night.

14. After six weeks release the mother with her chicks and let them forage in larger quarters if you can. Still shut them up every night, remembering that the broods must still be protected from cats, rats and vermin of all kinds.

15. During all this time keep the coop very clean by constant daily attention. The best time to clean the coop is about 5 o'clock P. M., removing the sliding floor emptying it, or scraping it into your basket, and thus preparing it for the night.

26. With attention to these simple directions you will have strong, thriving chicks, growing with great rapidity, and making stock of which you will have every reason to be proud. With much less attention you can raise stock; but not such vigorous, wide awake, useful stock as this care will give you.

THE Texas Congress once took exceptions to President Sam Houston's habit of giving them his messages orally, and insisted that he should write them out; that the habit of delivering them orally was highly dictatorial, and lacking in respect for Congress. Houston agreed to conform to their wishes, and, as the next day was the one set apart for the delivery of his inaugural, he made his appearance in the halls of Congress with a roll of paper in his hand tied with red tape and marked in large letters, "Inaugural." He addressed them with a roll in his hand, waving it gracefully that all might see it, and, on concluding, handed it with a low bow to the clerk, and strode out of the chamber. On being opened it was found to be a roll of blank paper.

A MARVELOUS STORY TOLD IN TWO LETTERS.

FROM THE SON: "28 Cedar St., New York, Oct. 28, 1882.
"Gentlemen: My father resides at Glover, Vt. He has been a great sufferer from Scrofula, and the inclosed letter will tell you what a marvelous effect has had in his case. I think his blood must have contained the humor for at least ten years; but it did not show, except in the form of a scrofulous sore on the wrist, until about five years ago. From a few spots which appeared at that time, it gradually spread so as to cover his entire body. I assure you he was terribly afflicted, and an object of pity, when he began using your medicine. Now, there are few men of his age who enjoy as good health as he has. I could easily name fifty persons who would testify to the facts in his case.

Yours truly, W. M. PHILLIPS."

FROM THE FATHER: "It is both a pleasure and a duty for me to state to you the benefit I have derived from the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Six months ago I was completely covered with a terrible humor and scrofulous sores. The humor caused an incessant and intolerable itching, and the skin cracked so as to cause the blood to flow in many places whenever I moved. My sufferings were great, and my life a burden. I commenced the use of the SARSAPARILLA in April last, and have used it regularly since that time. My condition began to improve at once. The sores have all healed, and I feel perfectly well in every respect—being now able to do a good day's work, although 73 years of age. Many inquire what has wrought such a cure in my case, and I tell them, as I have here tried to tell you, AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. Glover, Vt., Oct. 21, 1882. Yours gratefully,
HIRAM PHILLIPS."

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA cures Scrofula and all Scrofulous Complaints, Erysipelas, Eczema, Ringworm, Blotches, Sores, Boils, Tumors, and Eruptions of the Skin. It clears the blood of all impurities, aids digestion, stimulates the action of the bowels, and thus restores vitality and strengthens the whole system.
