SATURDAY MORNING............Oct. 10, 1885.

MISTAKEN FOR A FORGER.

A Remarkable Resemblance that Deceived Two Clever Detectives.

A striking case of mistaken identity, in which an entirely innocent man fulfilled to even the smallest degree the description of a New Orleans forger, came to light Monday. Two detectives of experience were completely mistaken for a time, and it was only through their carefulness that a well-known resident of the Crescent City, and a man who stands well in the commercial circles there, escaped being arrested and having his name telegraphed over the country as a forger.

A short time ago a young man named Ferdinand Laumont, who was a clerk in the employ of Leon Joubert, a New Orleans cotton broker, forged his principal's name to checks for $1,200. On Sept. 16 Col. T. N. Boylan, of the New Orleans branch of the agency, took hold of the case. The last seen of Laumont in New Orleans was on the evening of September 15, but the detectives had little difficulty in tracing him to the steamship Knickerbocker, which left New Orleans on the 16th. They telegraphed their agency at 182 Broadway, New York, to look out for him, and when the Knickerbocker arrived Superintendent J. E. Wilkinson and Detective Dave Larkins were on the pier.

The description telegraphed from New Orleans was that Ferdinand Laumont was 22 years of age, 5 feet 8 inches tall, of medium build, with rather large black eyes, a full dark beard and dark complexion. It was further said that one upper tooth in the front of his mouth was missing, and that his shoulders were slightly round. He was a French creole, spoke both French and English, the latter with a slight accent, and wore, when last seen a dark suit of clothes.

At the steamer, Wilkinson called his companion's attention to a man who stood on the upper deck leaning over the rail. The man fulfilled the description to the letter, except that he might have been twenty-eight instead of twenty-two. As the detectives slipped aboard and ranged up alongside of him he leaned over the rail and bade goodby to a passenger with the peculiar patois of the creole, and when Superintendent Wilkinson addressed him he turned, and as he answered his greeting in broken English, smiled. The middle upper teeth was broken off close to the root. The detectives explained very quietly.

"The man started," said Mr. Wilkinson, in speaking of the matter, "grew perfectly red, and stepped backward a pace or two. He acted, in fact, precisely as a guilty man usually does act on the stage or in a novel. We asked him not to make a scene, and he agreed not to, explaining volubly all the time who he was and giving us his references in New York. There was something about his manner, despite the remarkable manner in which he tallied with the description, that made me think for a minute that perhaps some mistake had been made after all. At all events, we bade him goodby on the steamer and went to look up his references. Of course we had a shadow on him meanwhile, and had it fixed so that we could put our hands on him any time. We wired for a fuller description to New Orleans, but it only made the thing worse, for they continued to describe the man whom we were shadowing here. Tuesday we got a dispatch from the Southern office that the real forger had been caught. In tracing their man to the river front they were all right, but instead of coming North on a steamer he took the Louisville and Nashville Railroad, and came North that way to Cincinnati."—New York Sun.

A Gunner's Guide.

Apropos of the approach of the gunning season is the "Paradise for Gunners and Anglers," a neat little pamphlet issued by the Passenger Department of the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore Railroad Co., descriptive of the gunning and fishing resources of the Delaware and Maryland peninsula. The book treats of the game and fish of this section, their haunts and habits, the localities they frequent, and gives extracts from the game laws of the region, and, in fact, all the information a sportsman could desire. It is embellished with engravings of game and fish, and contains an excellent map, showing the water-courses, roads and railways of the section. It is a complete manual for gunner or angler, who would find his sport in one of the best game-stocked portions of the Atlantic States. The book is distributed gratuitously, and may be procured by addressing James R. Wood, General Passenger Agent, Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore Railroad, Philadelphia, Pa.

Luck and Labor.

If the boy who exclaims "just my luck!" was truthful, he would say "just my laziness!" or "just my inattention!" Mr. Cobden wrote proverbs about luck and labor. It would be well for boys to memorize them:

Luck is waiting for something to turn up.
Labor, with keen eyes and strong will, will turn up something.
Luck lies in bed and wishes the postman would come and bring him the news of a legacy.
Labor turns out at six o'clock, and with busy pen or ringing hammer lays the foundation for competence.
Luck whines.
Labor whistles.
Luck relies on chances.
Labor on character.
Luck slips down to indigence.
Labor strides up to independence.

The Columbia Bolster Spring

is the outcome of an effort to overcome every objection incidental to this spring. It combines Ease, Lightness, Durability and Cheapness. They are for farm, truck and peach wagons, and will carry one to ten thousand pounds.

It raises the bed or box of the wagon but four inches, which is of course correspondingly decreased by the weight carried and it can be put on and taken off with ease! It is complete as sold, and requires no alteration of the wagon in applying it.

MARBLE WORKS!

[NEXT DOOR TO THE MARKET HOUSE, CHESTERTOWN.]

I Challenge the United States to produce better marble or finer finished work than I have done at my Yard. I guarantee its durability. You can see for yourselves in all your Cemeteries or in my Yard. I work no Scraps that have been thrown away by the saw-yards. I work no Pennsylvania marble; it will not stand the weather. I keep no agent out to torment. Persons know when they want and they had better look at the stone before buying—go look through your Cemeteries and see the broken and defaced stone. If you want a good and lasting Tombstone or Cottage Monument or a Shaft Monument of any size, I have the Largest Finished Stock of Marble on this Shore, and I will not be outdone in Prices. Call and examine for yourself. Respectfully,
