SATURDAY MORNING.....Nov. 7, 1885.

A MESSAGE BY MR. LINCOLN THAT WAS NEVER SENT.—HON. John Usher, of Lawrence, Kansas, who was Secretary of the Interior under President Lincoln, writes to the St. Louis Globe-Democrat in reference to a message said to have been prepared by Mr. Lincoln on his return from the Hampton Roads conference in February, 1865: "Soon after his (Lincoln's) return from the James river the cabinet was convened, and he read to it for approval a message which he had

THE NEW RAILROAD TO PHILADELPHIA.—The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company are running construction trains from Canton to the Susquehanna river, and for the past week have been carrying freights for shippers from Abingdon, Aberedeen and other places. The first shipment was a consignment of canned goods from Abingdon, Harford county, for the West, and on Monday a consignment of canned goods was shipped from Aberdeen to Chicago direct. The cars are run to Canton and ferried over to Locust Point. Three engines are in service between Baltimore and the Susquehanna. The material for the line beyond the Susquehanna is shipped by water to Wilmington, and there distributed by construction trains. The officials of the company say that the bridge across the Susquehanna will be completed within the next two months.

CHAMPION CITY.

ristmas Blowout in the Spread Eagle Theater.

HERE were several unique features connected with the observation of one Christmas eve at Champion City during the time that I was editing the Clarion there, and, I may add, cutting hair in the then prevailing style, dealing in hides and pelts, leading the choir, selling land, th with neatness and dis- otherwise making myself ell as ornamental.

stmas tree was erected in Eagle theater, and there the rivalry of the settlement as- even-tide, and "bright the e o'er fair women and brave so appropriately remarked eding issue of the Clarion. clusion of the regular pro- hich was interspersed with fits by Rickety Wadkins, the re distributed. ### VERB FOR THE DAY.

n the hand is worth two—

le Did Without It.

etser—Will you come up to nas gathering to-night? I re.

dy—With pleasure. Am I bring anything?

etser—No; but you might y of mistletoe.—Puck.

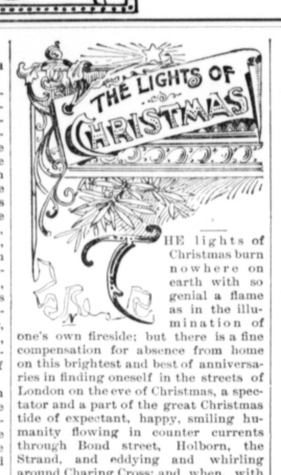
tpad—There is no use tack- illow.

odpad—Why?

otpad—He's been buying resents all day.—Judge.



THE lights of Christmas burn nowhere on earth with so genial a flame as in the illumination of one's own fireside; but there is a fine compensation for absence from home on this brightest and best of anniversaries in finding oneself in the streets of London on the eve of Christmas, a spectator and a part of the great Christmas tide of expectant, happy, smiling humanity flowing in counter currents through Bond street, Holborn, the Strand, and eddying and whirling around Charing Cross; and when, with heart warmed with the glow reflected from thousands of sparkling faces, to see this city of a million homes and a thousand churches blaze forth with Christmas lights from basement to roof, from chancel to belfry, the mystic spell of the anniversary becomes wondrous, overwhelming, complete.

But when Christmas dawns, one should leave the bewildering maze of this vast city for some old English village where the beauty and traditions of the day possess a cameo-like unity and relief; and the farther this shrine is removed from the rush and roar of the nineteenth century the sweeter will be the flavor of the anniversary and the more redolent of its old-time incense. The village green, buttressed by the ivied church and manse at one end, and the old hostelry and smithy forge at the other, the noble hall half visible in its park, and ancient farmhouses neighboring near, make up a mis en scene for a charming Christmas that cannot be surpassed. Watching the assembling worshipers flecking park and green, you follow on, pause in God's Acre for a look at the old yew trees and the billowy sod where the rude forefathers of the hamlet sleep, and enter the rough stone temple to whose plain interior tender and sympathetic hands have lent a grace and freshness with clusters and festoons of holly and mistletoe, and where Christmas has been sacredly celebrated for centuries save when Cromwell's soldiers put down the "papistical" worship or during the pitiable War of the Roses. Your mind dwells mainly in the misty past during the service, for Celts, Britons, Saxons, Danes and Normans be[illegible] before you on this spot, many of them under this same roof, and do not the symbols gathered from the remnants of old Druidical groves blend the credo of the Christian with the worship of Bell?

As the day declines and you have your choice between the hospitality of Norman hall and the festivities at some old farmhouse where the Saxon dwells, hie then to the latter, for Christmas is but a play under the patronizing smiles of rank and fashion, while in the soil-imbedded home of the descendant of Celt or Saxon you shall see the greatest of Christian anniversaries celebrating at the same hearth with the first of pagan festivals (as you saw them commemorated at the same morning altar) and each claiming the day in honor of its nativity. In the midst of the fete where hospitality reigns with gladness the carols are heard without and the door swings wide open for the singers. In they troop, and as they chant of a Saviour born this day in the cave of Bethlehem, and of peace on earth, good will to man, the blazing yule log of the sun worshipers illumines the room with tidings of scarce less import, telling that on this day the source of all light and life has emerged from the grave of the winter solstice to break the icy bands of death and restore to man the fructifying spring, the ripening summer and golden autumn. I have chosen England for the loci of my Christmas scenes, for there one is brought into closer sympathy with the spirit and traditions of this great dual anniversary than in our modern America.

Centuries before the shepherds watched their flocks on the Syrian hills in the dawn of the Christian era the Egyptian priests had traced the zodiac in the heavens and blazoned the 25th of December as the day of the deliverance of the sun from the darkness and bands of the winter solstice, and for centuries before the light of Christianity burst forth from the grotto of Bethlehem the fire altars of the Orient, the sun wheels of Germany and the yule logs of Britain celebrated this day as the resurrection of nature from death unto life. Does it detract from the beauty and splendor of the Christian holiday that all nature joins in its hosannahs to that infinite and benign Providence which heedeth the sparrow's fall and the sun in its course with the same care and solicitude that proclaimed from the angelic skies of Bethlehem: "Peace on earth, good will to man?" GEO. W. VAN HORNE.

All Provided For.

Clara (arranging the Christmas presents)—We'll put mamma's pearl necklace here.

Dora—And Mable's diamond earrings here.

Clara—And George's gold watch here.

Dora—And Edith's diamond bracelets—what shall we do with them?

Clara—Lay them on the piano alongside of papa's Christmas card.—N. Y. Weekly.

Only Too Willing.

Generous Six-Year-Old—Papa, there's a poor little cripple next door that hasn't any use of his arms. I'd like to give him for a Christmas present some of the things I got last year.

Papa (with tears of parental pride in his eyes)—So you shall, my boy—so you shall! Give him that nice little drum Aunt Mary sent you.—Chicago Tribune.

CHRIST'S DAY.

March trumpets and the violet
Springs up to cheer the wood:
E'en so, when storms of winter fret,
Does Christmas bloom lest we forget
The joy of doing good.

Sweet day, when every bosom thrills
With such a joy as stirr'd
The Wise Men when, above the hills,

They saw the Star whose glory fills
And beautifies the Word;

When soldiers leave the field of strife,
And battle flags are furled,
While in the marts where trade was rife,
There moves a mercy-loving life,
A charitable world;

When favors are in all that's said,
And acts do not oppress,
But joys return we've counted dead—
He maketh smooth the patch we tread
With special tenderness.

O bells of golden gladness, ring!
The stream of plenty flows,
The world has gifts to surfeiting,
To-day our Brother Christ is King
And rules the hearts He knows.

CHARLES EUGENE BANKS.

A Slight Delay.

Mrs. Pinkerly—The boy has just come with that lovely Christmas present I got for you to-day, dear. He is waiting in the hall now.

Pinkerly—How kind (kiss) and thoughtful of you, dear. (Kiss, kiss.) I am just dying to see what it is. (Impatiently) Why don't you have the boy bring it up?

Mrs. Pinkerly (embarrassed)—The fact is—er—darling, it has come C. O. D. —Life.

THERE ARE MEN AND MEN.

Clerk—I am very sorry; but we are all out of mistletoe.

Miss Kissam—Dear me! Isn't there anything to take its place?

Clerk—Well, madam; that depends upon the man.—Puck.

A Great Present.

"What are you going to give Santa Claus for Christmas?" asked auntie.

"I guess I'll give him my stocking," answered May.

"Why, Santa Claus doesn't care for that," auntie returned.

"Well," said May, "then he can fill it and give it back to me."—Harper's Young People.

THE CHRISTMAS PLUM PUDDING.

—Sun and Shade.

Measure for Measure.

"It's not the right sort of feeling, perhaps, but at Christmas I like to give just as valuable presents as I receive."

"So do I. My wife is going to give me a hundred-dollar dressing gown, and I am going to give her a hundred-dollar check to pay for it."—Life.

CHRISTMAS EVE—AN ALARM.

Chorus—What wuz dat? Didn't you hear sumfin?—Life.

Staving Them Off.

Jagway—How do you feel over Christmas, old man?

Travers—Very poorly. I find I am obliged, as a matter of necessity, to give my creditors a Christmas dinner.—Judge.

HIGH GRADE BONE FERTILIZERS.

We take pleasure in again calling the attention of farmers to our High Grade Fertilizers. It being eight years ago this spring since they were first offered to consumers under their present form; and from that time until now there has been an increasing demand for them, which is a far better testimonial to us than any letters of praise could be, although we do not want for these latter, as we are in receipt of many. It has been our aim to put up the best fertilizers we know how, and the results in the field clearly show that we have hit the mark right in the bull's eye, and we believe if consumers will take our target (American Brand, bull's head) they will ria good result every time—the bull's eye, if their aim is good.

THEIR CHARACTER.

The main characteristic of our fertilizers is that they are prepared with particular reference to the crop, and not to a chemical analysis; the latter does very well in its place, and we believe in chemistry thoroughly, but consumers are too often deceived with the idea that a chemical analysis is the main thing, and if they get a good analysis and high commercial valuation as figured out with arbitrary prices by the chemist, they must have a fine fertilizer. Now it may happen that a fertilizer, with a commercial valuation of $25 00 per ton, will give a better result on the crop than one with a valuation of $40 00 as based on a chemical analysis. And why should this be? Only because the material used in the one valued at $25 00 was better adapted to the crop than the other.

THEY ARE UNIFORM.

The goods we manufacture are uniform in composition, and are only varied in proportions, year after year, as we believe it to be an advantage to the crop. We have such large supplies of Bone, Blood, etc., from the slaughter establishments of New York, that our fertilizers are largely composed of these, and there is not that inducement for us to use cheaper material, that there might be, if we did not have this material.

BONE FERTILIZERS.

Our products are of a bone base, because we believe that is the most satisfactory source of phosphoric acid, and the large amount of animal matter our fertilizers contain makes them especially valuable in what may be considered the off or poor seasons. Some years it is noticed that almost any fertilizer will give fairly good results, but we find themost favorable comparisons for our products are in the poor years.
