SATURDAY MORNING.....Nov. 14, 1885.

Letter from Simon Sharp.

Notes on the Still Pond Centennial Continued—Mrs. Hunt's Address — Convincing Argument and Magnificent Peroration — Thoughts that Breathed and Words that Burned.

Gentlemen:—I regret that I was not able to prepare the continuation of my notes on the celebration of the Temperance Centennial at Still Pond in season for your issue of the 7th instant; but the delay has afforded you space for political matter which may be just now of equal interest to many, if not all of your readers. Nor will my notes spoil for being kept. The truths inculcated on that occasion can never lose their interest, nor decrease in importance, while the liquor traffic exists.

Mrs. Hunt opened her pleasant address by an allusion to our Democratic form of government. In Russia, or any other despotism, no appeal could be made to the people for the abatement or abolition of any such evil as the drink traffic. But ours "is a government of the people, by the people, for the people," hence the need of educating the people, especially with regard to the pernicious tendencies and disastrous consequences of the manufacture, sale and use of alcoholic poisons as a beverage. Bringing the issue at once before a jury of her countrymen and women, after a century of discussion, this jury now stood as about four to six. The four favoring the entire abandonment of the liquor trade could never be brought to coincide with their fellow jurymen, so that a verdict was impossible unless the six could be brought over. Now a wise and skillful general will never attack the main body of the opposing army if it can be avoided. His dependence is rather in cutting off the reserves of the enemy. The lovers of these hurtful liquors is one large reserve corps constantly filling up the gaps made by the annual loss of one hundred thousand by the use of them. Another class consists of those who in various ways find pecuniary profit in the maintenance of the traffic; as manufacturers, wholesale and retail dealers, agents and employes, and landlords. It could hardly be expected, she said, that this class would hardly come over while a ten cent drink gave a clear profit of eight cents. Our forces must be directed against the first mentioned reserved corps. How to accomplish this she proceeded to show.

Taking up a glass of water she stated that if oil were poured into the glass it would not mix with the water, not simply because of its less specific gravity, but chiefly because of the utter absence of chemical affinity for the oxygen which the water contains. Now pour into a similar glass containing water alcohol in any of its forms or disguises, and it mingles readily and freely. Why? Because of its affinity for the constituent elements of the water. So the instant that alcohol touches the lips it robs them of the moisture abounding in the mucous membrane which lines them and leaves them parched and dry. Now a large proportion of the human body, "the house we live in," consists of water, and to whatever part of it alcohol is applied that part is robbed of its moisture, and becomes in a manner desiccated. Such is its effect upon all the tissues with which it comes in contact, stomach, lungs, heart and brain. More especially does it affect the system of nerves centering in the skull and constituting the brain. Hence the imbecility, the idiotic expressions, and the silly behavior of the inebriate. Hence too the intolerable thirst and craving for more which follows a debauch. And herein lies the fallacy of the oft repeated boast of the novice in drinking, "I can drink when I please, and let it alone if I please." He cannot let it alone until he can reverse an unalterable, immutable, physical law. If the lovers of these liquors can be convinced a verdict would be rendered very soon. To this end we appeal to the laws of chemistry, physiology and hygiene.

The youth and children of our schools and families constitute another large body of reserves. To cut off this is the object of this department of the work of the W. C. T. Union, and the effective agency employed is the mighty power of a mother's love. A thrilling illustration of this power was given in an instance occurring during the civil war, in which a mother sought to find her dying boy within the lines of the enemy. Presenting her pass and stating her case to the sentry he refused to let her pass, threatening to shoot her down if she persisted in the attempt. Straightening herself to her full height, and baring her breast, she exclaimed, "Shoot?" But he did not shoot; a mother's love had conquered, and she saw her boy, who, in the agonies of death, whispered, "Mother, I knew you would come!"

One large division of the anti-Temperance army is now eagerly proposing a compromise, and this shows that they begin to realize their danger. Again Mrs. H. drew an apt illustration from the late war. A member of Congress had a wish to witness an actual battle, and hearing that an engagement was impending, repaired to the field of conflict. At a safe distance and from a good elevation he watched with glass in hand the deadly strife, sanguine of the success of the party he hoped would win. He saw masses of troops swaying to and fro in the furious encounter, but could not believe in a defeat. Soon, however, he saw the broken columns of his friends come pouring down in a hasty and confused retreat. Discretion prevailed and he took to flight; in his hurry he stumbled over an expended shell and went prone to the earth with his face buried in the dust. Just then a retreating soldier, as anxious to escape as he, stumbled and fell across him. Raising his face from the deep dust, and striving to look up he meekly said, "See here! dear, good Mr. Reb, can't we compromise this little difficulty?"

The peroration was a magnificent specimen of sublimity and beauty, in which the expression of the popular will by the ballot was compared to the little drops falling from the clouds on the heights and hill-tops above and around the great lakes descending from one to the other, gathering in impetuosity and volume, and pouring through the Niagara till reaching the Falls as a mighty torrent, they rush over with irresistable force, sweeping every obstruction away. From below may be seen the misty spray ascending against the resplendent sun, spanning the arch with the beautiful bow of promise born of the fearful commotion beneath. There is hope!

I give only the sentiment of the full effect; the thoughts that breathed and words that burned should have been heard. Would that this cultured and gifted woman could have been heard by every man, woman and child in the State. I must reserve a synopsis of the evening's proceedings for a future number. Mrs. H. gave an amusing account of her success in securing the passage of bills to compel the school boards in some 8 States to introduce into their curricula systematic instruction in physiology and hygiene with special reference to the effects of alcohol on the human system.

Yours ever, SIMON SHARP.

Billy Mahone.

In 1880 the democratic party of Virginia split on the payment of the State debt. One faction insisted on paying the honest debt in full. The other faction insisted on repudiating the debt in part. William Mahone, a bitter rebel and violent democrat, was elected to the United States Senate, as a democratic repudiationist, and so declared himself. When the Senate met in March, 1881, the democrats had a majority of one; enough, if they all stuck together, to effect an organization and secure control of that body; but there were rumors afloat, that Mahone had sold out to the republicans; the terms of the dicker being, that if he would vote with them in effecting an organization, and thereby secure the Senate under their control, he should have the entire control of the Federal patronage in the State of Virginia, and parcel out the offices to his personal and political henchmen, at his own sweet will, without hindrance.

The result proved the rumor correct. The unholy alliance was formed; Mahone betrayed his party, and the renegade democrat became the boss republican dictator in the Old Dominion. The people of Virginia "sat down" upon him on the third of November by 30,000 majority.

Words Fitly Spoken.

Philadelphia Ledger.

"General McClellan was expected to do in the three months of his Peninsular campaign, with his divided forces, hampered, hindered, thwarted as he was, what it took his illustrious successor twelve months to accomplish, with unlimited command of all the armies operating in Virginia, and all the resources of the country at his call."

EX-CONGRESSMAN TOM OCHILTREE, who is in New York, says "He sat beside the telegraph instrument at the Carlton Club, in company with Hon. Roscoe Conkling, listening to the election returns read until after 3 o'clock on Wednesday morning, and that Mr. Conkling fairly beamed with joy over Gov. Hill's election and the downfall of Davenport and the half-breed leaders."

MR. H. C. COLE raised corn this year from a variety exhibited at our Agricultural Fair two years ago by a Pennsylvanian. Some of the ears have thirty rows and over a thousand grains of corn on them. He likes his new kind of corn very much.—Hereford Democrat.

SAMUEL LUSK, the engineer at Wm. T. Hignutt's mill at Smithville, Caroline county, met with a terrible death Friday afternoon of last week. He was putting on a belt when he got caught in the machinery and was carried around until he was killed.

Kent County Agricultural Society.

The Late Fair—Expenses More than Receipts but Premiums All to be Paid—The Meetings to be Continued—Discussions—Is it Desirable to Sell Corn this Fall?—Next Question: Can the Farmers of Kent be Benefitted by Legislation Next Winter?

CLUB ROOM, NOV. 9, 1885.

Messrs. Editors:—This is our first regular meeting since the fair, we had quite a good attendance and an interesting meeting. The secretary and treasurer of the executive committee reported the expenses and receipts of the late fair, and their showing is that the former is greater than the latter, but we are not bankrupt, we have a few hundred dollars in the treasury yet, and every premium and expense will be paid; so let me say to those who were awarded premiums do not be discouraged at our delay for you shall have your premiums.

The propriety of continuing or discontinuing our meetings was discussed, and every one present was in favor of holding on and agreed to do all they could to make the meetings interesting and profitable. Our meetings in the past have been interesting and very beneficial to all who have attended them regularly, and I think it would be a shame if they were discontinued. Now let every member resolve that they will endeavor to attend regularly and do all in their power to make them of interest and profit. One member today was bold enough to say that this society and its meetings had been of great benefit to him, and I do sincerely believe if others would speak out they would say the same. A committee of three was appointed today to try and devise some means by which our meetings could be made more attractive in the future than they have been in the past, and they, the committee, will soon be tired of hearing how to grow wheat, corn, potatoes and other crops and have a desire to discuss something broader as you will see further on.

Several questions were asked and answered. One was: "Is it advisable to sell our present crop of corn this fall, or hold it till spring?" It was generally to sell. Several members advised selling every crop as soon as it was in condition to ship, and by pursuing this plan year after year the farmer would be better off. A similar question in reference to wheat was asked and answered in about the same way. Two members gave their experience in selling wheat directly after harvest and waiting till fall, and it was to the effect that the same kind of wheat kept and sold in the fall fell short in weight from two to four pounds per bushel. Now this is something to be looked at.

At our next meeting we are to have an original essay read by one of our members—not by the one appointed by the president, that one having business engagements which will prevent him from performing the duty—but by another secured in his stead. So we expect something good. The regular subject for discussion at our next meeting is: "Can the farmers of Kent be benefitted by any legislation at Annapolis next winter?" This is something in which we all should be interested. What are our legislators elected for, (who receive pay for three months spent at Annapolis) if it is not to legislate, pass and repeal laws for the benefit of their constituents? but I must stop and discuss the question at our next meeting. In concluding let me say to everybody, come out and help us and by so doing you will help yourselves.

X.

DISGUISED AS A YOUNG MAN.—In Philadelphia Thursday evening an elderly man of respectable appearance, accompanied by a youth apparently of about sixteen years of age, entered a saloon kept by a negro politician named Gilbert Ball, in one of the worst districts of the city, and on approaching the bar the younger of the pair called for beer. Ball suspected that the younger was a woman in disguise, and mentioned the fact to a policeman near by, who arrested the pair and took them to the station-house. As soon as this was done there was a sensation, for the elderly man broke down and acknowledged that the young one was a woman and a member of a very respectable family living in the northern portion of the city. He gave his name as A. J. Lechler. He is a well-known politician and club man, and has a family. The young lady burst into tears when asked her name, and Mr. Lechler answered that she was Miss Mary Smith, of No. 1920 North Nineteenth street. He asked that the mayor be sent for at once, as he was a personal friend of the chief magistrate of the city, and that no harm was meant by the unfortunate escapade in which he and his companion had been detected. She had, he said, long felt a great curiosity to see the low life in the slums of the city and had begged that he would escort her through them, which he had promised to do if she would adopt the disguise in which she then appeared. Beyond this there was, he assured the police sergeant, nothing wrong or improper about the expedition, although he acknowledged, the situation in which they had been discovered was, to say the least, suspicious. The couple were locked up, but a few hours later were discharged, and quickly left the station-house.

A HORRIBLE DEATH.—Thursday night of last week a ballast train on the Shenandoah Valley railroad went through a trestle near Buchanan, Va., the accident being caused by the heavy rainstorms and the consequent weakening of the trestle. Four men were killed. When the train went down one of the workmen had his foot caught under the engine in such a way as to make it impossible to release him before quickly. It was noticed that the stream into which the train had fallen was rapidly rising, and while one of the men went for a physician the others vainly renewed their efforts to save their companion. When the physician arrived it was seen that the only hope of saving the man's life was by amputating his limb; but, notwithstanding the entreaties of his friends and the certainty of a dreadful death, the imprisoned man refused to submit to the operation. He said he would rather die. The water finally arose so high that the man had to be held up by a companion to keep him from drowning. The doctor had all the necessary instruments for amputation. The other men implored their companion to save his life by a sacrifice of his limb, but he resolutely refused to submit. The water came to his shoulders, his neck, his chin. When the water was even with his mouth the resolute man weakened. As he uttered the words "cut it off," the water bubbled over his mouth. It was then too late. He was drowned. A fate like this is seldom witnessed. The hearts of the stout men present bled in sympathy.—Hagerstown Globe.

STALWARTS VS. HALF-BREEDS IN CECIL.—The Cecil Whig, rep., attributes the recent republican defeat in Cecil county to the defection of the "stalwarts," whom it commends for their course. It also serves notice upon Mr. W. T. Warburton, one of the leading "half-breed" or Blaine republicans, that between him and "his democratic boss" and his aiders and abettors," and the "stalwarts" "there will be either an honorable peace or open war." The Whig charges the "half-breeds" with cutting stalwart candidates and says: "This eternal and everlasting 'cutting' of reputable stalwart candidates had passed all forbearance, and it was to show stalwarts could strike back, it was to teach the selfish leaders of a faithless political coalition that stalwarts had some rights which even conscieneless politicians were bound to respect; it was to emphasize the fact that no one faction of republicans in Cecil county could elect a ticket, but that success could only come through the honest support by all factions of a ticket honestly nominated that the stalwart cut on Tuesday was so keen, so thorough and so effective."

FIVE CHILDREN AT A BIRTH.—A Toledo dispatch states that several days ago the wife of Wilhelm Freund, a farmer, near Holgate, Henry county, Ohio, gave birth to five boys, all of whom are well-formed and alive. Mrs. Freund is 36 years of age, and during her nineteen years of married life has given birth to twenty-one children, eighteen of whom are now alive. The other three lived to various ages over a year. The mother is described as a comely German woman, and the father is short and solid, but not portly. This happy couple live on a small farm, which the husband tills with the assistance of his numerous progeny. Some of the children were born in the hayfield, where the mother was at work.

DUCK SHOOTING.—There is always a good-natured rivalry here, as to which boat shall be the "high" one the first day of gunning. The honor was this year secured by Capt. Frank Simpers' boat, he and his crew securing 359 redheads. He did not have out a stranger party, and as he received the entire proceeds of his big shoot, less expenses, his day's work was a profitable one. "Bushwhackers" captured from 20 to 30 per boat, sink boxes from 100 to 300 each, and the grand total of ducks killed the first day would foot up probably 2,500 pairs. Prices are low. We quote, for Thursday: canvas-backs, $2.00 per pair; red-heads, 75 cents; black-heads, 40 cents.—Havre de Grace Republican.

A NEIGHBOR'S TRIBUTE.—Col. J. A. Joel, a prominent Grand Army man and a neighbor of the late Gen. McClellan for many years, says the general was a man of very lovable disposition, and was universally esteemed by all who lived in the vicinity, whether rich or poor, for his modest, frank and unassuming traits. The people among whom he resided, says Col. Joel, will lament his death almost as though it were the loss of a member of their own family.

THE Princess Anne Marylander says: Dr. Wm. H. Gale is our "big Injun." He has 430 scalps dangling at his belt—the largest majority that any candidate of any party has had for 20 years. His was the biggest vote ever received in Somerset county.

Letter from Masseys.

Editors News:—Will you allow me a small space in your valuable paper? We at Masseys have not been heard from for such a long time that the people of Old Kent county begin to think us dead. But such is not the case. We are growing in strength and population every year, and at this time we number about two hundred inhabitants with quite a number of good comfortable dwellings, two nice churches, three well-stocked stores, two hotels and a nice school-house—a beautiful country which is hard to beat and a nice neighborhood; with plenty of the earth's goods, abounding in milk and honey, and I believe the Lord smiles on us as a gift to the D. C. Party.

Our old friend, the Rev. J. N. Watson, has resigned his place as pastor of the St. Clement's Church. His place is filled by the Rev. Wm. H. Britton, of Philadelphia, who comes well recommended, and if he continues as he has commenced he will prove to be a guide for all who listen to his most excellent sermons. We again have the Rev. C. K. Morris presiding over the M. E. Church, which is at this time in rather a delicate condition, but with the efforts of our worthy and enterprising W. C., who has extended his assistance, I think he will make a success and get the old church in a flourishing condition.

The weather has been very favorable for our farmers; they are at this time busy in the way of husking corn, which promises a large yield. Wheat is looking splendid, and a more beautiful country I have never seen from Millington to Middletown by way of Sassafras, which is a very pretty little village.

Tuesday, election day, long looked for by our candidates, has come and gone with a glorious victory for the D. C. P. This was not a premeditated bluff game, but a square and fair fight. Although our old friend was defeated in the nomination he still stood to the helm and steered the old ship home. Historians and antiquarians were alike, but the Republican party is at a loss to know how the old First can roll up such a nice majority and help our afflicted districts out of trouble.

I will now leave you, but will let you hear from me again soon.

Yours truly, STRANGER.

SHOT DEAD.—A young man by the name of Richards, who was a resident of Baltimore, was accidentally shot at Elk Neck, Cecil county, last week by his uncle. Richards was trying to remove a shell from the gun—which was a breech-loader—when his uncle took the gun from him ane while trying to "break it," the gun was discharged. The load entered young Richards' left side killing him instantly.

For comfort and economy we commend the "Maltby House" to all our friends visiting Baltimore.

HIGH GRADE BONE FERTILIZERS.

We take pleasure in again calling the attention of farmers to our High Grade Fertilizers. It being eight years ago this spring since they were first offered to consumers under their present form; and from that time until now there has been an increasing demand for them, which is a far better testimonial to us than any letters of praise could be, although we do not want for these latter, as we are in receipt of many. It has been our aim to put up the best fertilizers we know how, and the results in the field clearly show that we have hit the mark right in the bull's eye, and we believe if consumers will take our target (American Brand, bull's head) they will ria good result every time—the bull's eye, if their aim is good.

THEIR CHARACTER.

The main characteristic of our fertilizers is that they are prepared with particular reference to the crop, and not to a chemical analysis; the latter does very well in its place, and we believe in chemistry thoroughly, but consumers are too often deceived with the idea that a chemical analysis is the main thing, and if they get a good analysis and high commericial valuation as figured out with arbitrary prices by the chemist, they must have a fine fertilizer. Now it may happen that a fertilizer, with a commercial valuation of $25 00 per ton, will give a better result on the crop than one with a valuation of $40 00 as based on a chemical analysis. And why should this be? Only because the material used in the one valued at $25 00 was better adapted to the crop than the other.

THEY ARE UNIFORM.

The goods we manufacture are uniform in composition, and are only varied in proportions, year after year, as we believe it to be an advantage to the crop. We New York, that our fertilizers are largely composed of these, and there is not that inducement for us to use cheaper material, that there might be, if we did not have this material.

BONE FERTILIZERS.

Our products are of a bone base, because we believe that is the most satisfactory source of phosphoric acid, and the large amount of animal matter our fertilizers contain makes them especially valuable in what may be considered the off or poor seasons. Some years it is noticed that almost any fertilizer will give fairly good results, but we find themost favorable comparisons for our products are in the poor years.
