SATURDAY MORNING.....Dec. 5, 1885.

A WOMAN GAMBLER.

New Racket of a Feminine Drummer—How She Bluffs the Players.

From the Chicago Herald.

"There's a new racket on the road," said a commercial traveler; "it's a female drummer. I met her the other day, and she is a dandy. Of course, she travels for a Chicago house, and she sells goods like a January thaw. She had been out so long now that she is as independent as a hog on ice. She sits in an ordinary railway car and charges up sleeping car berths in her expenses, just like the rest of us. She walks to the hotels from the stations and charges up the hack fares, just as we do. She beats the landlord down to $1.50 a day and charges the house $2.50, in the regular old style. She can take care of herself every day in the week, and she knows how to order up a bottle of wine and work it on the expense account, too. Why, when I saw her last she was a new silk dress ahead of the firm, and by New Year's proposed to have a sealskin sacque out of her expenses.

"And that isn't all—she has half of the hotel clerks in the Northwest mashed on her, and the way the little rascal knocks 'em down on her bills is a caution. She has a regular trick of staying over Sunday where one of her admirers runs the house and she walks off Monday morning, forgetting to pay the bill. What does she sell? That's the funniest thing about it. You would think she would handle jewelry, or dry goods, or fancy goods, wouldn't you, but she doesn't. She sells gents' furnishing goods and the fly young men who usually keep that kind of stores buy of her as if they hadn't seen a commercial traveler for six months. And she is a dandy poker player, too. She handles the cards awkwardly and acts as if she didn't know a full hand from two pairs and raises $2 on deuces and nearly cries when t'other fellow shows up three of a kind and then gets excited in a big jack-pot and raises the opener and bets the limit and raises back and scares t'other fellow out and slides into the deck a little pair of sixes or sevens or a bobtail as innocently as you please, Bluff? Why she has a bluff on her like the Wisconsin river. She's a daisy and I tell you it's mighty lucky for the boys that there ain't any more like her on the road."

A Kansas Tornado.

"One July night," continued the tall man, "I had my wheat all stacked ready for thrashing, and went to bed feeling as rich as if I owned the whole country. About midnight, as near as I can recollect, I heard a clap of thunder, and then the house began to rock like a willow tree. Then everything was quiet for a little while, and I went to sleep. Early the next morning my wife got up and looked out of the window.

"'John,' said she, 'where on earth is your wheat?'

"'What?' said I jumping out of bed, 'what's that you say?'

"'Where's the wheat?'

"I looked out of the window, too, and, stranger, I saw the most remarkable sight I ever saw. There wasn't a grain of wheat within a mile. There wasn't a remnant of my barn. My barnyard was gone, the house, the cows, and even the pigs were gone. I got dressed and walked out doors. The place was changed, stranger—changed in a single night. My house was sitting in a garden by the side of a creek. There was a new barn in the yard, some red cows—mine were white; some black pigs—mine were spotted, and instead of wheat there was the allfiredest stack of cornstalks you ever looked at. I thought at first I was dreaming, and asked my wife to kick me, but I wasn't.

"About breakfast time some neighbors came in and asked where Mr. Jones was. I never heard of him.

"'He used to live here,' they said, 'He lived here last night.'

"Then I told him of the crash and the rocking, and they said I must have been struck by a tornado. I asked where I was; they said I was in izard county, which was fifty miles south of where I went to bed. Sure enough they were right. The strangest part of it was the house wasn't hurt. The roof, even, didn't leak. The neighbors said it was a visitation of Providence, and the place belonged to me. But that wasn't all stranger. About a year afterward I heard from some of my old neighbors that Jones' house had been moved right up to where my old house stood, by the same blasted wind. We both concluded to stay where we were and avoided any trouble on that account. I've been away three months, and can't exactly say where I do live now, but I expect I am still at the old stand."

A Wise Peddler.

Peddleo (to woman at the door)—"Can I see your mother miss."

Woman—"My motne?"

Heddler—"Res, miss, the lady of the house. I have some beautiful articles that she will be glad to see."

Woman (graciously)—"Well—er—I am the lady of the house, sir, and if you will step into the parlor I will be glad to look at what you have there."

AN ANCIENT CUSTOM.—A custom of the days gone by still obtains in the District of Columbia courts. According to an old Maryland law, the foreman of each jury is presented with a pound of tobacco on rendering the verdict in each case. As this is far in excess of the demand for the weed, the cash equivalent, $1, is substituted. The tobacco fund amounts to a considerable sum during a term of court, and is usually devoted to the purchase of a cane for the foreman, bouquets for the judge, and minor comforts for the jurors.

PATENT MEDICINES are estimated by a leading English medical journal to cause the death of 150,000 persons per year.

HIGH GRADE BONE FERTILIZERS.

We take pleasure in again calling the attention of farmers to our High Grade Fertilizers. It being eight years ago this spring since they were first offered to consumers under their present form; and from that time until now there has been an increasing demand for them, which is a far better testimonial to us than any letters of praise could be, although we do not want for these latter, as we are in receipt of many. It has been our aim to put up the best fertilizers we know how, and the results in the field clearly show that we have hit the mark right in the bull's eye, and we believe if consumers will take our target (American Brand, bull's head) they will get a good result every time—the bull's eye, if their aim is good.

THEIR CHARACTER.

The main characteristic of our fertilizers is that they are prepared with particular reference to the crop, and not to a chemical analysis; the latter does very well in its place, and we believe in chemistry thoroughly, but consumers are too often deceived with the idea that a chemical analysis is the main thing, and if they get a good analysis and high commercial valuation as figured out with arbitrary prices by the chemist, they must have a fine fertilizer. Now it may happen that a fertilizer, with a commercial valuation of $25 00 per ton, will give a better result on the crop than one with a valuation of $40 00 as based on a chemical analysis. And why should this be? Only because the material used in the one valued at $25 00 was better adapted to the crop than the other.

THEY ARE UNIFORM.

The goods we manufacture are uniform in composition, and are only varied in proportions, year after year, as we believe it to be an advantage to the crop. We have such large supplies of Bone, Blood, etc., from the slaughter establishments of New York, that our fertilizers are largely composed of these, and there is not that inducement for us to use cheaper material, that there might be, if we did not have this material.

BONE FERTILIZERS.

Our products are of a bone base, because we believe that is the most satisfactory source of phosphoric acid, and the large amount of animal matter our fertilizers contain makes them especially valuable in what may be considered the off or poor seasons. Some years it is noticed that almost any fertilizer will give fairly good results, but we find themost favorable comparisons for our products are in he poor years.
