A FAMILY NEWSPAPER: Devoted to General and Local Intelligence and Literature; Agricultural, Horticultural, and Mechanical Interests; Politics and Advertising.

Vol. 46. CHESTERTOWN, MD., SATURDAY, DEC. 12, 1885. No. 32.

The Kent News:

PUBLISHED WEEKLY, AT

CHESTERTOWN, KENT COUNTY, MARYLAND.

Office in the Masonic Hall.

JAS. H. PLUMMER. WM. B. USILTON.

PLUMMER & USILTON,

EDITORS AND PROPRIETORS.

Terms of Subscription:

TWO DOLLARS per annum in advance; or, if not paid within six months from the time of subscribing, $2.50 may be charged.

LOCAL and other correspondence solicited.

AS AN EVIDENCE of good faith all communications addressed to THE NEWS must be accompanied by the writer's full name and address.

ADVERTISING RATES.

Advertisements occupying the space of eight lines, brevier type, will be inserted three times for one dollar, and twenty-five cents for each subsequent insertion. Obituaries at one-half advertising rates.

No gratuitous advertising. Calls for meetings, concerts, excursions, &c., for charitable, religious, or other purposes, must be paid for, the publishers standing on an equal footing with others, ready to contribute toward such objects as they may feel an interest in.

Job-Printing.

HANDBILLS, CARDS, CIRCULARS, BLANKS, BILLHEADS, &c., &c.,

executed with neatness and dispatch, and at reasonable prices.

To Tax Payers.

TO SECOND DISTRICT TAX-PAYERS.

TAXES are now all due, and I am compelled to settle with the State and individual claimants. I have no option in the matter. I must pay or be sued. Therefore, tax-payers must pay me or I must proceed to collect the same according to law. This is positive and will admit of no delay and those desiring to avoid unpleasant legal proceedings can do so only by immediate payment of their taxes before January 1, 1886.

On Saturday, Dec. 26, I will be at Kennedyville; Monday, 28th, at Lynch's; Tuesday, 29th, at Chestertown; Wednesday, 30th, Chesterville, and Thursday, the 31st, at Still Pond.

SAMUEL COMEGYS,
dec5-5t. Collector 2d District.

PAY YOUR TAXES!

AS COLLECTOR of the Fourth Election District I have my tax books in hand, and bills made out against each individual tax-payer, I am prepared to receive taxes for the year.

To accommodate tax-payers I will be at the Register's office in Chestertown every SATURDAY and TUESDAY afternoon.

Prompt payments are requested, so that I may not be embarrassed and saved the unpleasant necessity of forcing collections.

GEORGE S. BIDDLE,
aug22-tf. Collector 4th District.

A Word to the Wise About Taxes!

THE MAN—or woman either—who pays his taxes most promptly, is the most happy. He has relieved himself of a burden that increases in weight the longer it is borne; costs and interest are added and the tax-payer feels justified in blaming everybody and everything for the results of his own negligence. Therefore, be wise and happy—PAY YOUR TAXES at once—out of your Wheat or Peach money and don't wait for corn or uncertain collections.

To accommodate payers I will be in Chestertown every Tuesday and Worton Station every Saturday afternoon.

I have my books now in hand and your bills are ready. Resp'y, aug22-tf. JAS. S. GEMMILL.

FIFTH DISTRICT, ATTENTION!

'Come, let us Reason Together!'

AS citizens we desire to have good roads—we wish to attract visitors and strangers; as good and charitable people we want to make the poor comfortable; to secure peace and order it is needful to have efficient officers. Your boys and girls must be educated. All these things need money—it is indispensable. The Tax Books are now ready, and to facilitate the payment of your taxes I will be at ROCK HALL at 10 A. M., GREY'S INN 12 M., and EDESVILLE at 3 P. M.

First and Third Wednesdays in each month.

At LANKFORD and KILBURN the 2d and 4th Monday in each month

I shall be pleased to meet all my friends with their pockets full of current coin of the County, State and Nation as above appointed.

JAMES THOS. LAMB, Coll'r.
aug8.tf. 5th District.

The Little Folks!

CHILDREN!

We have just received our Annual

LETTER FROM KRIS KINGLE

and we have had it printed in order that you may know just what OLD KRIS is intending to do for you. You are well aware that our store is the place where Old Kris gets the pretty things to put in your stockings on Christmas Eve; so you must read the following letter

From Old Kris to his friend Cummings:

KRIS KINGLE CASTLE,
Nov. 24, 1885.

My Dear Old Friend Cummings:—As usual I address my annual letter to you. You know that only once a year I am enabled to write you for want of time, and I write you now because I must pay your beautiful town my Christmas visit for the purpose of distributing to all the children the many pretty things that I shall get at your store, for I know you always have them; and the fact is I have in the past been so well pleased with your selections that I shall not bring anything with me this season, but get all at your store. Please answer at your earliest convenience and tell me what you have in stock to select from. Of course I expect to have my old quarters at your store. I shall be down a few days before Christmas, so that I can have plenty of time to look over your stock.

Very truly, yours. KRIS KINGLE.

Reply from Cummings

CHESTERTOWN, MD., Nov. 28, 1885.

My Dear Old Friend Kris:—Your letter was duly received, and, believe me, I was delighted to hear from you, and to know that you had not forgotten us. Of course, you can have your old quarters at our store and I am glad to say that I have the largest collection for you to select from I have ever had, including all the newest and prettiest things that could be found. You have no need to bring anything with you; you will find all you want here. We have Dolls of all sizes and some of them have the prettiest faces you ever saw, also Express Wagons, Sleds, Barrows, Rocking Horses, Doll Watches, Trimmings for Christmas Trees, Whips, Horns, Drums, Dishes, Doll Houses, all kinds of Animals, and in fact everything ever found in a toy store, and we have tons of Candy of the best kind as well as cheap Candies, also Raisins, Figs, Dates, Oranges, Grapes, Lemons and Nuts. I can't begin to tell you half but come along and we will give you a fine reception.

n28. Yours truly, CUMMINGS & CO.

UNEXPECTED COURTSHIP.

"I do wish you'd sit down and keep quiet, Daisy, you distract me so, fluttering around the room like a bird!"

Now Miss Cybele Martin was a tall, masculine female, hard on the "thirties," with stiff little curls, and gold-rimmed spectacles, and a stand-up collar and cravat, like a man's, and she was very busy among a pile of books, preparing hard questions to annihilate her Sunday-school class on the morrow, while little sixteen-year old Daisy, with her pink and white skin and brown curls, and innocent blue eyes, beat a retreat, mortified at having "distracted" her staid sister.

"I suppose I shall learn better sometime," thought Daisy, "but, oh dear, I am such a silly little goose."

She went on tiptoe past the door where Mr. Vining, the young minister, was engaged in the revision of his sermon, for Mr. Vining lodged at Widow Martin's, and Daisy felt her youth and folly more painfully than ever in his dignified presence.

She stood a moment in the doorway where the cheerful July sun beams a golden checker-work on the floor, quiver ing through the vines, and a sweet odor crept subtly in, of newly-mown cloverfields, and roses just blossoming along the garden wall.

"I know what I'll do," thought Daisy as her pet, the kitten, darted away through the bushes. "I'll have some of those ripe cherries."

Daisy bounded down the garden-walk, deftly climbing the old stone wall, swung herself into the branches of the huge cherry-tree, like a white-plumed little bird.

"Mother would be horrified, and Cybele would have a fit," quietly she thought, "but it's so nice and shady up here, and the robins are stealing all the cherries. I almost wish I was a robin, it is such a pleasant life up among the green leaves with the blue sky peeping through. Dear me, I hope that isn't mamma!"

Daisy crept a branch or two higher up, as footsteps came down the garden-path.

Alas! her premonitions were but too correct. Mrs. Martin's cap-strings were fluttering below, and Mrs. Martin's self had come out with a bowl to pick currants, accompanied by Aunt Susannah, her sister.

"Now I'm caught," soliloquized our heroine. "I hope they won't be long. I wonder what they are talking about. Mr. Vining, as I live!"

Daisy held her breath, and secretly laughed to see how unconscious the old dames were of her near vicinity.

"Yes," said Mrs. Martin solemnly, "He's a good young man—a very good young man."

"There ain't no minister all the country round gives such satisfaction!" said Aunt Susannah. "Them cabbages is comin' on finely, Lucretia!"

"Oh, bother the cabbage!" said Mrs. Martin, tartly; "it's about Mr. Vining I'm talking Susannah! But he ought to marry and settle down. A single minister can't do all the good he could if he was married!"

"That's true," assented Aunt Susannah, "and Cybele would make a capital minister's wife."

"She's the very wife he needs; and if some one would just put the idea into his head."

"Perhaps he doesn't mean to marry."

"Then he's doing very wrong, encouraging Cybele the way he does, walking to Sunday-school with her, and talking about the poor money, and picking out the psalms and hymns with his head close to hers. Of all creatures, I do dislike a male coquette."

"Dear me, Lucretia!" said Aunt Susannah, with wild remonstrance, "I don't suppose he ever thinks of the thing."

"Then he ought to. Some one ought to speak to him."

Meek Aunt Susannah picked currants in perplexed silence.

"I don't really think he ought to trifle with my poor Cybele's feelings—and she is sensitive, too," resumed the widow.

"I never did pretend to understand young folks when love and courtship were in the business," said Aunt Susannah. "But it would be a fine thing for Cybele."

"I'd be proud to be a minister's mother-in-law," said Mrs. Martin, exultant at the remote possibility. "And Cybele is a very smart girl. You ought to hear her talk about free-will and foreordination! Why, Mr. Vining himself was astonished."

"I should think it very likely," said Aunt Susannah, dryly.

Cybele had never been her favorite niece; she had lectured Aunt Susannah too often for sleeping in church, singing out of tune, and other venial sins.

"I don't really know what to do about it," sighed good Mrs. Martin. "I wish somebody would speak to Mr. Vining, and tell him plainly what his duty is."

"Haven't we picked currants enough?" hazarded Aunt Susannah.

"I s'pose so," said Mrs. Martin sharply, "you never had the trials of a family, Susannah; and they come hard though my girls are pretty good girls, after all. Cybele's quite a model; and Daisy's well enough, if she would sober down a little."

And the two elderly ladies went in, with their bowl of sparkling red currants, leaving their unseen auditor still sitting among the cherry boughs, with her bright brown curls all blown about, and the scarlet velvet of her lips deeper and ruddier than ever.

"Dear me," thought Daisy, "there's a revelation! Our Cybele in love—I didn't know women who wore spectacles ever did fall in love; and Mr. Vining a male coquette—well I never should have thought that of Mr. Vining. I really think, as mamma says, some one ought to speak to him. I've a great mind to speak to him myself."

And fired with the ardor of her new plan, Daisy slid down from her perch in the cherry tree, to the great astonishment of her friends the robins, and ran into the house.

"I won't stop to consult mother or aunty, thought eager Daisy; for I know they'd think I ought not to speak, just because I am only sixteen years old."

So Miss Daisy stole like a white mouse along the hall, and tapped softly at Mr. Vining's study-door.

"Come in!" called out the clear sonorous voice of the young clergyman.

Not until our Daisy was fairly in the room did she fully realize the awkwardness of her position. Then with the roses mantling on her cheek and her head hung down, she stood a pretty picture of maidenly confusion.

"M—Miss Daisy," said Mr. Vining abstractedly, glancing up from his paper, and brightening visibly when he saw who it was, "I am happy to see such a little sunbeam in my gloomy old study. Sit down."

"No, sir, I can't stay," said Daisy, taking courage. "I only came to speak to you, sir—about being married."

"About being married!" echoed Mr. Vining, in genuine astonishment.

"Yes, sir," went on Daisy, twisting her fingers together; the people in the parish think you could do so much more good if you were married."

"So I might," assented the minister, musingly. "I have thought of that myself."

"Oh, then you have thought of it, sir!" cried Daisy delightedly. "I am so glad."

"Daisy, I have been here a long time."

"Yes, sir; I know you have."

"Should you be sorry to have me go away?"

Daisy lifted her eyes with a roguish sparkle beneath her curling brown lashes.

"You need not go away, sir; that is, if——"

"If what, Daisy?"

"Mother said this morning she would be very proud to be the minister's mother-in-law."

Mr. Vining looked a little surprised but not at all displeased, as Daisy stood demurely before him with her roseate cheeks and dishevelled curls.

"Did she really say so, Daisy?"

"I heard her say so."

"To you?"

"No, not to me, sir."

"Daisy, would you like it?"

"Oh, sir, I should be so delighted!" cried Daisy, clapping her hands gleefully.

"A minister's wife has many trials to bear with, Daisy."

"Oh, yes, sir; but if she loves her husband——"

"Do you think my little wife would love her husband?"

How strange it was to think of Cybele as a "little wife!" Daisy thought love must cast a glamour on the young minister's eyes; but she answered nevertheless:

"I am sure of it, sir! Cybele is so sensible and so learned."

"Yes, I know," answered Mr. Vining, with something of a puzzled expression on his face. "Miss Cybele is a very worthy person, and I shall be very happy to be connected, however distantly, with her."

Daisy stared until her blue eyes were like newly-opened blue-bells. What on earth did the minister mean.

Mr. Vining, however, appeared to be very clear on the subject of his intentions.

He took Daisy's hand in his and drew her toward him with caressing gentleness that the young girl felt to be very pleasant.

"But you, Daisy, my dear little wild-flower, when you are my wife——"

"I!" echoed Daisy, suddenly becoming as red as her own pink neck-ribbon. "I your wife, Mr. Vining?"

"Who else?" demanded the young minister, with a puzzled countenance. "I have been in love with you for the last three months, my Daisy. Nay, do not try so tremblingly to escape from me! Surely—surely I am not so disagreeable to you as that?"

"N—no," hesitated Daisy, "it isn't that—but I thought it was Cybele."

Mr. Vining laughed.

"I respect Miss Cybele very sincerely, but I should just as soon think of marrying my Greek dictionary."

"But I am such a silly little goose, and I am only sixteen, and mamma and Cybele are always scolding me!"

"But," mimicked Mr. Vining, with playful fondness, "they will not scold the minister's wife. And I shall never let the winds of heaven blow too roughly on my little Daisy!"

"I can't believe it," said Daisy, energetically. "But you love me, Daisy, do you not?"

"I have never thought of it before," said Daisy, meditatively twisting one of her curls around her finger. "But I think I do."

"Daisy! Daisy, child!"

Half an hour had elapsed, and Mrs. Martin was calling loudly for the little stray to come and set the table for dinner.

"I never saw such a child," sighed the widow. "Always out of the way when she's wanted. Oh, here you are! Where on earth have you been?"

"In Mr. Vining's study, mamma."

"What were you doing there?"

"Talking to him, mamma, about his marriage," answered Daisy, mischievously.

"Is Mr. Vining going to be married?" eagerly demanded the widow.

"Yes, mamma."

"Bless my soul alive! Cybele do you hear that? And to whom?"

"To me mamma."

"Nonsense!"

"But it isn't nonsense, mamma," cried Daisy, triumphantly, showing a little gold ring with a blue stone that Mr. Vining had placed on the forefinger of her left hand. "And we are to be married in September next! Mamma, you will be the minister's mother-in-law, after all!"

"Daisy, are you in earnest?" demanded Cybele.

"Never more so in my life!"

"Do you love him?"

Daisy sobered down a minute, and laid her face on her sister's shoulder.

"I love him dearly, Cybele?"

It was a disappointment to Cybele, but she congratulated Daisy in true sisterly style after all. If she couldn't be the minister's wife, it was next best to be his sister-in-law.

And so began Daisy's unexpected courtship.

TO TRY PASTEUR'S CURE.

Six Children Bitten by a Mad Dog to be Sent to Paris for Treatment.

Philadelphia Press.

A special dispatch from Newark, N. J., of Dec. 3, says: A mad dog running in the streets of the Fifth Ward yesterday bit six of a crowd of school children in McWhorter street. Before the animal was killed about thirty other dogs were also bitten. The children are: William Lane, aged 12; Hattie Frech, aged 10; George C. Hules, aged 6; Austin Fitzgerald, aged 9; James Reynolds, aged 10, and Austin Reynolds, aged 5. Their wounds were cauterized by physicians.

The Chief of Police ordered all the dogs supposed to have been bitten to be killed, and two police officers poisoned thirty this afternoon with strychnine. Dr. Wm. O'Gorman at once interested himself in the unfortunate children, whose parents are all poor. He published an appeal to the people of Newark this afternoon. He referred to Pasteur's discovery of mitigated hydrophobia virus, and said: "I have such confidence in the preventive force of inoculation by mitigated virus that, were it my misfortune to be bitten by a rabid dog I would board the first Atlantic steamer, go straight to Paris and place myself immediately in the hands of Pasteur. I appeal to the medical profession and to the humane of all classes to help to send the poor children where there is almost a certainty of prevention and cure."

The appeal at once aroused much interest and over $100 was immediately subscribed by prominent citizens. Dr. O'Gorman at once cabled to Pasteur: "Three children bitten by dog supposed to be mad. Dog promptly killed. Will you take charge of children if sent to Paris? I have head and spinal column of dog supposed to be rabid, and will send them if requested."

To a Press reporter Dr. O'Gorman said that he expected to send the children to Paris by the French Line of steamers from New York on Wednesday. He estimates the cost of trip at $1000. The children, he says, can be cared for in Parisian hospitals free of cost. A meeting of the medical profession of Newark will be held and measures adopted to raise funds.

A secret society for the extermination of dogs was formed this evening, and if the mayor does not order all dogs found running at large without muzzles to be shot, they will be poisoned.

A Beautiful Tribute.

We have seen many beautiful tributes to lovely woman, but the following is the finest we ever read: "Place her among the flowers, foster her as a tender plant, and she is a thing of fancy, waywardness, and folly—annoyed by a dew-drop, fretted by the tou
