Kent News.

SATURDAY MORNING.....Dec. 19, 1885.

A Word to Patrons of the "News."

While the News has a large number of prompt paying subscribers—patrons who cheer us with their regular annual visits,—and numerous liberal advertisers, whose accounts are never allowed to run behind,—an examination of our books discloses the fact that many of our patrons are in arrears. Some of our subscribers are several years behind. A large number of unpaid accounts are also on our books for advertising, job-printing, &c. The separate amounts are mostly small but in the aggregate foot up a considerable sum. Pressing obligations are now upon us and compel us not merely to ask for but to INSIST UPON SETTLEMENT IN EVERY CASE.—Every dollar upon our books will be required between now and the first of January, and therefore the failure to pay on the part of any single one indebted will embarrass us to that extent. Even were we able to indulge longer it would be unjust for our patrons to ask it, and none can reasonably do so. We therefore give this notice and earnestly request that ALL PERSONS INDEBTED TO US ON ANY ACCOUNT—whether the amount be one dollar or fifty—will kindly call at the office immediately and settle. Patrons at a distance can transmit by money order or registered letter.—Unless settlement is made WITHIN the NEXT THIRTY DAYS we shall be under the disagreeable necessity of enforcing payment. We have certainly been indulgent in the extreme, and it would be a reflection upon our generous patrons to suppose that any of them will neglect a favorable response to this appeal and force us to unpleasant measures.

Death of Gen. Robert Toombs.

Gen. Robert Toombs died on Tuesday at his home, at Washington, Wilkes county, Georgia. The Augusta Chronicle says of him: "Of all Southern statesmen of the last generation Gen. Toombs was the boldest and brainiest. In intellectual power and oratorical ability he had no superior among them. Meeting upon the political arena Johnston, Stephens, Jenkins, Cobb, Brown and Hill, he will stand out in the history of Georgia's distinguished sons as the most eloquent. Gen. Toombs was a great lawyer, a brilliant statesman and a successful financier. For thirty years no politician exercised more influence in Georgia. In the constitutional convention of 1877 he left a lasting impression, being the author of the constitutional provision regulating the railroads of the State."

Mr. Toombs' political career began with his election to the Georgia Legislature in 1836. His membership in that body lasted continuously, with the exception of the year 1841, until 1845. While in the legislature he was elected to Congress, where he remained eight years. In 1853 he was elected to the United States Senate and re-elected in 1859, and retired only when the States seceded. He was offered the Secretaryship of the Treasury by President Fillmore and the Secretaryship of War by President Taylor, and declined both. Jefferson Davis, on being elected President of the Confederacy, appointed Mr. Toombs Secretary of State. He at first declined, but on being urged to reconsider he did so, fearing, as he has since said, that his refusal might be considered indicative of a lack of harmony. But he was never satisfied with his position in the Cabinet, and resigned in September, 1861, to accept a position in the field. General Toombs was a fine soldier and a brilliant fighter. Gen. Longstreet once said of him: "I have seen him in battle often, and I never saw a braver man lead a brigade." At the battle of Antietam, while the attack upon the Confederate left and centre was in progress, Gen. Burnside made repeated efforts to force the bridge, which now bears his name, over Antietam creek, opposite Longstreet's right wing, defended by General Toombs with two regiments of his own brigade and the batteries of Gen. Jones. This small force, under the immediate command of General Toombs, repulsed five different assaults made upon it by greatly superior numbers.

General Toombs was quite wealthy, his estate being valued at probably $500,000. His income from his law practice has reached $40,000 per annum. His hopes of political preferment died with the Confederacy, and he felt no ambition to go back to the Senate and retrace his steps. At the close of the war he could have had anything within the gift of the people, and he retained his popularity to the end. After the death of Mrs. Toombs, three years ago, he united with the Methodist Church, of which she was a lifelong member. He never took the oath of allegiance under the provisions of the amnesty proclamation, and had the singular distinction of being the only native-born white man in this country except Jefferson Davis who was debarred from the rights and privileges of citizenship.

The Federal Election Laws—Deputy Marshals Not Likely to be Employed.

The Washington correspondent of the Baltimore Sun writes:

The federal election laws from their first inception have met the unrelenting opposition of the democratic side in Congress, and the partisan manner in which these laws have as a rule been administered has not been approved by the country. From the period of their enactment down to the presidential election of last year it has never been omitted to surround the polls in all large democratic cities with hordes of deputy marshal's working in the interest of the republican candidates. It had been anticipated that the President and the Attorney-General would in the communications just sent to Congress make some comment on this subject and recommend repeal or modification of the existing statutes. Various democratic members of Congress have expressed their surprise that neither the message nor the report of the Attorney-General contained one word of allusion to the matter. But the fact that nothing was said with regard to the legislative enactments, which were made solely for the benefit of the republican party, must not be taken as an indication that the subject had escaped attention. To the contrary, it was freely discussed not only between the President and the Attorney-General, but at cabinet council. It was concluded that as the rights of the people are in no danger of infringement upon by this administration, it was scarcely necessary to discuss the subject with Congress with one branch in opposition. Most if not all of the really objectionable features of the election laws rest upon the discretion of the executive officers. When the congressional elections come around next year, it will be entirely natural for democratic partisans to follow the example set them for so many years, and apply for the appointment of democratic deputy marshals in all republican strongholds. But it can be said now that all such applications, if made, will be refused. The spectacle will not be witnessed under this administration of partisan battalions under the thin guise of law interfering with the freedom of elections. The ordinary and proper safeguards and the inherent sense of right and justice in the American people can and will be relied upon as ample protection for the ballot-box. In nothing that it has done or can do will this administration commend itself more to public confidence than in declining to prostitute to its advantage the partisan election machinery so long and so successfully availed of by the opposition.

The Press on the Message.

New York World: The message is a safe, clear, conservative paper, and upon the whole is an able state document.

New York Times: Nobody can read this message without crediting its author with a sincere adherence to his own doctrine that "public office is a public trust."

Philadelphia Ledger: It is a clear, frank, vigorous document in its style, and business-like in its methods—except for its inordinate length. If it were not for this one fault it could be praised without qualification.

Philadelphia Record: The message ought to conciliate the opposition majority in the Senate by the thoroughness with which it steers clear of points of political difference and the zeal and ardor with which it insists upon reforms that no party will care to resist.

Philadelphia Press: The first message of President Cleveland has the one fault of prolixity and the many merits of good writing, dignified manner, elevated tone, and sound judgment on most points.

New York Star: As a whole, the message will be received by the people with approval and by the Democrats of the country with satisfaction and pride. It marks the new era in our history. It shows that the civil war is ended at last, and that the country is in truth at peace. From the first sentence to the final one, there is no mention of those differences which lately involved the land in war, and which afterward gave a long life to hatreds that became a food upon which a great party lived.

The London Standard says: The message is temperate and dignified and goes far to justify Mr. Cleveland's election.

A BANQUET was given Wednesday night at New Brighton, Staten Island, by Mr. Erastus Wiman to Mr. Robt. Garrett, president of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, in honor of the proposed extension of the Baltimore and Ohio Road to New York. Speeches were made by Messrs. Erastus Wiman, George William, George William Curtis, Robert Garrett, Gov. Lloyd, of Maryland, Mayor Hodges, of Baltimore, and representatives of New York, New Jersey and other places.

WILLIAM H. VANDERBILT'S WILL.

Ten Millions to Each Child—Cornelius and William K. Get the Lion's Share.

The will of Willam H. Vanderbilt has been filed in the office of the probate clerk of New York city. The document covers 18½ pages of foolscap type-writing.

The will first makes provision for the widow. To her the decedent gives for her use during life the house in which he resided at the time of his death, the pictures and other works of art, horses, carriages and stables, and he also leaves her an annual allowance of $200,000. To each of the four daughters he leaves the houses in which they are now living, near his own home. He then sets apart $40,000,000 of railroad and other securities as a trust fund. This will be divided into eight equal parts, and each of the eight children is to receive the income from $5,000,000 during life. The principal goes to the children of each one in such proportion as that child may direct by will. If any son dies without leaving issue, his portion is divided among his surviving brothers or their surviving issue. The same direction is applied to the daughters' shares. The testator next sets apart $40,000,000 of certain specified securities and direct that they be divided into eight equal parts and distributed to the children, giving to each one $5,000,000 absolutely. After the death of the widow, the works of art, excepting the marble bust of Commodore Vanderbilt (which is given to Cornelius), the family residence, horses, &c., in which the widow is given a life estate, are bequeathed to George W. Vanderbilt or to his children if he should be dead. If George W. dies without leaving issue, William H. Vanderbilt, the eldest son of Cornelius, will receive this property and $2,000,000 besides. The testator gives $1,000,000 to this grandson, irrespective of George W. leaving children. If the grandson William H. is not living at the time when such bequests would fall to him, they will go instead to the next son of Cornelius, who bears the same name as his father, "my object being," the testator says, "that my present residence and my collection of works of art be retained and maintained by a male descendant bearing the name of Vanderbilt."

Mr. Vanderbilt also gives $30,000 to William V. Kissam, a nephew; to Jacob H. Vanderbilt, the dividends during life on 1,000 shares of New York Central Railroad stock; an annuity of $2,000 each to a number of relatives, and of $1,200 to others, to E. V. W. Rossiter, $10,000; to the Vanderbilt University of Tennessee, $200,000. To the following $100,000 each is bequeathed. The Domestic and Foreign Missionary Society of the Protestant Episcopal Church, St. Luke's Hospital, the Young Men's Christian Association of New York, the Protestant Episcopal Mission Society of New York, the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the Moravian Church at New Dorp. The following get $50,000 each: The General Theological Seminary, the New York Bible and Common Prayer-Book Society, the Home for Incurables, the Protestant Episcopal Church Missionary Society for Seamen in the City and Port of New York, the New York Christian Home for Intemperate Men and the American Museum of Natural History.

All the remainder of the vast estate is given in equal shares to Cornelius Vanderbilt and William K. Vanderbilt. The widow and four sons are made executrix and executors, and each son is made one of the trustees for all the trust funds except those for his own benefit. They shall serve, if they qualify, without compensation. If any portion of the will is declared invalid, the testator directs that the will be construed as if such part was not contained in it. The will is under seal and is dated September 25, 1884.

Speaking of the will, Mr. Chauncey M. Depew, Mr. Vanderbilt's legal adviser, said: "All the heirs are entirely satisfied with the will. There are no codicils, and as all the heirs are over age they can, if they wish, waive the service of the citation and appear before the 30th and the will be proved. Again, it is proper to say that, so far as the stocks and bonds of the various railroad companies devised to the children are concerned, they have united in an understanding that all will act together in holding and administering them, and consequently no disposition can be made of them by sale without the joint consent of all. By this the control and management of the properties known as the Vanderbilt system will remain unchanged.

HOLIDAY EXCURSION RATES OF THE PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD.—Pursuant to the usual custom of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company excursion tickets for holiday travel will be sold between all stations on the main line and branches December 23d, 24th, 25th, 30th and 31st, and January 1st, 1886, good to return until January 4th, at a considerable reduction from ordinary rates. This will enable all, who desire it, to indulge in the pleasure of holiday excursions and social visits, at very small expense.

THE true Civil Service Reform is thus outlined in the Midland Journal: "The Secretary of the Treasury has reduced the salaries of some of the offices in his department. If all the government salaries were cut down one-half there would be less scrambling for office. As long as high salaries and little work are offered by the government, office-hunting will continue to be a demoralizing business. High salaries do not procure competency, but rather the reverse."

THE Postmaster-General has made an order fixing the fees on international money-orders on and after January 1, 1886, as follows: For sums not exceeding $10, ten cents; over $10 and not exceeding $20, twenty cents; over $20 and not exceeding $30, thirty cents; over $30 and not exceeding $40, forty cents; over $40 and not exceeding $50, fifty cents.

"A FEW million Christmas turkeys would help employees on the Vanderbilt lines to mourn their loss wonderfully," is the sententions remark of the New York Journal. There is truth in this, but a few million turkeys cost a few million dollars, and who is going to foot the bill?

BALTIMORE MARKET.—The Baltimore papers of yesterday quote as follows:

WHEAT—Longberry 98c.@$1 00; Fultz, 96c.@91c for fair to good. CORN—White, prime, 43@45; yellow, 43@45. OATS—40.

The Silver Question.

The New York Chamber of Commerce held a special meeting last week to take action upon the suggestions contained in the President's message in relation to the repeal of the law regarding the coinage of the silver dollar. The committee on finance and currency reported that after careful consideration they had unanimously agreed to support the President of the United States and the Secretary of the Treasury in the stand they had taken in relation to the suspension of the present silver dollar, and recommended the adoption of a resolution to that effect and the memorializing of Congress to have the compulsory act of February, 1878, repealed. Addresses in favor of the report were made by Jesse Seligman and William E. Dodge and others, and in opposition by James B. Colgate. The report was then adopted and copies ordered to be printed and sent to the various members of Congress.

A HEAVY RAIN!

COOLER WEATHER EXPECTED!

There is no better time to think of one's Shoes than after a rain. Whatever impression you have this is addressed to one who thinks the SHOE STORE can't possibly be the best place to go for Shoes. Will you look at a pair? We can show you the largest selection of shoes and give you what you want and not force something on you that you do not want.

Our Hand-Made Shoes!

are the shoes for ladies who have tender feet—better for comfort and economy but not for your shoemaker. We take that back, we firmly believe what is best for you is best for us in the long run.

Our Mat and Dongola Kid Shoes are becoming very popular. Have you seen our Ladies and Misses' "SCALCHIE 2"? It is a Button Gaiter to wear over the shoe, made of water-proof cloth and rubber, buttoning up high—the thing for mud. The first opportunity you have call and look at them. Our Ladies and Misses' Heavy Shoes are selling very rapidly and giving entire satisfaction.

We would call your attention to our Line of Men's Boots!

Having purchased a large stock this season we can give you a better selection and save you money by buying of us. Our space will not allow us to give price, but will say we can sell you a fine boot for $1 75, a better one for $2, &c. Our Double-Upper Calf Boot takes the lead for those who do not want a heavy boot. Our stock of Men's Fine Shoes is complete.

We challenge the world to produce to equal ours for durability, style and comfort. Our Waulkenphasts which we have made are superior to all Eastern makes, will give you more wear, comfort and satisfaction and will not cost you as much money as others will charge you for those made by Eastern factories. Look at our Men's $4 Calf Shoes, they are beauties of the latest style.

RUBBERS, RUBBERS, RUBBERS,

MARBLE WORKS!

[NEXT DOOR TO THE MARKET HOUSE, CHESTERTOWN.]

I Challenge the United States to produce better marble or finer finished work than I have done at my Yard. I guarantee its durability. You can see for yourselves in all your Cemeteries or in my Yard. I work no Scraps that have been thrown away by the saw-yards. I work no Pennsylvania marble; it will not stand the weather. I keep no agent out to torment. Persons know when they want and they had better look at the stone before buying—go look through your Cemeteries and see the broken and defaced stone. If you want a good and lasting Tombstone or Cottage Monument or a Shaft Monument of any size, I have the Largest Finished Stock of Marble on this Shore, and I will not be outdone in Prices. Call and examine for yourself. Respectfully,

W. REGISTER.
