Kent News.

SATURDAY MORNING ....MARCH 6, 1886.

THE U. S. Senate on Monday confirmed Mr. I. Freeman Rasin for naval officer at Baltimore without opposition.

TUESDAY was the fiftieth anniversary of the declaration of Texas' independence, and was observed as a holiday throughout the State.

M. PASTEUR has announced to the Academy that his system of inoculation proved successful in 325 cases of persons who had been bitten by mad dogs. In only one case did the treatment result in failure, and in that case there was a hopeless delay in seeking the assistance of M. Pasteur.

AMONG the delegates to the International Editorial Association which met in Cincinnati, Ohio, recently, were George E. Haddaway, Esq., of the Easton Ledger, and Col. W. Scott Roberts, of the Centreville Record. A toast to "Delaware and Maryland" was eloquently and brilliantly responded to by Col. Roberts.

THE attempt to recover the bodies of the entombed miners at Nanticoke, Pa., has been abandoned, the company having concluded that to search further for the bodies of dead men in the face of certain death to an indefinite number of men now alive was a risk not to be further continued. This is a sad ending to a terrible [trag]edy.

[M]r. POWHATAN CLARK read an interesting [pa]per before the Baltimore Academy of Sciences [...] evening on "Green-Gilled Oysters." [It] will be [shown] the unreasonableness of the prejudice against [the] [...]ies of the bivalve, which go to the courts [...]less, as well as pala[table]. [...] the law in these cases.

At the last regular meeting of the Eureka Grange the name of Rev. R. H. Murphy was proposed for membership. Miss Mamie Dewees was elected editor for the next coming issue of the "Grange Gleaner." J.

What Became of the Boots?

The other day Dr. Hurty's small boy wanted a pair of rubber boots. The doctor tried to reason him out of it, but the youngster persisted in his demand. Finally, the doctor told him a little story—one he had read in the newspaper. The boy was all attention and the story proceeded:

"A little boy in Pittsburg had been given a pair of rubber boots by his father. He waded in the water with them—water ran over the tops of the boots—boy took cold—mother put his feet in hot water—grew worse—doctor came—little boy died—undertaker—funeral."

The small boy listened attentively to the end of the story, and the father was congratulating himself on the impression he had made when, with a long breath, the youngster asked:

"What did they do with the boots?"

Astonishing the Natives.

A worthy country woman whose daughter was about to visit the city for the first time, felt called upon to give timely admonition, and did so in the following ambitious way: "Sary Jane, don't act green. When I went to the city they wa'n't nobody that would 'spishion I hadn't been born and raised in reg'lar city style. There'll be handkerchiefs at every plate at the table, an' a bowl o' water to wash your face an' hands in when you're done eatin'. Don't eat a thing with your knife. I've read that time an' again. It's slow work eatin' soup with a fork, but when 'one's in Rome one must act the Roman. It looks real smart an' purty to say a little French once in awhile, an' if a lady calls on you you must foller her to the door an' say: 'Bon jower, meshsheer!'"

Revenge Was Sweet.

Colonel Yerger presented his wife with a sealskin sack. She immediately insisted on walking out with it on. It was very cold, and he said, with a shiver:

"Let us go home; I'm almost frozen."

"I don't feel cold at all," she replied, with chattering teeth, "but let us go back and walk past the windows of those Petersbys."

"But you may get pneumonia and die a painful death."

"But why do you want to go by the Petersby mansion again?"

"I want that stuck-up Mrs. Petersby to see my new sack once more anyhow. It will make them gnash their teeth and turn green with envy when they see it and think of their last winter's cloaks that they are wearing."—Siftings.

A Practical Test.

Not long ago a ranting Chicago communist gathered a crowd and entertained them with his diatribes on the inequalities of riches and poverty. He was in the midst of his fiery declarations that the capital of the rich belonged to the laboring classes, when a clear voice arose from the crowd:

"You've got a gold watch and I haven't any. I want yours."

The speaker was non-plussed. Recovering himself, however, he said: "I bought this watch and paid for it."

"Don't make any difference," persisted the voice; "youv'e got a gold watch and I haven't—I want it!"

The talker was checkmated and the meeting broke up.

"JOHN," said she at the breakfast table the other morning, "don't you think that this oleomargarine is better than usual?" "I do. Very likely the grocer has sold you axle-grease by mistake."

Collector of the Port.

Ex-Gov. James B. Groome entered upon his duties as collector of the port of Baltimore on Monday, succeeding Col. Edwin H. Webster. The new and the old collector met at Barnum's Hotel after breakfast, and walked to the custom-house together.

Collector Groome sent to Washington the nomination of ex-State Senator Wm. M. Knight to be deputy collector, in place of Mr. Geo. M. McComas. The other deputy collector, Mr. Henry R. Torbert, will remain for some time, it is thought until the Legislature adjourns and allows State Senator T. Herbert Shriver, of Carroll county, to accept the place. Collector Groome had a great many visitors. The heads of departments and most of the other employes of the custom-house paid their respects to Gov. Groome, and they also took formal leave of Mr. Webster, presenting him with an address expressive of their appreciation of his uniform courtesy and kind treatment during his term of office. Col. Webster made a very appropriate speech in reply, in which he complimented the zeal and efficiency of his subordinates and eulogized the civil service act.

In conversation with a Sun reporter Mr. Groome said: "You may state that I will make no changes until I am acquainted with the duties of the places and know the qualifications of the people to fill them. There are fifty-three places, so I was told at the Treasury Department, that are outside of civil service, and about one hundred and fifty-eight that are protected by the civil-service law. Of the places outside the law there are the [...] deputies, the cashier and the assistant ca[shier] and the assistant custodian of public bu[ildings]. These five officers, of course, I am finan[cially re]sponsible for. The other forty-eight [...] paying from $840 down."

Shall We Have Gas?

Some of the citizens of Chestertown are moving in the matter of gas. Messrs. Clements & York, our enterprising plumbers, took the lead some weeks since by circulating a paper for subscriptions to a gas company and secured about ten thousand dollars. As stated in our last issue a number of the subscribers have been investigating the subject to decide as between gas and electricity. These investigators have now about reached the conclusion that the success of the electric light in Chestertown is not possible because of the impracticability of its economic [use] in families. The next question to be decided [is] what kind of gas shall be used? The water [gas] is believed to be a decided improvement [over] coal gas, but it costs about five thousand [dollars] more to put the former in operation. [...] words, estimating the cost of the [...] company to use coal gas at $12,000 [...] plant for water gas would be at $[...] It is not thought there will be [...] getting the stock all taken [...] gas company—the kind [...] cities and also in sev[eral] [...] towns. But whet[her] [...] secured for the [...] is proposed [...] termine [...] gas co[...] four [...]

STORIES OF THE WAR ILLUSTRATED IN EVERY ISSUE.

A Paper for the Homes of the Land—Sparkling and Original in Every Feature.

On the first of January, 1886, a new departure in every feature of the Weekly Times was made. Every number will be liberally illustrated in its War contributions, which have so long been a specialty in its colums, and in its Stories, which will be greatly enlarged from the pens of the best writers, and in Current History, Biography, Politics, Art, Science and the leading events of the day.

The time has passed for the weekly journal of the city to fill the place of the newspaper. The daily newspapers from the great centres of news now reach into every section of the land. Every inland city and every town of importance have their daily newspapers, and the local weekly, with the wonderful progress in provincial journalism, meets every want that the daily newspaper fails to supply. The metropolitan weekly of today must be much more than a newspaper; it must be a magazine of family reading; it must lead the magazine in popular literature, and it must meet every requirement of the intelligent reader of every class.

STORIES OF THE WAR will be published in each number from the ablest writers who participated in the bloody drama of civil strife, and each will be profusely illustrated. The most entertaining and instructive Stories from the best writers of fiction will appear in each issue, with illustrations.
