but little cash, I will now explain the delay in answering your first letter, when it was received the sale was pending and I thought I would wait until I could give you some account of the sale, and when I wished to do that, I found I had unaccountably misplaced the letter, and had forgotten your Christian name, but still intending every day to lay my hand upon it, I was glad to receive your second and yet very sorry I have kept you so long in suspence, I saw the purchaser to day he says he will not fail of the $100 payment on the 25th Oct, but has some fears of the May payment the Money is loaned out in small sums and he is afraid he will be disappointed in making collections, I will endeavour however to keep him up to the mark, I will remit you the $100 payable next week, by Mail, if on the receipt of this you direct me to do so, or can point out any other way you would prefer — Please direct to Cook's Bridge post-office — Yours with much respect
