SATURDAY MORNING..........APRIL 24, 1886.

Items From Worton.

Messrs. Editors :— Rev. T. S. Dewing, pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Worton Station, has resigned his charge. This will doubtless occasion surprise and regret on all sides. Mr. D. has labored with the church uninterruptedly since its formation, about three years since. And he has done service in this section, if not long, at least well. He has had remarkable success, considering his environments, in this field. The pastor retires with the regrets and good wishes of his many admirers whom he leaves behind, who would commend to his remembrance the prophecy, applicable to his case, contained in Ps. 126:6—"He that goeth forth and weepeth, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him." Mr. Wm. T. Parsons, of Princeton Theological Seminary, a member of said church, has been appointed by New Castle Presbytery as stated supply for the summer and expects to be at his post on the 9th proximo. P.

LETTER FROM ROCK HALL.

"Yankee Doodle came to town to buy a pair of trousers,
But found he could not see the town, it was so full of houses."

Such were our feelings when searching for the village of "Lousetown," but luckily we found it at last hidden behind a dry goods box which is used for a step in lighting the street lamp. Then remembering the injunction, "Rejoice with those who are happy," we tried to forget our own troubles at hearing the joyous shout of your correspondent. While he and his 180 compatriots are rejoicing in the hallelujah corner, we 584 on the mourner's bench can afford, after shedding two tears apiece, to bestow a sympathizing smile in their direction; which is equal to three smiles each for them; thus giving them more time to shout, and making us feel better, far better than running a grief distillery. Yet, still, is it not funny to find Rock Hall postoffice at the village of Lousetown? Is it not a little village? So, to obviate any mistakes, a street lamp has been placed on the side of the road with a metallic letter-box attached to the post, so there is no excuse for a sober man even on the darkest night to blunder into the magistrate's office, where we understand a gallows is to be erected as soon as other fixings are complete; this probably is the New York style. We failed to see the magistrate's office, though it must be there or your correspondent would not have said so. Like the new postmaster we are not much on babies, but are always glad to congratulate those who pride themselves in the dear responsibilities. Apropos: a very strange disease, amounting to an epidemic has made its appearance at Rock Hall. It appears to be something of a St. Vitus' affection and manifests itself in a sudden placing of the thumb under the nose whenever postoffice is mentioned; the pressure causing a wink of the eye, which goes off at half-cock, leaving a long, longing stare, as if looking at something far away. Thus far it has baffled the skill of our talented young physician, Dr. Taylor, who has failed as yet to make a diagnosis of the malady; in fact, we understand, he is laboring under an attack himself. We have made the most earnest inquiries as to the feelings of the sufferers, but all the satisfaction we can get is "Wait and see." We are glad to say there are no fatal cases as yet. SCRUTATOR.

A KNIGHT OF LABOR MILITIAMAN. — Hearing that a master workman of the Knights of Labor was among the militia, a reporter set out to investigate. After a short search he found his man, who proved to be Thomas Taylor, master workman of Assembly No. 3168 of Newton, Ill. "Yes, sir," replied that gentleman, "I am a master workman of the Knights of Labor. We are making a hard and earnest fight, and I think by arbitration we will win. Yes, it is true, I am wearing Gould clothes [looking at his brass buttons] and protecting Gould's property, but that is my duty as a militiaman and an old soldier. I responded like the others to the first call for men, and that is the reason I am here. No, I do not consider it taking up arms against the Knights of Labor. It is not the Knights that are burning the cars." "Who is it?" "Well, I don't know why you ask that question, for I don't know who you are, but it is my candid opinion that Jay Gould burned those cars, or at least had it done by hoodlums to gain a point, namely, the sympathy of the people. No, I don't care to talk about either Powderly or Gould's late letters. I think that all is for the best, and that the Knights of Labor will gain the day."—St. Louis Republican.

MR. L. FREEBURGER, of the General Wayne Stables, Paca and Baltimore streets, Baltimore, is the owner of a queer specimen of horseflesh. The animal is about 15½ hands high, and in some respects resembles a buffalo. The head and body and the hair are like a cow's, and the legs and tail like a horse's. The curiosity was captured three or four years ago by a band of Indians in Dakota, and held by them in great reverence until purchased by a showman, who exhibited it through the West. It was then bought by a gentleman in Pittsburg, who in turn sold it to Mr. Freeburger. The horse has been worked but once in harness and behaved very nicely. It is about nine years old. The hair on the body of the animal is dark brown, closely matted, and is fully five inches long; that on the legs seven and eight inches. It eats like a cow, picks up hay with its tongue, and chews the cud as naturally as would a cow. The climate from which this curious equine came is very cold, and, singularly, the heat here does not affect it in the least, notwithstanding its heavy overcoat.—American.

WICOMICO'S PEACH CROP.—Wicomico county, like most other sections of the Peninsula, has the peach craze. The Salisbury Advertiser, in its last issue, says: The peach crop in this county is promising. The prospects are better than usual. The setting out of young trees this season has been unusually large. There have been at least 150,000 and probably 200,000 planted. A very characteristic feature about this craze is that people are not only planting, but they are cultivating the tree after it is planted. Our farmers are beginning to realize that there is but little money in grain, especially from light, sandy soil. Altogether the prospects of the county's development were never brighter.

THE millenium is fast approaching Cecil county. There is not one prisoner in our jail who is incarcerated on account of crime. The three persons who are confined in that institution are insane and have been there for years. As soon as the proposed county insane asylum is erected these will be removed to it, and the jail, unless it receives new prisoners, which it must be admitted is very probable, will be for once without an inmate. Only one person was sentenced to the penitentiary at the last term of court, and this fellow was a darkey who had only robbed a hen-roost of one or two fowls.—Cecil Whig.

RAREY, the celebrated tamer of vicious horses, has been eclipsed. The new star is a young man named Gleason. He made his first appearance in New York Monday night and subdued three hitherto unconquerable stallions, none of which he had seen before. One of them was a veritable "man-eater." His "gift" is pronounced far more wonderful than Rarey's, but his daring so closely approaches recklessness, judging from the accounts of his performances, that he will probably be kicked to death some day by one of his "pupils."

THE depressed condition of the oyster business has had a depressing effect at Cambridge, and there are now thirty empty dwelling houses there, with no likelihood of their being rented. Years before most of the oystermen have made enough in winter to support and tide them over the summer months, but this year they have not, and as there is not a great hope of any considerable work in other business, they see nothing to induce them to remain, and are removing to localities where the cost of living is less.

THE city hall at Philadelphia is still unfinished. Between eleven and twelve millions of dollars have been expended upon it since the laying of the corner stone in 1872. It is the largest building finished or in course of completion in the United States and is estimated to cover nearly three thousand more square feet than the capitol at Washington. The tower on the north side will be surmounted by a statue of Penn, and its extreme height when completed will be 535 feet. It has now reached a height of 270 feet.

WHEN a strike of a dozen persons can throw a hundred and fifty out of employment, as happened in this city not long ago, or a strike of eighty dyers can deprive a thousand other mill hands of their means of making a living—when such things happen, as they are now occurring in various parts of the country, with others of equal hardship—it is not difficult to understand why General Master Workman Powderly gives such earnest and firm counsel against strikes.—Philadelphia Ledger.

THE medical men of the United States put up a statue of Dr. Benjamin Rush at Washington. This is entirely right. Rush was really the father of American medicine, and he was not only great in his profession, but great as a citizen, a patriot and a man of affairs. He was one of Philadelphia's worthies, and he ought to have had a monument in this city long ago. But Philadelphia has a way of leaving it to the rest of the country to do honor to her great men.—Philadelphia Times.

SHAD fishing on the lower Choptank last week was remarkably good. On Thursday the catch exceeded 10,000 and retailed in Easton market at 12½ cents per pair.

Mr. Powderly on the Stand.

Mr. Powderly testified on Tuesday at Washington before the congressional committee engaged in investigating the labor troubles of the Southwest to the effect that in his opinion the discharge of Hall by the Texas Pacific was the occasion but not the great cause of the strike which originated on that road and afterward extended to the Missouri Pacific and East St. Louis. Certain "little abuses," which he enumerated, were, he thought, contributing causes. The objects of the Knights of Labor, he declared, were to better the condition of labor and protect manufacturers. It was not their function to organize strikes and boycotts. All violators of the law, whether Knights of Labor or capitalists, should stand equal before the law, and be punished. Mr. Powderly informed the committee that if the Knights of Labor should be found to have violated the law the organization would help to punish them, holding firmly to the wholesome doctrine that "the law of the land is supreme above the laws of organizations." With some indignation the general master workman described the difficulty encountered in the case of roads in the hands of receivers. The managers of railroads, he declared, "were in the habit of sucking a road dry and then putting it in the hands of a receiver. Then, when the laborers went to the company, they said they could do nothing. Then the receiver would say he could do nothing."

Continuing, Mr. Powderly said: "The aim of the organization of the Knights of Labor is to benefit the laborer, and to secure a better feeling between him and his employer. All our methods are peaceful. We never counsel anything of a violent nature. A member of the organization may, once in a while, commit acts of violence. We cannot help that. It is a matter beyond our control; because when men feel that they have endured wrong, there is no law which can properly restrain them. Our association is intended to be an educational one. We aim at having our members study the conditions by which they are surrounded, not only their own conditions, but those of the men for whom they work, to protect not only the labor of the country, but to protect the manufacturers as well. We desire that the manufacturers shall be in such a condition that they will be able to pay good wages. We have no quarrel with legitimate enterprise. The aims of our society are entirely peaceful; but they are liable, of course, to be misunderstood even by members of the association once in a while. I have been somewhat misunderstood. I have no objection to showing up everything connected with the organization, its secret signs, pass words and everything else. I am willing to lay everything before the committee and before the world."

Jay Gould was before the committee on Thursday and gave his version of the railroad troubles. He tells a very plausable story for his side of the case.

CHESTERTOWN COLORED SCHOOL.—The following is a report of written examination held in public school No. 1, colored, Chestertown, April 15th, 1886. Tilghman 81, Nettie Dent 80; fifth grade, 1st division—Hattie Taylor 68, James Ballard 75, Lizzie Tilghman 72, John Smith 65, John Hackett 62; fourth grade—James Freeman 71, Thomas Chambers 69, Margaret Jones 74, Charles Hutchins 88; third grade—Lydia R. Lee 68, Laura Porter 65, Sarah L. Jeffers 66, Charles Hopkins 63, John Reed, 70, Hattie Johnson 67. D. T. WILLIAMSON, JR., Teacher.

LAND FOR HONEST SETTLERS.—The public lands committee of the House having followed the like committee of the Senate in reporting a bill to repeal the pre-emption, the timber culture and the desert land laws, on the ground that it is impracticable to prevent a fraudulent use of them, it may be hoped that a majority in both houses will come to the rescue and try to save something out of the national domain for honest settlers. There are federal judges, agents and other officers whose business it is to withstand the land sharks, but if they will not do their duty, Congress cannot be in too great a hurry to repeal laws that only make opportunities for thieves.

I. G. LOFLAND, of Delaware, has butchered his famous Chester White hog that was on exhibition at the State Fair last fall. His weight was over 1,000 pounds.

BALTIMORE MARKET.—The Baltimore papers of yesterday quote as follows: WHEAT—Longberry 96c.@98c.; Fultz, 93c.@97c. for fair to good. CORN—White, prime, 45@48; yellow, 44@47. OATS—40.
