SATURDAY MORNING............MAY 8, 1886.

WIVES OF PUBLIC MEN.

Women Who Sit in the Galleries of Congress to Hear Their Husbands Talk.

Almost any day between 12 and 5 in the afternoon a visitor to the House of Representatives can see in the members' gallery a tall, handsome woman, with three pretty children, ranging from 1 to 8 years of age. The lady is Mrs. Rogers, wife of Representative Rogers, of Arkansas. The evident admiration with which her eyes follow every movement of her husband has become a matter of comment to the gallery habitues. She is usually in her place with the children by the time the chaplain begins his prayer and seldom leaves before 4 o'clock. Her face is a study whenever her husband rises to speak. It is a beautiful face, too—one of those dark, oval, Southern faces, lighted up with black eyes, whose expression is a mingling of intelligence, refinement and passion. While Rogers is speaking her expression is a mirror of the current of his thoughts.

Though Mrs. Rogers is the most conspicuous of the Congressmen's wives who like to listen to their husbands speaking, she is by no means the only regular looker-on. Mrs. Morrison is almost as frequent a visitor to the House. She is usually accompanied by one or more young ladies. When Mr. Morrison takes the floor, especially if any revenue matter is under consideration, she listens to his words eagerly, but without any emotions expressed in her face; in fact, she seems to be giving a critical hearing to his arguments, with a view of discussing them afterwards. It will seem the more likely that this is her purpose when it is remembered that she is fully abreast with her husband in political economy. All his tariff bills have been prepared with her assistance. She is a tireless reader of politico-economic works. Those who know her say she is as well versed in Adam Smith, John Stuart Mill and Ricardo as most women are in Bertha Clay's novels. Indeed, rumor has it that even Mr. Morrison's speeches pass through her revising hands before delivery. It is only natural then that she is always at hand when productions of which she is the joint author are to be given to the world.

Ex-Governor Long, of Massachusetts, has two ardent admirers in the members' gallery nearly every day. They are his pretty daughters, one about twenty-two and the other sixteen. The elder is a typical Boston girl, dressed in exquisite taste, intellectual looking and wearing eye-glasses. The younger is a bright-eyed, red-cheeked young miss, who keeps up a constant chatter with her stately sister.

Governor Long seldom speaks, but when he does he has at least two eager listeners in the House. It is probable that a third will be added before the governor goes home to mend his fences for the fall elections. When the May flowers send forth their perfumes the governor will add to his home a young wife. His betrothed is a school teacher in Massachusetts, is twenty-one years old and is said to be the prettiest girl in Hingham. Though Mr. Long is forty-seven years old, he looks much younger. Indeed, if it were not for that perpetual bane of public men, baldness, he would pass for thirty-five. The match is all for love, too. The only thing about the affair that is surprising is the reputed ardent friendship which exists between the governor's daughters and their coming step-mother. They are said to be devoted to one another. Mr. Long visits his betrothed regularly every two weeks. She has received many invitations to spend the season in Washington from friends of both parties who desired to render the flow of love smoother by removing the obstruction of distance, but, sensible girl that she is, she declares that she will not neglect her class duties. Society is anxiously waiting to see the much-talked-of betrothed of the Massachusetts representative.

Mrs. Reed, wife of the republican leader of the House, is almost as regular a follower of the proceedings of Congress as her husband and he has not missed a day since the session began. It must be pleasing to her to note that he is the only man who can at all times get the close attention of every man on the floor. Like most successful men Mr. Reed owes much of his success in life to his wife. When he married her he was a school teacher in a Western State. Her means enabled him to return to Portland, Me., where he was born, and take a law course and her encouragement and assistance have helped his rapid advancement in political life. He is very often at her side in the gallery and generally walks home with her in the evening.

Frank Hiscock's wife is also frequently seen at the Capitol. She is a stately woman, with a long pale face, which bears on every feature the impress of culture and strong will power. It is well known that Hiscock is naturally one of the laziest men in Congress, though one of the most brilliant. With all his ability, he would probably be plodding along the path of a country lawyer were it not for his wife's pushing hand. His appearance and movements are enough to mark him as the champion lazy man at the Capital. Dressed carelessly, with necktie flying to the winds and vest partly unbuttoned, he walks about the House in a bored sort of way, and while speaking seems by his expression to be entering a constant protest against the necessity which induced his effort.

MR. GOULD'S ESTABLISHMENT.

The Millionaire's Living Expenses.

Cor. New Orleans Picayune.

Mr. Gould's mansion, on the northeast corner of Fifth avenue and Forty-seventh street, is a plain-looking double brown-stone house, the interior of which is literally palatial. There are half a million dollars' worth of paintings on the walls, and the furnishing and decorations are of the costliest description. The suite on the second floor, occupied by the heads of the family, consists of bedroom, boudoir, dressing room, and bathroom, decorated chiefly in pale blue and silver. Across the hall Miss Nellie, the only daughter, has a similar suite in pink and white. On the third floor there is a study and a large nursery for the three small boys, Edward, Frank and Harold, whose tutors are paid $2,000, $4,000 and $1,800 a year, respectively. George Gould's apartments are on the same floor, while the servants occupy the floor above. The butler receives $1,000; butler's assistant, $400; Mr. Gould's valet, $600; head cook and assistant, $1,500, and housekeeper, $1,000 a year. Two laundresses, two chambermaids, a parlor-maid, two waiting maids, two lady's-maids and two kitchen girls are paid from $15 to $20 each per month. The food in the servants' hall is entirely different from that of the family table. Mrs. Gould spends two hours a day with her younger boys, and they read only what has been inspected by her. Since she joined the Forty-second Street Presbyterian Church several years ago, she has been liberal in religious benefactions. Miss Nellie, a graduate of Mme. Reed's famous school, is perfecting herself in music at a cost of $20 per lesson. She has an allowance of $5,000 a year for her wardrobe.

The Gould stable, on Forty-fourth street, is a handsome building of brick, with plate-glass windows. Six horses are kept in it during the winter, and a closed carriage, a landau, and two coupes. The staff consists of a coachman, two footmen, two grooms, and two stablemen, and their wages range from $45 a month down. The expense of keeping up the stable is $6,000 a year.

Mr. Gould's country seat at Irvington was considered by its original owner, George Dawson Merritt, the most elegant, attractive and thoroughly-equipped summer residence in the country. Mr. Gould paid $200,000 for the property in 1880, and it is now worth $1,000,000 at a low estimate. The house is Gothic in style and is 3,000 feet from the Hudson river, commanding a magnificent view. It has twenty rooms above the basement. On the second floor is a fine art gallery extending the entire depth of the house. Mangold, the steward at Irvington, has been in Mr. Gould's employ over twenty years, and receives a salary of $2,000. The lawn about the house is ninety-five acres in extent, and the macadamized road leading to the entrance is a quarter of a mile long. There are in the estate 510 acres, 200 of which are woodland. The live stock consists of twenty horses, as many cows, a drove of Southdown sheep, and a lot of blooded fowls. Eighteen men are on the place constantly, and in summer the number is nearly a hundred. The hot houses and conservatory cover a space 300 feet long and 450 feet wide, and with their contents are valued at $250,000. At a fair estimate it costs Mr. Gould $380 a day to keep up his Irvington place. The taxes on it amount to $250 a month.

Mr. Gould paid $100,000 for his steam yacht Atalanta, and to run the same costs him $750 a month for wages, $200 a month for coal, repairs, etc., and a $800 a month for general expenses when he is aboard with his family. Besides the fifteen sailors and five officers, forming the crew, there are four cooks and a baker at $40 a month each, with two waiters, a valet, a lady's maid and a parlor maid. There are separate dining saloons in the yacht for the family, the officers, and the servants and sailors. Breakfast is served from 6 to 11; luncheon at 2; tea and ices at 4, and dinner at 8. George Gould's allowance before he attained the dignity of partnership with his father was $10,000 a year. His young brothers have $5 a week apiece for pocket money.

Is the Circus Immoral?

A country editor speaking about circuses says, "after discussing the question all winter, he comes to the conclusion every spring that the circus is immoral; but when the bill-poster comes along with the big pictures, his mind changes." He adds: "As we gaze at the lions, tigers and monkeys, and think that nature made all of them, we are not so sure. And when we look at the beautiful young ladies, with nothing on but a blue ribbon around her waist, with one leg pointing to six o'clock and the other to high noon, and think that nature made her, too, just as she was, except the ribbon, we begin to lean up to the circus. But when the brass band begins to play, and the elephants go round, we rush for a front seat to get in ahead of the deacons, who always wear stovepipe hats, and won't sit down in front."

The Tariff Reduced!

Not anticipating these hard times and scarcity of money, I bought for THIS SPRING AND SUMMER a very heavy stock of which MUST BE SOLD, and in order that they may be sold soon I propose to offer them to all cash buyers at a very small margin above first cost.

MEN AND BOYS'

COARSE AND FINE SHOES,

They are all FRESH and STYLISH GOODS and we only make this offer because we need money.

We have a variety of other goods, such as SUGAR, Coffee, Flour and Molasses; Segars and Tobacco, Powder and Shot, and many other articles, all of which can be bought at a low figure for the money.

This is NO HUMBUG

but we intend to do just what we say.—But in order to be convinced of the truth of this statement, we invite you to call—with the money—and we feel sure that we can satisfy you both in the price and quality of goods.
