The Maryland Peach Exchange.

AN INTERESTING MEETING AND LIVELY DISCUSSION OF THE PEACH EXCHANGE QUESTION LAST MONDAY.

At the rooms of the Agricultural Association at Worton Fair grounds last Monday the regular meeting of the "Maryland Peach Exchange" was held. Mr. S. Vannort, the president, was in the chair, and stated the first business in order to be the election of a vice-president and secretary of the Exchange—the latter to be a salaried officer. A ballot was taken for vice-president and Mr. Wm. Archibald, of Kennedyville, elected. The executive board recommended the election of Mr. Wm. Penn Norris for secretary and this was carried unanimously.

It was decided to expend the sum of $150 for advertising in leading newspapers of Northern and Western cities in order to secure the presence of buyers, and 2,000 copies of a circular letter was ordered to be printed for distribution to the same end.

The constitution and by-laws of the association were read for information, and this gave rise to a general discussion of the Exchange question. Mr. J. W. Corey asked whether the proper location of the Exchange had been carefully considered? Whether Worton Station is the best place? if the interests of other sections of the county had been consulted and provision made for the formation of branches? if we had thought of the accommodation and comfort of buyers in the matter? He thought Chestertown might be a better location in some respects for headquarters.

Mr. E. P. Janvier offered an amendment to the by-laws providing for the formation of branches at any point where 20,000 trees are planted, when a request is made for such branch in connection with the Maryland Exchange. Mr. Janvier said the institution had been well located for its purposes. Like the young peach tree it was expected to grow; it had not yet matured, but it was planted in good soil and time would perfect its branches and fruits.

Mr. Corey thought we should shape our legislation with a view to the interests of the fruit growers of the county as well as to this particular section. If we could embrace the entire county in the operations of the Exchange it would be better for all parties, and we should work to that end. Accord to other points the privileges we have ourselves. There might be two Exchanges on the Peninsula, but he thought the larger the Exchange the better it would be. If there is but one let it be at Middletown or some railroad centre. Don't carry along the idea that we have permanently located at Worton — unless this is the case. Is it so, Mr. President?

Mr. Vannort—Not at all; it is so located for the present.

Mr. J. M. J. Byron said there was no difficulty whatever in changing the location of the Exchange whenever the stockholders desired it. There had to be a starting point, and Worton growers were first to awake to the great interest involved and move in this matter. He thought it to the interest of our growers to bring the buyers to Kent. It does not look like business to go to Delaware to sell our peaches. If there sold they go off as Delaware peaches and we gain no reputation for our fruit abroad.

Mr. W. P. Norris said that invitations had been extended to the people of the county to unite with us. The time had passed for changing location. We are now organized and ready for work. Mr. Janvier's resolution was passed.

At this point it was announced that there were visitors from other sections of the county, and the privilege of participating in the discussion accorded them.

Capt. W. D. Burchinal, chairman of the committee from the Chestertown meeting, stated the object of the committee's visit. Peach growers in the Chestertown neighborhood wanted to know what advantages could be offered by the Worton Exchange for the sale of their fruit? They wanted information and had no desire whatever to dictate as to location.

Mr. W. B. Usilton also spoke relative to the peach growers' interest in the Exchange question. The visitors present had no desire to disturb the Worton movement. A creditable enterprise had conceived it and every one would wish it the largest success. But the growers of other sections of the county must consult their own interest, and it was one simply of dollars and cents. The vital point he thought was in the concentration of buyers at one point, giving advantages for competition in sale and in the distribution of the fruit that could not be enjoyed if the buyers were scattered. The growers in his neighborhood had held several meetings and were moving cautiously; their interests were identical with those of other sections and he had hoped to see a movement that would compass this unity and give such a market for this important product as we had never before enjoyed. He gave estimates of the prospective crop of peaches at certain points, and said it is certainly true that Kent county has many more peaches than any other section, but had not Delaware a medium of sale at the present time that counterbalanced the advantages of quantity? The matter was one of such vast concern that it should be considered dispassionately and in a broad and comprehensive view.

Mr. Corey endorsed the views expressed by Mr. Usilton and Mr. J. Z. Clark asked questions relative to a county Exchange.

Mr. Isaac Parsons said he would send his fruit wherever he could realize the best price. His market had heretofore been in Baltimore and he would continue to send there as long as it was to his interest. This sentiment was endorsed by all.

Mr. Janvier said he had considered all the questions presented with the utmost care and was able to reply to the arguments presented if he thought it necessary. It was not for us to consider any other Exchange now. We must go ahead. He thereupon moved for the appointment of a committee to secure a charter.

Mr. Corey argued for delay in order that other sections of the county might be interested. He said he knew that this was a delectable spot; Adam fell but the effect thereof never touched Worton; we are exempt from the influences that affect every other section of the globe. He moved a reconsideration of the vote by which the resolution above referred to was passed. He said this Peninsula peach interest was of vast concern, and this organization may be enlarged; he wanted it placed upon a basis that would ensure its growth. Our interests are identical — we have no differences.

Mr. Janvier wanted to know how he voted on the question?

Mr. Corey—Never do you mind; I didn't vote at all. We have no rule on the subject and general parliamentary rules must govern.

Mr. Byron seconded the motion to reconsider.

Messrs. Norris and Janvier opposed the reconsideration. The matter had been fully discussed; it was time to act.

The motion to reconsider was lost.

Capt. Burchinal said it was evident that the Exchange was localizing its influence, and he feared for its success in a broader field.

Mr. N. Barnard said that Still Pond had moved in the matter and would form a branch of the Delaware Exchange, and gave reasons therefor.

The following committee was appointed to secure a charter: E. P. Janvier, J. M. J. Byron, J. Z. Clark, H. T. Massey, S. F. Cooper.

On motion of Mr. Janvier a committee was appointed to attend the meeting in Chestertown next day. The president appointed Isaac Parsons, Joseph Rasin, W. P. Norris.

After some further discussion the meeting adjourned.

Chestertown Exchange.

At the meeting of fruit growers of the neighborhood of Chestertown Station on Tuesday last it was decided to form a branch of the Delaware Exchange, and another meeting will be held at the court-house this Saturday afternoon to perfect the arrangements. Mr. A. N. Brown, the secretary of the Delaware Exchange will be present. Every peach grower interested in this movement—and what one is not?—should attend. Do not wait for others to carry forward an enterprise in which your interests are just as deeply involved. It can only succeed by united effort.

Nicholson's Station.

A meeting of the fruit growers of Fairlee neighborhood will be held at Grange Hall, Fairlee, this (Saturday) morning, at 9 o'clock, to consider the propriety of forming a peach exchange or branch. All growers are invited.

MRS. A. M. REYNOLDS, of ROCK HALL, wishes to inform the public that she has on hand a Fine Stock of LACES, COLLARS, CUFFS, RIBBONS and MILLINERY. An early call is respectfully solicited. ap24-3m.

Agricultural and Horticultural Club Room.

STILL POND, June 12, 1886.

Many members of the club met at an earlier hour than usual today to hold a short, informal conference with Mr. A. N. Brown, secretary of the Delaware Fruit Exchange.

Mr. Brown is as enthusiastic as ever on this question, no abatement of energy and determination, no lack of zeal and foresight: his cool, deliberate courage and judgment commanding the respect and confidence of those with whom he comes in contact; his unyielding confidence in the success of the one exchange system working a revolution in favor of the fruit grower, impels him to greater exertions, and with his tact and ability as an organizer, overcoming and outriding every obstacle and opposition, insures for him a triumphant success in his laudable undertaking. His plan now is to bring local boards of directors at each branch exchange to regulate and manage all details or local pressing matters that may arise from time to time, such boards being subject to the home board in all matters of vital importance affecting the interests of the whole, and working under such rules, regulations and by-laws as best subserve the ends sought.

It is arranged that the stockholders meet at the hall June 19, at which time Mr. Brown will be present to organize a branch exchange and elect a board of directors. It is hoped that our people generally will turn out, become members of the exchange and assist in organizing and carrying out this important work. At the close of this conference the club was organized in the usual manner and the minutes were read and approve. The transportation committee was continued and instructed somewhat as to plan of proceeding. The details and result of which I may make known at a future time. Next came the mule question: "Which is the most serviceable and economical on the farm the mule or the horse?" and I must say I felt some charity for the mule before we got through. But few of his virtues were extolled, but his tricks, his bad traits of every description were laid bare and condemned; even his ears were ridiculed. Some thought him better on the road for hauling heavy loads than horses and that he eats less, but not so good for cultivating land, as his feet were small and sank deep into the earth, and would soon get tired and slow. Our club voted him inferior to the horse for farming purposes by a unanimous vote.

The committee to visit the farm of N. Barnard had performed that duty, but owing to the absence of the chairman failed to report. Will be expected next week. OBSERVER.

Chesterville and Vicinity.

Messrs. Editors:—Children's Day services came off at Locust Grove last Sunday morning. The church was handsomely trimmed with flowers, while here and there was a cage containing a sweet warbler, whose melodious notes chimed in nicely with those of the children. Hull's No. 2 services was the program adopted with some additions in the way of recitations and readings. The entertainment was pleasant and the children did well. We cannot pretend to particularize—it would take too much space—but will say that Mrs. Maggie Hill can sing and Miss Annie Shallcross can read. Not every one you come across can do either. One or two other things I noticed: First, everybody seems to take an interest in the church, both members, and those who are not members; second, the children sing (all of them) and join heartily in the exercises—something seldom seen in country schools. The attendance was good. The church is beautiful, and its members justly proud of it, but, like so many of its sisters, to make it thrive and grow, it needs a visit from the two Samuels, or rather, a real old-time revival.

Millington M. E. Church held its Children's Day service last Sunday night. When they undertake anything at the M. E. Church at Millington they generally go it on a pretty large scale. (We believe this holds good in everything except in church attendance on Sunday mornings; they haven't attained unto that yet, if we are correctly informed.) They have the elements and will-power to make things go. Sunday evening was no exception to the rule—their large and beautiful audience room was filled to repletion, the floral display was rich and imposing and the entertainment varied, pleasing and instructive. A part of two programs was used, one prepared by the church and Hull's No. 2. The selections from the latter were sung by request the week preceding for the Chesterville M. E. Sunday school by the choir, and liking them so well they used them in their own service. We need scarcely to say that the singing was first-rate—it always is when done by the Millington M. E. choir. A solo by Miss Lou Moffett was one of the striking features of the occasion. We might just as well say here what has long been pent up, that as a vocalist, if equaled, Miss Lou cannot be excelled in the country. We know this is saying a good deal but we think the fact will bear us out. This is no flattery, but well-deserved praise. Another pleasant feature was the presentation of a handsome bouquet by the school to the superintendent, Thos. Mallalieu, Esq. Mr. Mallalieu is a veteran Sunday school officer having been superintendent of this school for thirty years. He has seen the school grow from a very small beginning to its present large proportions and is as alive today to its interests as ever. In his usual terse and pointed style he accepted from the school this token of its esteem and affection. The children, of whom there were many, sustained their parts well, and altogether the occasion was a most enjoyable one.

Messrs. Thos. Bennett and E. G. King have just returned from a visit to St. Mary's county, Md. They say "they could live there very well," but "there's no place like home"—old Kent. They report good wheat and corn where land is good, and wheat harvest in full blast at the beginning of the present week.

Our harvest will most likely begin on the 19th.

There were several errors in our last communication, as printed at least. By a typographical error the last item was as flat as a pancake. Will you be kind enough to reprint the following items as, I think, they were written, and then perhaps there will be some little point in them:

A mechanic—a bachelor—of Chesterville, showed us a unique swinging chair for a child, which chair was of his own invention. All the mother has to do is to put the baby in the chair, swing him high and dry, and he's there! The contrivance is very ingenious, and how a bachelor could conceive such a thing is wonderful indeed.

A little boy just learning to talk picked up a bumblebee. He instantly put it down with the remark, "Mamma, I wont hug that bug any more; it's too hot!" WALTER.

"Villager's" Reply to "Simon Sharp."

MESSRS. EDITORS:—I thank "Simon Sharp" for the knowledge he has imparted to me and the public that he is not a trustee of "Salem" or any other church. One is led to suppose however, that he exercises a great deal of authority or that he exerts a wonderful influence over the public. Now, we hope the exertion of a beneficial influence may always be among the notable aspirations of our friend and neighbor. When the churchyard has been "converted into a sacred pasture," and slight or serious depredations perpetrated the perpetrator will be justly dealt with by proper authority and not by "Simon's" letters—very effectively I mean.

Gents, after you shall have published this "brief and direct" communication, we will submit to the eccentricities of mature years, and "Simon" may write to his "heart's content" the balance of this year and the whole of the next, and thereby advertise us all as ever "Simon's" friend VILLAGER.

Letter from Fairlee.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—To the public who so generously contributed funds to improve Salem Church and to enclose the churchyard, I will say, having minutely examined, that the premises have not been injured by being trespassed upon by cattle, horses or anything of the kind, that everything seems to be in order, and the public may rest assured that their church and church premises will be protected and as judiciously managed as possible by the board appointed to do so.

The festival for Salem was quite a success, about sufficient funds being realized to defray church indebtedness.

Children's Day was observed on last sabbath. The floral decoration was beautiful. One of the most striking and interesting features of the service, was the singing by the children, under the management of our esteemed Sunday school organist. They were thoroughly trained. The audience took part in the service and the whole was very impressive. Yours, TRUSTEE.

FIRE — ENTERTAINMENTS — CHILDREN'S DAYS—THE QUESTION.

Messrs. Editors:— A little after midnight Friday, 11th inst., an alarm of fire was heard in our village. It proved to be in the annex to the store of Mr. Wm. J. Payne, itself contiguous to his dwelling. There is some ground for the supposition that its origin was incendiary; the evidence, however, is wholly circumstantial. Appearances indicate that combustible matter had been deposited under the lean-to or shed part of the store in two places, one nearly under a tank of coal oil, and one under barrels of flour and sugar. The first failed to ignite, the other caught and burned through the floor, destroying a counter, sugar, flour, a lot of dry goods, shoes and hats. A quantity of yeast powder in close proximity to the tank of oil burst the bottles in which it was contained. A few minutes delay would have resulted in a terrible and destructive explosion. While friends and neighbors were laboring to subdue the flames below, fire was discovered in the room above. This proved to be in a trunk containing waste paper, and was extinguished with a bucket of water. The bottom of the trunk however was not even scorched, proving that this was a separate fire, and not communicated from that below; in fact the upper floor of the store-room was only blistered directly over the fire below where the shed roof had its lowest inclination. Mr. Payne's estimate of his loss is between $400 and $500, without insurance.

The entertainments presented on the 8th and 9th by the Sewing Society of St. Paul's Church were largely attended, and quite satisfactory. I cannot characterize the performance, not being able to attend. That of Salem Church on the 11th and 12th was well patronized and quite creditable to the consumers of ice-cream and its accompaniments.

Children's day was observed at Salem on the 13th. Worton mission will celebrate it on the 21st, (tomorrow), and from the indications will make it an occasion of rare enjoyment. It will be held at 2½ o'clock in the open air, on the green turf, under the stately cedars and umbrageous liquid ambers, with church and schoolhouse near by in case of rain. All friends of the children are cordially invited to come up to the help of a struggling Sunday School and congregation. The music will be under the direction Prof. C. T. Stratton.

The important question of the moment is, here as elsewhere, one, two or more peach marts. The preponderance of opinion seems to favor only one. If, however, some place or policy is not soon adopted the crop will be gathered and sold as heretofore and nothing be gained. Meantime let fruit growers call to mind the possibility, indeed the probability of the formation of a syndicate to control the fruit market, resulting in a great monopoly, which will be entirely beyond their power. If farmers will not unite capital will. SIMON SHARP.

WELL SAID.—Mr. Findlay does not like it, because, in the exercise of his right and duty, most of the men Mr. Veazey selected were democrats. Strange attitude for a democratic cong ressman. —Easton Ledger.
