written after his arrival at Cape Palmas, in which he speaks with great confidence as to his prospects of life. Alas! I fear this confidence led to exposures which were the cause of his death!

~~I think you had better detain the trunk belonging to Mr. White for the present, till clear from Africa.~~

On reflection I think you better come will be to send the trunk to Cape Palmas, with the other articles left by Mr. White at Baltimore. This had better be done, ere should you hear of the death of Mrs. White — an affliction from which I trust we shall be spared.

Yours, my dear Sir,
Most truly yours,
R. Anderson,
Sec. &c.
