WASHINGTON COLLEGE.

Annual Commencement Exercises — Mr. Smith's Address Before the Literary Society, &c.

The court house was well filled last Tuesday evening by attentive listeners to the anniversary address before the Mt. Vernon Literary Society. It was delivered by Rev. J. Edward Smith, of Caroline county. The Kent Cornet Band, with Prof. A. Holland, of Baltimore, to assist, was present in uniform and discoursed excellent music. Rev. J. D. Kemp delivered an appropriate prayer, and Mr. Rowland Watts, president of the society, introduced the speaker for the evening. Mr. Smith had for his subject "Transition," and spoke for and hour and a quarter with few notes. He is a man of marked intellect and oratorical ability, and none of his hearers were disappointed in the character of his address, which was well received.

The Commencement.

On Wednesday morning the commencement exercises took place in the court room. The president, Judge Wickes, and a number of the members of the board of visitors were on the platform, together with the faculty and graduating class. The latter was composed of the following gentlemen: A. W. Rivers, of Chestertown; R. Watts, of Cecil county; R. Garey, of Caroline; W. J. Bratten, Worcester; E. R. Jump, Talbot. Rev. W. R. Graham, offered prayer, and Messrs. A. W. Rivers and R. Watts delivered the Latin Salutatory, after which was introduced and discussed the subject: "Man and True Manliness." His introduction was a poetic gem from Pope, and his picturings of man's possibilities comprehended his ability to understand the laws that move the heavenly bodies which have coursed through space since the world began; to create for himself new worlds of poetry and art, build thrones and principalities and everthrow nations; yet when he seeks to understand more completely his own nature he is speechless and confounded when the subject rises before him in all its immensity. Man's origin was dwelt upon and the vagaries of some of the modern philosophers properly characterized. He preferred to believe with that countless host of philosophers who claim that man never was so low in the scale of being as the monkey, but as "in the beginning" he is today, and, as a free moral agent, is held responsible by Him who was his creator. Man as a social being was next considered. He is a creature of society; if he becomes a hermit he becomes a lunatic. His progress depends upon his fellows. The standard of a nation's strength once was brute force; now it is the standard of intelligence. The people now understand that the best men are those who labor for the good of mankind. It is not the "modern" young man that the world needs today; if these were the sample of the 19th century we might believe Spencer right in his evolution theory for, the monkey in his wildest moments could not be more absurd than the "dude." In every age some men are found to bear the torch of progress along the way and hand it down to others; these have seen through the ages and perceived the golden fringe of the mantle that shall cover the world with sparkling splendor. Mr. Garey closed with the beautiful lines of Dr. Stoddard, begining—

MR. R. GAREY

"God give us men! a time like this demands, Strong minds, great hearts, true faith and ready hands."

Mr. R. E. Jump, of Talbot, had an address upon the "Effect of the Norman Conquest on the Social and Political Condition of England," but was excused from its delivery. Mr. Gary was followed by

MR. W. J. BRATTEN.

His theme was "The Respective Claims of Literature and Science in Education." While admitting that science had its beauties and practical advantages he still claimed a prominent place for literature in the beautiful and practical affairs of life. Anything is practical that adds to the happiness, comfort and moral well-being of man as well as that which fills his coffers with gold. He made no objection to scientific study, but classical liturature should not be excluded. The future welfare of our government, and all good government, depends to a great extent upon the study of ancient classics. In some of the colleges there are lively discussions upon this point, and it is probable that science will enter more largely into education—it is well that it should—but not to the detriment of literature. While the scientist cries out against the study of Greek he is himself the first to resort to that language, as nearly all our technical names are derived from it. As science advances the more pressing will be the need for the Greek study. We do not desire all literature and no science, nor the reverse of this, but a harmonious mingling of both in the college curriculum.

MR. A. W. RIVERS

discussed the question "Are Revolutions Exponents of National Advancement?" The idea of revolution in government has been associated with that of war and its calamities, but we should consider them only as progressive steps in improving the knowledge of government and increasing the happiness of mankind. Two of our most celebrated revolutions have been effected without a drop of blood—the establishment of the Magna Charter, June 15, 1215, which gave such an impulse to civilization as to be called the Keystone of English Society; the other in the history of England was the glorious revolution of 1688, which was a triumph of the people over the despot, and gave a Bill of Rights by which the British constitution in many important points became fixed. The speaker then noticed other revolutions which were effected by force, and closed with the conclusion that a revolution not only ought to advance but always does advance some great and indispensable principle. There must be changes in political systems. Nothing can last forever. Institutions and modes of government existing today will not answer the demands of years to come, as previous systems do not answer the demands of today.

MR. ROWLAND WATTS

had for his subject: "Dangers Which Threaten our Republican Institutions." He thought there was no difficulty in our great country taking care of herself against all foreign foes, be our seacoast ever so defenseless at the present. Our dangers were from the insdious and deadly foes that lurk in our own households, sit at our own hearthstones and plot our ruin. Among the dangers cited he first noted the perversion of the Nation's necessary import duties into a traiff for the protection of monopolists, by which the few have been and are being enriched at the expense of the many. Protection is at once a deception and a fraud. The concentration of vast wealth in the hands of the few bodes no good to republican institutions. The glaring injustice of this system of taxation was no small cause of the deadly conflict through which our country had passed when the dismembered union clashed in deadly encounter and all the dearest ties of relationship were forgotten in the terrible struggle for the maintenance of a principle. The speaker referred to the dangers resulting from the supplanting of American labor by the foreigner, the sale of suffrage by the ignorant and vicious which was sapping the virtue of even our law makers. The honest workers of the land were banding in self-defence—that grand union known as the Knights of Labor was formed to resist the encroachments of particular monopolies, and while its members are no doubt actuated by the best motive, there is in this also a great danger. To protect itself the government will be driven to greater consolidation. The tendency to centralization in educational matters was also to be deplored. He believed in each State educating her own citizens. The perpetuation of our institutions depend upon the virtue and intelligence of the masses of our people. We should therefore swing wide the portals of our schools and churches.

At the conclusion of Mr Watts' address Prof. A. E. Twiford read the merit of the students, after which Prof. W. J. Rivers, the principal, delivered an address having for his subject "Facts; and our inexcusableness for willful ignorance of such as effect our moral and physical welfare." The subject was handled in the professor's learned way and was treated first as to the nature of fact, then causes for unreliability, misused for the sake of theories, and responsibility for a knowledge of some kinds of facts, cautions in respect to investigation, &c.

Mr. R. Garey delivered the valedictory address, after which the baccalaureate degrees were conferred and the benedition was pronounced by Rev. S. C. Roberts.

The Kent Cornet Band, Mr. J. N. Dodd, leader, interspersed the exercises with good music.

The invitation cards said "No flowers" and consequently this generally conspicuous feature was absent, but in its place numberless presents were sent up to each of the graduates, which were no doubt more highly appreciated.

On Wednesday night a ball was held at the town hall and was largely attended.

THE PUBLIC SCHOOL.

The closing exercises of the Chestertown public school took place Wednesday afternoon in the school-room, and were as usual of a most interesting character. As usual, also, a great company of the patrons and friends of this popular institution filled every nook and corner of the spacious room to witness the exercises. The following program was carried out:

1 Song, Let the hills and vales resound.
2 Salutatory: Essay by Miss Anna R Wickes.
3 Song, Where the warbling waters flow.
4 Recitation, First snowfall, Clare Vannort.
5 The song of the farmer, by fourth grade.
6 Martha Washington tea-party, third grade.
7 The new slate, Lemont Thompson, 1st grade.
8 Little Thumbkins, first grade.
9 Recitation, The four babies, Palmer Carroll.
10 Ten little servants, Effie Crouch.
11 Calisthenics.
12 Do it. Six girls of fourth grade.
13 Marching song, second grade.
14 Song, Gently falls the dews of eve.
15 Valedictory, essay by Miss Effie Taylor.
16 Song, Drink Water, by the school.
17 Presentation of certificates to graduates by C. F. Stam, Esq.
18 Distribution of certificates.
19 Song, Summer vacation.

The original essays by the two graduates, Miss Effie Taylor and Miss Anna R. Wickes, were creditable productions and delivered with ease and grace. The first chose for her theme "Earth's Battlefields," and the second "Influence of Female Character." Both were recipients of beautiful bouquets and handsome presents, all of which they richly deserved and no doubt highly appreciated.

All the different parts of the program were well rendered. The calisthenic exercises and motion songs were executed with wonderful precision and reflected great credit upon teachers and pupils. The Martha Washington Tea-Party was one of the most popular pieces. Two pretty little Misses arranged the table, set the tea things and called the guests, whereupon five other little ladies, properly arrayed, walked in and took their places at the table, with Miss Mamie Thompson at the head; then followed a discussion of "important matters of State" as the tea was served, the only interruption to the feasting being the frequent rapturous applause.

Mr. Stam's address in presenting the certificates to the graduates was an appropriate reference to the public school as the great silent force working for the amelioration of the people—affecting for good all classes and communities of this great nation. At the close of Mr. Stam's address Mr. J. W. Chapman, one of the trustees, announced that he would offer two premiums for next year — one to the scholar who leads the first-seventh grade, and another to the scholar who stands highest in the first grade.

Prof. W. G. Fallowfield, the principal, had charge of all the exercises; he has been patient and efficient in his arduous duties as the head of this large school and has been supported by a first-class corps of teachers for his assistants, and to this is attributed the measure of success which has been realized. In no small degree has the school examiner, Major E. F. Perkins, contributed to the popularity and efficiency of this institution by his repeated personal presence and continued interest, and it is but due him that we should thus note the fact.

The school has enrolled since the first of September, 1885, 305 different pupils. During the summer term, just ended, there were enrolled 277 pupils under the charge of the principal above named, assisted by Misses Jeannette Gooding, E. Ava Downes, Lottie R. Spencer, Ella Thomas and Maggie Wroth. There are seven grades in the school, and of the 277 pupils, 82 are in the first or lowest grade, 26 in the second grade, 31 in the third, 33 in the fourth, 50 in the fifth, 39 in the sixth, and 16 in the seventh. Miss Maggie Wroth has all of the first grade and part of the second under her charge, in all 94 pupils, ranging in years from 7 to 10, and when all are present they are so thickly crowded that "you can almost stir them up with a stick." The room in which they sit was built to accommodate 60 pupils, but by putting desks in the space for hanging wraps and crowding three in a seat, and requiring some to sit on the platform, she has managed, even in warm weather, to teach and control 94 young, squirming, restless children.

The principal, at the close of the exercises, announced the grades for the coming year and also the "marks" of the scholars for the present. The following were the lucky ones who gained an average of 80% and over in the different grades:

Galena and Vicinity.

MESSRS. EDITORS: — Olivet Sunday-school, Galena, propose to make Thursday next (July 8) a gala day by holding a picnic at Dyre's point on the Sassafras river. Their annual excursion to Tolchester will take place later in the season.

Miss Ella Johnston, who has been holding a responsible position as musical instructor at the Bordentown Female Seminary, is spending her vacation with her parents in Galena. The fame of her fine musical talent has extended into Delaware, where a most excellent position has been proffered her by the authorities of the Conference Academy, which she will doubtless accept.

The Misses Linda Jacobs and Emma Wilson have recently returned from Fairfax Hall, Winchester, Va., after a year's absence at that noted female seminary. Likewise the Misses Woodall, of Georgetown, are rejoicing in the liberty from seminary restraint, having also been absent at school. Miss Hettie S. Jacobs, of Sassafras, who graduated with high honors at Fairfax Hall, has lately returned from said school, having been taking a special course in art studies. She brought with her a magnificent landscape painting in oil—The Isle of Iona—one of the results of her instruction there. Miss Flynn, of St. Louis, sister of Father Flynn, pastor at St. Dennis', is now making her home with him in Galena. By-the-by, Father Flynn, with his able assistant, McAran, are fairly transforming their parsonage grounds into a floral paradise.

The Galena graded school held very interesting commencement exercises on Wednesday morning last, which were well attended by our citizens.

OBSERVER.

Letter from Worton Station.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—We verily believe "Peter Poker" has deserted us in the literary sense of the word. We have depended upon him heretofore to chronicle the items of interest of our village, but he has let several very important occasions pass by unnoticed. And for fear he will let this last one share the same fate, we would like to say a few words of an entertainment we had the pleasure of attending on Friday evening last given by School No. 2, taught by Miss Casey. The entertainment consisted of dialogues, recitations, tableaus, &c., interspersed with music. The children took their parts in all the different characters most admirably. A trio of six-year-old boys sang, "Lightly Row" very nicely. Mrs. Birds's class gave some very fine vocal music (Mrs. Bird is an efficient organist and has her class in very good training). It would make our letter too lengthy to make mention of all, and we will close by saying Miss Nowland and Miss Casey have used every effort to make this entertainment a successful one and we think they must acknowledge that Worton certainly has talent if it is properly cultivated. With the closing of the school term Miss Nowland vacates the school, much to the regret of all. Miss Casey we hope to keep with us for some time. (June 30, 1886.) E. * *

BY virtue of a power contained in a mortgage from Levi Castle and Louisa Castle to William Vannort, dated June 14, 1870, and duly executed and recorded in Liber J. K. H., No. 8, folio 542, one of the land record books for Kent county, State of Maryland, and regularly assigned to Mary Hurtt, the undersigned will offer at public sale on

At Half-past Two o'clock P. M.,

At the Court House door in Chestertown Kent county aforesaid, the following

Valuable REAL ESTATE

situated in the Third Election District of Kent county, Maryland, directly on the Railroad between Worton Station and Nicholson's, and a short distance from the public road leading from Worton Station to Melitota.

THE PROPERTY consists of Two Lots.

Lot No. 1—adjoins the lands of Mr. W. J. Vannort and others, and contains

3½ ACRES OF LAND,

more or less. It is all arable, fenced and improved by a SMALL DWELLING.
