Kent News.

ATURDAY MORNING .....JULY 10, 1886.

Items from Millington.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—Peter Racer, carpenter of our town, met with a serious accident on the 6th inst. His hatchet flew off the handle while cutting a piece of board. In its descent it struck him on the wrist, severing the radial artery, &c. Dr. Power dressed the wound. It is doing well.

C. O. Cacy is walking around, improving fast.

Farmers are threshing wheat, but it is not cared. They are much alarmed about the price, but appear to have no care for the condition of the wheat. They go for the early bird, but it is nonsense for the bird to get up before the worm.

S. Seegar's hand is doing very well. He was hurt the same day Cacy was.

Eben Massey had an altercation with a young negro man in Queen Anne's on the 6th instant. Eben got a cut on the hand, but the negro got the worst of it. They generally do when they play rough with Eben. SCRIBBLER.

The Maryland Fruit Exchange.

The Maryland Fruit Exchange held a meeting at the Worton Fair grounds on Monday afternoon. The executive committee was present in full, and the meeting was very encouraging to fruit growers.

The secretary read a large correspondence from fruit buyers, who signified their intention of coming on. The correspondence was from numerous points in the North and West, and was especially full from various points of New York State. Some of the points are as follows: Utica, N. Y., Rochester, N. Y., Albany, N. Y., Syracuse, N. Y., Buffalo, N. Y. and from New York city; from Philadelphia, Pa., Pittsburgh, Pa., Scranton, Pa., Harrisburg, Pa., Newark, N. J., Elizabeth, N. J., Providence, R. I., Boston, Mass., Chicago, Ill., Cleveland, O., and a number of other points. The exchange believes that it has full assurance that there will be plenty of buyers to take all the fruit offered. The exchange proposes to handle the fruit sold through the exchange inside the fair grounds where proper facilities for handling will be supplied.

A Special Pension Job.

The bill granting a pension to Carter W. Tiller is well chosen as a test case in the House, since it excellently illustrates the character of the jobs which the President has vetoed. Tiller claims a pension as a "dependent father." He had a son who died in the service in 1864. Thirteen years after, in 1877, the father applied for a pension. He had not been in the service himself, but was employed at that time, and has been employed ever since, as a policeman in Louisville. The Pension Bureau very properly decided that he was not dependent upon the son in any sense contemplated by the laws and refused his application.

The Louisville policeman was not disconcerted. It was true that he was able to earn his own living, but the time was approaching when he became "dependent" on somebody and why not upon the United States? Nothing was easier than for the same obliging attorneys who had worked up his claim to work a special bill through congress. A policeman can usually secure "influence," and it has not been the custom heretofore to scrutinize these private claims. Observe that the purpose of this bill is to give Tiller a pension to which he is not entitled under the general laws. In other words, it is to make a free grant out of the Treasury for the support of a man who has no lawful claim upon the United States even under a pension system of unprecedented liberality.

Nearly all of these private pension bills are alike in general character. They are bills for the promotion of mendicancy, taxing the many for the benefit of the few. If this man had really been dependent on his son no special act for his benefit would have been required, since the general pension laws provide abundantly for such a case. And so with all the petty jobs the President has vetoed, which aim to divert a portion of the soldiers' pension fund to people who have rendered no service or sustained no loss that entitles them to public alms. If the opponents of the administration seek to make a political issue in these vetoes there ought to be no hesitation in accepting the challenge. Millions for honest pensions, but not one cent for Congressional almsgiving, is a motto that the country will sustain.—Phila. Times.

The Attorney-General to Retire.

Wash. Corr. Balt. Sun.

As the rumors in regard to the retirement of Attorney-General Garland from the cabinet, which were current six months ago, have been revived, the time has come when a correct statement in reference to the matter is proper to be made. It is perhaps scarcely necessary to reiterate that the Pan-Electric disclosures had no effect to shake the confidence of the President in the integrity of Mr. Garland. At the same time it is the absolute fact that the President was much worried and embarrassed that the name of the Attorney-General should have been brought into such connection, and his embarrassment was not lessened at the long delay of the Attorney-General in taking notice of the strictures passed upon him by an influential portion of the public press. It is said that Mr. Garland did not even speak of it to the President until it was intimated to him that the President expected it. When the subject was finally brought up it was discussed at length between them, and the result was the statement which, it will be remembered, was given out by the Attorney-General for publication last autumn. It was the decided opinion of the President that such a statement should be prepared, although Mr. Garland had repeatedly said previously that he proposed to treat the attacks upon him with silent contempt. Either at the interview above referred to or at a subsequent interview Mr. Garland said to the President that if it would relieve him of any annoyance or embarrassment he would give him his resignation. The President, in reply to this verbal tender of resignation, said little that was decisive, as it placed him in a very delicate position. There is, however, the best reason for the belief that had Mr. Garland at this time or subsequently sent his written resignation to the President it would have been accepted. And in all the intervening time up to now the same can be said. The President will in all probability not ask for the resignation, and not intimate even that he would like it, but nevertheless it would be a positive comfort for him to have the opportunity to nominate a new Attorney-General. It can be said, therefore, with full confidence, that the retirement of Mr. Garland from the cabinet is merely a question of time. It may come any day. While it is not desired to convey the impression that the above statement is based upon official authority, it is not the less a true representation of the situation. It should be added that it does not by any means strengthen the insinuations which have been uttered against the honor and principle of Mr. Garland, but is only another of the many instances where, unfortunately for a good man, his blunders pursue him as if a crime.

LUCKY RELATIVES.—By the will of Mrs. Bruner, of San Francisco, who died last year, a number of her relatives on the Eastern Shore and in Baltimore will come into possession of considerable money. At her death she was a widow without children. She was a Miss Harrison, and a native and former resident of Baltimore city. Her nearest of kin were her half-sisters and their children—Mrs. William L. Wrightson, of Talbot county, Mrs. Capt. Skinner, of Norfolk, and Mrs. Capt. Skinner, of Baltimore. The maiden name of the half-sisters was German. Mrs. Bruner left by will the largest portion of this estate to her nephews and nieces, among whom are Dr. James T. Wrightson, of Newark, N. J., Messrs. Frank G. Wrightson and Joshua G. Wrightson, of Talbot, Mrs. Frank E. Caulk, of Baltimore, other children of Mr. Wm. L. Wrightson, and the Skinners, of Baltimore and Norfolk. The estate has been administered on in San Francisco, and is understood to now be ready for distribution. Mr. Frank G. Wrightson, as attorney for all the heirs living East, started on Tuesday for San Francisco, when the estate will be passed over to him. The whole estate foots up $190,000 and a very handsome sum goes to each one of the heirs.

PREPARING FRUIT FOR MARKET.—At the recent meeting of the National Fruit and Vegetable-Growers' Association, at Columbus, Ohio, an interesting discussion took place on preparing fruit for the market, and the opinion was generally expressed that evaporated fruit was bound to obtain and hold the highest place in public favor. Ezra Arnold, a well-known Illinois fruit-grower, presented drawings and specifications of a cheap evaporator made by himself, with which he has had more success than with more expensive dry-houses and evaporators. With it he evaporated apples in two hours, strawberries in three hours, peaches in two hours, cherries in two hours, corn in two hours, and all kinds of fruit proportionately quick. As he did not desire to go into the manufacture of evaporators, he offered to make over to the association all right and title to the contrivance provided that body would distribute gratuitously among the farmers, fruit-raisers and consumers of the United States complete illustrated directions for making and using it. This the association consented to do.

REV. FRANCIS KERNAN, according to an interview in the New York World, expresses the opinion that if the presidential nominating conventions should be held tomorrow and Mr. Blaine should be the republican candidate, the democrats would at once nominate Mr. Cleveland as his opponent.

Teachers' Association Meeting.

More than half the number of teachers were present last Friday, though the day was rainy, and nearly every one present participated in the discussion of the questions. The association was called to order at the usual time with music by Mrs. Stephens. On calling the role 30 teachers responded to their names, some from the upper part of the county and others from the lower part and the majority of those coming from a distance were ladies. The minutes of the association were read and approved. The literary committee, Mr. John F. Copper chairman, reported the following questions, which on motion of Mr. Greenwood were adopted by the association to be discussed at the meeting in September next:

1st. What is the best method of teaching grammar to a class of beginners on the subject?

2d. How can neatness be best cultivated in the written work of our pupils?

This was the meeting for the election of officers. Mr. E. F. Perkins, the examiner, was re-elected president, Mr. Henry Tonkin was elected vice-president, Mr. Fallowfield was elected secretary and Miss I. M. Comegys corresponding secretary.

Mr. Topping moved that the association have but one session and adjourn at 1 P. M., which motion was adopted.

The first regular question for discussion was called up and read as follows:

What are some of the more useful lessons derived from your experience in the school room during the present year?

This question was discussed by Mr. Melvin, the examiner, Miss Annie Crouch, Mr. Crittenden, Miss Sadie Burgess, Mr. Greenwood, Miss Maggie Fowler, Mr. Copper, Miss Spencer, Mrs. Stephens, Miss Maggie Wroth, Miss V. Powes, Miss Annie Wilson, Miss Nettie Gooding, Misr Bramble, Miss McWhorter, Miss Carrie Smyth, Miss Ethel Stewart, Miss Kate Moffett, Miss Bean and Mr. Tonkin.

Under Questions and Answers, Miss Nettie Gooding asked, "What shall be done with pupils who have no books, or copy-books?" There were various suggestions, but the general impression was that parents should be notified that books were needed by their child or children, and if able to buy them but neglected it, the children should be sent home until books were purchased.

Mr. Melvin asked, "Shall we repeat the multiplicand or repeat the multiplier in teaching multiphcation to young children?" His way was to teach the multiplicand, while others repeated the multiplier.

Mr. Topping called attention to a statement in the first reader, and asked if it was grammatical. The sentence reads thus: "Do not fall and hurt you." Some thought the proper expression is "yourself," while a few thought that the sentence was not ungrammatical though not a customary expression.

The time for adjournment having arrived the next question about the analysis of sentences given to 7th grade in their examination, was carried over for discussion at the next meeting.

The second regular question for discussion, "What are some of the more important helps derived from the meetings of the association during the present scholastic year?" was called up for discussion, but on motion this question was postponed until the meeting in September, the question being amended to read, "during the last scholastic year."

The Examiner made some statements concerning the time that teachers might expect their salary for the term just ended, saying that the School Board expected to have a meeting on the 10th inst., and if funds were sufficient teachers would be paid after that time and as soon after as convenient. It was announced that a part of the salary of any one desiring to attend the State Teachers' Association, would be advanced and special terms could be obtained from the railroad company to enable teachers to attend the association at the Blue Mountain House.

The time having arrived the association adjourned.—Transcript.

MUCH interest is being manifested among the officers and men of the Fifth in the coming encampment, says the Baltimore Sun, and it is believed that it will be one of the most successful the regiment has ever had. Fully 300 muskets are expected to go, which, with the officers, band and drum corps, will swell the number up to over 400. The men are not assessed anything for the trip, as transportation and rations will be furnished free. The regiment will start on the night of the 14th inst., and will arrive at Atlantic City about 7 o'clock on the morning of the 15th.

THE Queen Esther Oratorio was given in Greensboro' last week under Prof. Wyatt. The Caroline Democrat states that it was an entertainment the people of Greensboro' may well be proud of.
