when I went to the Office and found that you were yet too much indisposed to be out, I handed Mr. Finlay my letter to you containing the Report for January, as I had to leave the next morning (Feb.) for Frederick. – Should the Paper by any means have been mislaid (as occurred once before) I will take pleasure in preparing a duplicate. Our Readers will hardly know what has become of your Agent, unless as Friend Tog playfully observes, they conclude he has been frozen somewhere in the interior of the State and made no Report at all for January. Ah! those people

"Like to see their names in print,

"Although there may be nothing in it"

So perhaps our patrons might like to see theirs with their contributions acknowledged, and any apparent negligence on the part of the gatherer of these subscriptions may be injurious to our noble cause. Should you so direct, I will prepare and give to the Printer a copy of the Report for January, as well as that for February, which will be forthcoming on the 28th – and a line from
