Dear brother Levy, when I returned home I told Levine Leyva a coulored girl that I have, as I told you, wishes still to go to Libera, and after presenting the case to her as fully as I could she is very anxious to go, and for as much as I wish to break up housekeeping early in April like after the session of our conference the first of June I wish you would answer the following queries at your earliest convenience: viz,

1, are you in a condition to send her soon? my recollection is that you said you was.

2 when, or how soon could you receive her at Baltimore?

3. would it be best to give her clothes to do her a year or to give her a little money to buy them herself?

4. should she take a trunk or a carpet bag or sack?

5. would you see to have some person to meet her at the cars on their arrival at Baltimore, and conduct her to her lodging?

6 would or would it not be best to have her some time under your own book before she should be shipped?
